Pot Poll Evokes 'Mixed Bag' of Reaction

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON — While young Jack Ford is trying to persuade his father that pot penalties should be abolished, the Daily Freeman turned up a mixed bag of persuasions this week regarding Gov. Hugh L. Carey's proposal to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana.

And, while the President isn't expected to take a position on pot before the November election, the New York State Legislature is. A vote on the question should reach the floor of the State Legislature before the month is out.

Ironically, the majority of those polled locally on the moral and legal aspects of Carey's proposal, favored decriminalization, but three out of four of Ulster County's state legislators, the ones who will make the ultimate decision, are against it.

Only Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., would approve. The others — State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40th Dist., Sen. Edwyn E. Mason, R-48th Dist. and Assemblyman Emeel Betros, R-99th Dist., are opposed.

Removal of penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana for personal use was called for last week by delegates to the United Methodist Conference.

The demonination's top lawmaking body stressed however, that its action "in no way implies approval or encouragement of marijuana use or its legalization."

Much the same sentiment has been expressed here recently by many members of the legal profession, law enforcement and the clergy. Most favor decriminalization but not legalization with the exception of Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn of Temple Emanuel who, "while not fully committed to legalization wouldn't be too unhappy" if it came about.

He said he feels that individuals should have the freedom to do what they want with their lives. He said he sees marijuana use as "no worse than alcohol as a form of socially acceptable behavior," and tends to think it is less harmful.

Because use of pot has become so widespread, he suggests that inconsistent law enforcement results, disrespect for law ensues and the issue becomes a political football.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino would agree that morally "it is not wrong at this time in light of youth today." He feels that young people have a valid argument when they tell their parent "You drink alcohol over the weekend, I smoke pot."

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt advocates a strictly "practical" approach saying "a law is a law only if it can be enforced."

Because of the wide use of marijuana, enforcement of the pot laws could detract from the fight against hard drugs. Vogt's office and others have opted for the fight against heroin, cocaine and other hard drugs.

However, Vogt is very much opposed to the use of pot, saying he is well aware of the arguments for it but, he said, "I have never seen hospital wards filled with 13- and 14-year-old alcoholics but for years I have seen teenage drug addicts filling the hospital

Mental Health Director Ralph H. Golding points to recent federal government reports which contend that pot is not as dangerous as experts said it was. Golding believes a lot of myths have been exploded and that anyone can become dependent on anything when it is used to excess. He also feels that youths have been turned off by false information given them by adults and have been turned on by pot which they use to spite authorities.

He would favor decriminalization, as would Probation Director Stephen Morris who sees it as a practical solution. Morris said he can't see any reason for pot possession carrying criminal penalties. Calling it a burden on the system, he reflected on the lives and careers that have been destroyed as the result of pot convictions and feels the law is not worth "such a heavy consequence."

Police Chief Julius Glassman of Kingston disagrees. He would like to see the law stay the way it is, believing pot use leads to hard drug use and that decriminalization would only encourage more adults as well as youths to smoke it.

The Rev. Allan Janssen of Port Ewen, while not supporting the use of any type of drugs, still contends that "it seems a bit hypocritical to call marijuana a drug requiring criminal prosecution and alcohol, which is more dangerous, non-criminal. "

Betros believes that there is a mechanism within the law now to deal with marijuana, pointing out that anyone picked up as a first offender, with no record, can have their case dismissed. But Mason and Schermerhorn are adamantly against any relaxation.

"What the President's wife and now his son is suggesting is that our children commit a crime," Schermerhorn said, predicting that we will have "a generation of potheads.'"

Putting Muscle into a Softball Throw

It Was A Beautiful Day For The Special Olympics

KINGSTON — Another "Special Olympic" success was racked up Saturday when about 175 young people, aged five through 21, participated in bowling, swimming track and field events.

Sponsored by the Exchange Club of Greater Kingston and Ulster County Chapter of Teachers of the Mentally Handicapped, the event began with a parade at Dietz Stadium to the accompaniment of the Kingston High School Band.

Kingston High School students served as chaperones on a one-to-one basis throughout the entire day.

"It was beautiful," Michael Cacchillo, chairman of the olympics said, obviously pleased that the students gave up their day for the mentally retarded and found the experience rewarding.

Cacchillo was assisted by Joseph DeFino, physical education instructor who scheduled such events as the 50-yard dash, 220 and 440-yard events, side jump, broad jump, basketball, softball throw and forward jump. Each child was allowed to participate in up to three events.

The more proficient children will be asked to participate in the state special olympics to be held at Brockport in June.

Swimming events took place earlier this month at Ramada Inn and bowling events were scheduled for last Friday at Bowlerama.

The day's events Saturday ended with a victory dance held at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Cacchillo is already making plans for the fourth annual event next year and hopes to incorporate the use of an olympic torch in the ceremonies.

Reaching the Finish Line and Hard-fought Victory

City Water Rate Increase Angers Quick, Raichle

KINGSTON — Official reaction to the 20 per cent rate increase announced last week by the Kingston Water Board began today with some stinging criticisms from Aldermen Donald E. Quick, D-6th Ward, and Clarence C. Raichle, R-1st Ward.

Quick, chairman of the Common Council's Laws and Rules Committee, accused the water board of "dirty pool" and deception stemming from earlier assurances that rates would not be increased.

Raichle, in a statement released today, deplored the rate increase and threatened to ask the council to conduct an investigation of the water board and its water rate structure.

Quick noted that an informal meeting was held between the council and the water department in late 1975 to discuss a proposed contract for water department employes. Quick said that the water department assured the council that the new two-year contract — containing nine per cent salary hikes each year — would not result in a water rate increase.

"I personally feel that I was lied to when the question was asked about the rate increase," said Quick, "and I call on the Kingston Water Board to reconsider their proposed rate increase at a time when unemployment is at a record high, and when more and more people of Kingston are living on a fixed income . . . . "

Raichle pointed to the apparent inconsistency of a rate increase approved just five months after the water department trimmed its operating budget by some $76,000, and suggested that the cost increases which necessitated the rate hike should have been anticipated earlier.

In addition, he termed the proposed 20 per cent rate increase "a slap in the face" to real property owners in the city and to senior citizens and others living on fixed incomes.

But Edwin F. Radel, administrative assistant of the Kingston Water Department, today defended the rate increase. In response to Quick's criticism, he said the increased costs of supplies and materials — not the wage hikes for department employes — prompted the rate increase. He said the board did not anticipate higher rates last year, but that inflated costs for supplies and materials "caught up to us."

The 20 per cent rate increase — which takes effect at the start of the third quarter (July 1) — is expected to raise an additional $148,000 in revenues for a full year, said Radel. He added that the water board "hopes" that the new rate hike will provide sufficient additional operating revenues to prevent another rate increase "for at least three or four years."

Radel said the rate hike would increase the minimum charge of water by about two cents a day. For larger residential users, rates will increase by slightly more than three cents a day.

"Twenty per cent sounds drastic when you say it," said Radel, "but it's probably conservative compared to other commodities that have gone up in price."

Fear Low Guess of Quake's Death Toll

Udine, Italy — Shortly after Thursday's earthquake struck northern Italy, Italian officials estimated its death toll would be 1,000; they now predict it will go higher, since the count has already reached 815, and the search for bodies continues.

Two new tremors shook the Italian disaster area today, further weakening structures already damaged by the original quake and the heavy rains which have fallen.

Ford Moves to Meet Reagan Surge

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford, faced with the grim prospect of losing two key primaries, one in Nebraska and one in his home state of Michigan, huddled with his top advisers and made some scheduling changes in his campaign.

Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter was dealt a minor setback in Maine, interesting mainly for its rarity.

'Incredible Mail' for Hughes Judge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The judge assigned to the Howard Hughes case says he's received some "incredible mail" from persons who think the billionaire meant to mention them in his will.

Judge Keith Hayes, who will help determine if the handwritten will found last month is valid, said he's also received one threatening call warning that "the judge is going to die."

Hayes said he'd been contacted by friends he hadn't heard from in 20 years and is sometimes stopped on the street by people who jokingly suggest he cut them in on a piece of the estate's action.

"I've received some incredible mail there is no other way to describe it," Hayes, 44, a softspoken former state legislator, said in an interview.

President Moves to Stop Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President-elect Elias Sarkis appeared to have mastered his first challenge today by calming a fierce battle in the mountains northeast of the capital.

Sarkis held telephone consultations with Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and other leaders to try to stop the fighting among the mountain peaks and snow-patched canyons of the central Mount Lebanon region.

Cable Cars are Moving Again

SAN FRANCISCO — Cable cars, buses and trolleys were moving again in San Francisco, but major labor disputes across the nation continued to idle more than 100,000 workers.

Passengers carrying bottles of champagne hopped on San Francisco cable cars Sunday to celebrate the end of a city workers strike which shut down mass transit and other city services for 39 days. An agreement was reached Saturday.

A couple of members of the city's board of supervisors saluted San Franciscans for their patience during the strike by 3,800 workers which stranded about 250,000 daily transit riders.

City officials said a tough stand against the walkout helped avoid a financial crisis.

However, Mayor George Moscone warned that sudden "antiunionism" could lead to San Francisco becoming "like New York was, a series of warring camps."

State Police Kept Tabs on Liberals

NEW YORK — State police compiled intelligence files on persons believed to be liberals and leftists by using a secret "right-wing intelligence newsletter," it was disclosed Sunday.

The New York Times reported an investigation by the Office of Legislative Oversight and Analysis uncovered evidence that the newsletter, Information Digest, was used to supply state police with thousands of names for inclusion in noncriminal intelligence files.

According to the Times, among the names passed to state police headquarters in Albany through the newsletter were those of former Mayor John V. Lindsay; New York Democratic Reps. Herman Badillo, Shirley Chisholm and Charles Rangel; Bronx Borough President Robert Abrams, Bishop Paul Moore Jr. of the Episcopal Diocese of New York and filmstar Dustin Hoffman.

Creator of Opus 40

Bizarre Tragedy Claims Harvey Fite

HIGH WOODS — Harvey Fite, the renowned sculptor and artist, and longtime Ulster County resident, was found dead Sunday following what State Police described as a bizarre lawn-mower accident at his home here.

Troopers said Fite, 72, was apparently operating a riding lawn mower on top of Opus 40, the monumental environmental landscape sculpture he had been creating over more than four decades. Police said he must have lost control of the mower and gone over the edge of the mammoth sculpture which had been developed in an old bluestone quarry. His death had apparently resulted from hitting his head on bluestone rock 15 feet below.

Fite's body was discovered around 8 p.m. by a friend who had arrived for dinner. Police estimated his death had occurred sometime between 4 and 8 p.m.

One of the nation's most prominent sculptors, Fite had travelled widely, studying the stone work and architecture of the Far East and West. His own work in wood and stone had been influenced by the ancient stone work of Egypt, Thailand and Cambodia.

In 1960 he had restored the Castle of Rocca Cinivalla, built in 1430 and located in the mountains beyond Rome. He was also an admirer of Khmer sculpture and had visited many Asiatic temples, including Angkor Wat, which was much in the news during the Vietnam War. Some of the beauty and detail of the walls of Angkor Wat were present in Fite's sculpture works.

A prolific sculptor, Fite was also a Professor of Sculpture at Bard College for many years. He retired from that position early in this decade and was a Professor Emeritus of the college at the time of his death.

Eminently famed for his sculpture, he was equally renowned for Opus 40, the huge maze of bluestone that covered almost 10 acres. He had worked alone for decades to construct the abandoned quarry and its chaos of stone rubble into an ordered artistic creation of circular platforms connected by winding corridors and stairways, quiet pools of water and winding paths connecting the various levels.

Art critics, awed by its grandeur, often wrote that there was nothing in the annals of art that remotely compared with it in conception.

On occasion, Fite would open his rarely seen creation to the public for a worthy community cause. One local organization that benefited from such showings was the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Kingston.

In recent years, he had added another attraction at the site. After building a rustic museum in the woods, he put on display his large collection of tools and artifacts, machines and implements used by the early quarrymen, carpenters, farmers, housewives, fire-fighters and stone masons of Ulster County.

Fite had been working on Opus 40, his gargantuan one-man-made architectural restructuring of the landscape, since 1942. His schedule called for its completion in 1982. It seemed already complete to the hundreds who had viewed it, but Fite often suggested that it would never be finished.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Buono Funeral Service, Inc., Saugerties.

Kirschner To Seek Treasurer's Post

PORT EWEN — Citing his near upset of County Clerk Albert Spada in last fall's election, along with other factors, Lewis C. Kirschner has announced he will actively seek the Democratic nomination for Ulster County Treasurer this year.

Kirschner lost to Spada by approximately 5,000 votes in what was considered a close race for a countywide election. Spurred by that record, by public statements of top county Democratic leaders in support of his potential candidacy, and encouraged by pledges of support from vast numbers of area residents, says Kirschner, he will seek the County Treasurer's post from which Republican Fred DuBois is retiring after 18 years.

"Because of my educational background and experience in county government," said the candidate, "I believe I can provide effective representation to Ulster County citizens, even though I recognize Fred DuBois will be difficult to replace."

Kirschner cited his experience as a former member of the County Legislature for six years as a major reason for seeking the nomination for treasurer.

His experience in the Legislature, he says, "has familiarized me with all county operations." And, as a result he suggests, his election "would assure county residents that I would serve as the watchdog of county funds since that function would be carried on by a County Treasurer who possesses the necessary familiarity with the financial operations of Ulster County."

Kirschner also notes the office carries many diversified responsibilities, including maintaining the county's financial books and records, and "assuring the proper use of public funds in the best interest of the county."

Referring to the fact that government "benefits" from a check and balance system, Kirschner said, in his opinion, "there is no greater need for proper checks and balances than in the expenditure of public funds." Since the County Legislature prepares the county budget, and is controlled by the Republican party, he suggested, what better check on county funds could the public have than through the election of a former member of the County Legislature, who represents the Democratic party.

Permanent Nuclear Burial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It appears likely that deadly radioactive garbage may be disposed of forever by burial far beneath the ground.

The government has launched an effort to solve the problem of permanent nuclear waste disposal by 1985, and the Energy Research and Development Administration sends Congress this week a five-volume, 1,500-page analysis of various means for handling and storing atomic power plant wastes.

ERDA says a plan will be announced "in the near future" by the Energy Resources Council and public comment will be invited.

Others have tried — and failed — to find acceptable solutions to the problem of atomic disposal for more than three decades.

Top German Terrorist Used Violence to End

STUTTGART, West Germany (UPI) — Ulrike Meinhof died as she lived — violently.

She spent two frantic years as a leader of West Germany's urban guerrillas, abandoning her twin daughters and a career as a writer to go underground.

"Resistance is my making certain that something which does not suit me no longer occurs," she wrote in jail. "Naturally, shooting is permitted."

The 41-year-old, pipesmoking, petite brunette hanged herself with a towel early Sunday in her cell in Stuttgart's Stammheim prison.

She and three other members of the "Red Army Faction" — as they called themselves — had been on trial for nearly a year on charges they staged a terrorist campaign of bombings and bank robberies.

Four American soldiers were killed and 13 others injured in two 1972 bombings at U.S. Army headquarters in West Germany. The Red Army Faction claimed responsibility for the blasts.

The reason for her suicide was unknown. Justice Ministry officials said no note was found.

Acquaintances said Mrs. Meinhof may have killed herself because she despaired of achieving her goal of overthrowing what she called the "repressive capitalist bourgeois system."

Her lawyer, Prof. Axel Azzola, said, "The authorities are responsible for her death. There is no such thing as suicide. There are only the pursuers and the pursued."

Justice authorities said they feared her death might lead to retaliatory terror attacks.

(In Paris, branch offices of two German firms near the Avenue Champs Elysees were gutted by firebombs Sunday night. Another bomb seriously damaged the German Cultural center in Toulouse. No injuries were reported in any of the incidents.

Feeding Quake's Homeless Destitute.

Death Toll Rises; New Italian Tremors

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — Two new tremors shook northern Italy's disaster area today, and a government spokesman said the death toll from Thursday's earthquake would soar over the 1,000-mark.

An army of soldiers and volunteer rescuers dug through the ruins of two dozen shattered mountain communities for the fourth day and officials said their original estimate of 1,000 dead may have been too low.

"When we first spoke of 1,000 dead, it was what we feared," Udine prefecture spokesman Natale Labia said. "Now we are almost there and we fear it will be even more."

Police said 815 bodies had been recovered from the rubble of northeast Italian towns and villages hit by the Thursday earthquake and 523 had been identified. Police reported about 1,300 injured. Officials would not estimate how many bodies might still be buried in the debris.

Digging resumed at dawn in debris made shakier Sunday by a heavy downpour.

Reports from outlying villages said at least three persons were found alive under the rubble Sunday. Officials said it would be several more days before isolated hamlets can be combed for bodies or survivors. Two more shocks, measuring between 5 and 6 on the 12-degree Mercalli scale, were felt in the area before dawn, but no new damage or casualties were reported.

The aftershocks were intense enough to cause only moderate damage under normal circumstances, but scientists said they could have caused the collapse of buildings weakened by the main shock. They did not even awaken many refugees in their army tents or railroad cars.

"There is no great problem with the shocks, but the weather make things very difficult first the sun and now the rain," an Italian interior ministry spokesman said in Udine.

Rescue workers slogging through heavy rains appealed for tents to shelter the thousands left homeless by Thursday's earthquake.

Another sharp earthquake jolted northeastern Italy Sunday morning, about 53 hours after Thursday's major tremor devastated 24 Friuli region towns. The new quake sent panicky thousands fleeing into streets in nightclothes but claimed no more lives.

Heavy rain Sunday night pelted the stricken area adjoining the Austrian and Yugoslav frontiers and rescue officials appealed for additional thousands of tents.

Ford Forced to Change

A worried President Ford, facing prospects of losing "crucial" primaries to Ronald Reagan in Nebraska Tuesday and in his home state of Michigan May 18, summoned political aides to talk strategy and revise his campaign schedule.

The President returned Saturday from a two-day swing through Nebraska, and called in campaign aides Sunday, where it was decided to add a second day in Michigan this week. Additional senior aides, including campaign manager Rogers Morton, were to meet with him late today.

Originally scheduled to campaign in Michigan Wednesday, and in Kentucky, Tennessee and possibly Arkansas later in the week, Ford has rescheduled a second trip to Michigan — to the tulip festival in Holland and to his home town of Grand Rapids — Saturday.

The second day in Michigan reportedly came at the expense of Arkansas, but that had not been a firm date.

Meanwhile, the Yankee state of Maine, which gave southerner Jimmy Carter one of his early boosts for the Democratic nomination by favoring him in district delegate maneuvering before New Hampshire, now may have given him a rare — if minor — setback.

Carter won nine of the state's 20 delegates in Maine's Democratic state convention. But the convention unexpectedly elected five delegates for Morris Udall and left six uncommitted, thus blocking Carter from winning the majority his supporters predicted.

Carter spent Sunday at his home in Plains, Ga., while Udall and Henry Jackson campaigned in Connecticut in hopes of upsetting the former Georgia governor there.

Jackson took himself out of the active campaign after losing the Pennsylvania primary last month, but said he would fulfill his commitments in Connecticut and on Sunday spoke of a possible miracle there to reestablish his candidacy.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said on television (CBS-TV's Face the Nation) the race is still wide open and he hopes to win the Maryland primary May 18. He picked up his first delegate Saturday in Wyoming.

"Some people think the campaign is locked up," said Brown. "I think it's wide open ... I think the chemistry of this campaign can change in Maryland. And as we spread across the country, you're going to see some real surprises."

Brown said he is seeking uncommitted delegates across the country, and will campaign in New Jersey, Nevada, and his home state of California.

Reagan widened his lead over Ford in weekend delegate selection in six states, gaining 28 new delegates to Ford's 18. The new totals show Reagan with 397 to Ford's 336, with 298 uncommitted. It takes 1,130 to nominate at the GOP convention in Kansas City in August.

In Democratic delegate selections, 39 were chosen over the weekend but most of them were uncommitted. Carter picked up 13 to bring his total to 574.

Senate Report: FBI Did Over 200 'Black Bag Jobs'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI conducted more than 200 illegal "black bag job" breakins against domestic groups between 1948 and 1966 without telling the Justice Department, a Senate committee staff report said today.

The report, latest in a series released by the Senate Intelligence Committee, said former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover outlawed the practice for use against domestic targets in 1966 for undisclosed reasons.

It quoted from a 1966 staff memo by former assistant FBI director William C. Sullivan, saying the technique was "clearly illegal" and that authorization was not sought outside the FBI because "it would be impossible to obtain any legal sanction for it."

The committee said the FBI continues today to use clandestine entry techniques without warrants to gather evidence on "foreign agents" with the permission of the Justice Department. It recommended that warrants be required.

Other committee reports issued during the past week have told of 40 years of FBI bugging and tapping of telephones in noncriminal cases, and traced the development of domestic spying activities that included the incitement of violence between rival factions of dissident groups.

The reports prompted an unprecedented public apology from FBI director Clarence J. Kelley, who said in a speech at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., Saturday, "We are truly sorry we were responsible for instances which now are subject to such criticism." He said they must not be repeated.

The latest report said "black bag" entries against at least 15 targets were apart from 1,000 other breakins made to install hidden microphones or wiretaps.

It said the FBI reported at least 239 entries between 1942 and 1966, more than 200 of them in the post-World War II years and some of them involving repeated entries against the same targets.

Despite Hoover's ban, the report said there was evidence one illegal breakin was made against a "domestic subversive target" between 1966 and 1968.

Targets included the Ku Klux Klan, the Socialist Workers Party and its affiliates, and an unidentified "white hate group."

The report said in most cases the FBI was able to obtain keys for the breakins from cooperative landlords or neighbors, but if this was impossible agents specially trained in "lock studies" were available to open doors and safes."

One SWP affiliate was such a frequent target the FBI even had written instructions to burglarize its offices, the report said. The FBI carefully avoided mention of breakins for any purpose to higher officials, the report said.

It quoted one FBI official who briefed former attorney general Robert F. Kennedy on bugging operations as saying he was "purposely vague" and that Kennedy may not have been aware breakins were used to plant the bugs.

Anticipates Battle For Spy Watchdog

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Powerful opposition awaits the effort by Senate reformers to create a strong, prestigious committee for overseeing all U.S. intelligence activities.

Senate leaders scheduled the start today of what promises to be a bitter floor battle between reformers who want to establish a committee with legislative and budgetary powers and old guard conservatives backing a second-rank panel with little authority.

The decision to create a new intelligence oversight committee stemmed from the lengthy investigation which exposed abuses by the CIA, FBI and other intelligence gathering agencies.

Led by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who spearheaded the investigation, the reformers persuaded the Government Operations Committee to recommend an 11-member panel with legislative powers that cut deeply into its own jurisdiction and into territory now controlled by the Armed Services, Judiciary and Foreign Relations Committees.

But on a 5-4 vote, the reformers were beaten when they sought approval by the Rules Committee.

The rules panel approved creation of a select committee — not a fullranking standing committee — with no legislative powers and no control over the intelligence budget. In addition, 8 of the 11 members would be drawn from the committees which have handled intelligence oversight in the past.

It seemed doubtful the reformers will be able to reverse this move completely and get all they want in the way of independence for their oversight committee with powers to review the intelligence budgets, review covert operations in advance and disclose spy secrets on its own authority.

The Rules Committee stripped those powers from the proposal it cleared. And, although reformers are prepared to fight in floor debate, the mood of Congress seems to have shifted away from the outrage provoked by the intelligence committee's disclosures to concern for protection of U.S. security abroad.

Speed Reading Course To Begin in Kingston

Arrangements have been made by the Institute of Speed Reading, Inc., to conduct a 24 hour course in speed reading. The course is open to anyone above the age of 13 and guarantees every graduate a reading speed triple that of your present rate and with at least an increase in comprehension.

After the eight week program a person can read any average length book in less than an hour and understand it better. In addition to speed reading the course also emphasizes improved study techniques, better test taking skill, and increased concentration and retension abilities.

The course requires a person to attend one class per week on the evening of their choice. For those who would like more information, without obligation to enroll, a series of Free one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled.

These meetings are free to the public and the course will be explained in complete details including entrance requirements, class room schedule and location. You need to attend only one of the meetings whichever one is most convenient for you. These free one hour orientations will be held as follows:

Monday the 10th at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday the 11th at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday the 12th at 7:30 p.m. AND FINAL MEETING THURSDAY, MAY 13th AT 7:30 P.M. ALL MEETINGS UPSTAIRS AT THE KINGSTON-ULSTER COUNTY YMCA. 507 BROADWAY, KINGSTON.

Special student and family tuition available for those who qualify. Persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent. Pd. Adv.

Saugerties Democrats Taking on A New Face

By Mary Messina
Special Correspondent

SAUGERTIES — The new face of the Saugerties Democratic Club is a smiling one. Its programs are attracting wide audiences and proving socially and intellectually rewarding.

A large and enthusiastic gathering heard Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Kingston, define some of the health problems directly related to stress. "Recognizing the problem is the first step in relieving it," he said. Using x-rays to graphically illustrate the ravages of prolonged cigarette smoking, Dr. Gorman gave a lucid description of the predisposition and receptiveness of the body to cancer in the case of the heavy smoker.

Club president, William Marchetti, suggests that area residents keep alert for announcements of future meetings and welcomes all individuals regardless of political .

Statistics show that most smokers are in this category inasmuch as only 30 per cent of the population is smoking the billions of cigarettes manufactured annually — and are paying dearly — often with their lives.

The doctor recommended that everyone should take advantage of the free chest X-ray at the Ulster County Chest Clinic. Its primary purpose as a diagnostic tool is to detect cancer or lung disorders as early as possible.

An Explanation

Barclay Sewers Underway

By Cindy Marcus
Special Correspondent

SAUGERTIES — Wednesday, May 5, marked the official ground-breaking for the Barclay Heights Sewer Project. The first contract, known as contract 1A, was awarded to Halmar Construction of Mt. Vernon. Dante Sercicchio is the superintendent. A. Diachishin and Associates are the consulting engineers for the project which has begun under the supervision of Robert Longfield, resident field engineer.

According to Longfield, the work begins at the Esopus Creek at East Bridge Street and crosses Ferry to Burt Street Hill up to 9W. There will be a 100-foot tunnel under the road that will be about 22 feet deep. Traveling along the western side of 9W about 24 feet down to Overbaugh to Simmons Drive on to Appletree Drive, this part of the project ends as called for in contract 1A.

The big, interesting red machine that has attracted so many school children on Simmons Drive is known as a drill rig and is used for a well point system. Caissons are being sunk into the ground to take up any subterranean water in order to keep the trenches dry while workers are digging. It will be used all along the way, and it is fascinating to watch.

The construction company has 300 days in which to complete the work outlined in contract 1A. The section of work to be done on 9W will be inspectsd for approval by the New York State Transportation Authority. The second contract hasn't been awarded as yet, but when it is, it will include connecting feeder lines to the main trunk line that is being constructed now. Six hundred days have been allowed for that.

Just Info May 27 At Registrar

KINGSTON — The office of the Registrar of Vital Statistics of the City of Kingston will not be able to provide full services on Thursday, May 27, because office personnel will be attending an out-of-town conference that day.

The office will remain open, and will be staffed that day, but only for informational purposes.

James Earl Ray Loses His Try for New Trial

CINCINNATI (UPI) — James Earl Ray, the confessed assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who now claims he is innocent, today lost his latest attempt to change his guilty plea and stand trial.

The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, in a unanimous 3-0 ruling, decided that Ray had intelligently and voluntarily pleaded guilty to killing the civil rights leader and had received competent legal advice.

King was assassinated April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tenn. Ray, who pleaded guilty to first degee murder on March 10, 1969, is now serving a 99-year sentence at the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville.

Ever since entering the guilty plea, Ray has been seeking to withdraw that plea and to stand trial.

Ray based his appeal on the contention that his guilty plea was not "voluntarily and intelligently" made because his attorney, Percy Foreman, pressured him into pleading guilty against his will.

Ray contended Foreman made him believe the judge would not permit him to change attorneys and that unless he pleaded guilty, he had no alternative but to go to trial with Foreman, whom he felt he could not trust.

The appellate court decided, however, "the plea was entered voluntarily and knowingly."

The appellate judges said that Judge Preston Battle "very carefully questioned Ray as to the voluntariness of his plea before it was accepted."

Ray also appealed on grounds he was denied "effective assistance of counsel."

Brewery Strike Settled

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Employes returned to work today at the Anheuser-Busch brewery here following settlement of a two-month strike.

Strikes continued, however, at Anheuser-Busch plants in eight cities in other states.

Ben Merker, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 102, said he was not satisfied with the new pact and added that out-of-state strikers might come to Newark to picket.

A brewery spokesman said later that no pickets had shown up and that the first and second shifts of workers had reported on schedule.

The returning workers packaged and shipped beer that had been brewed on a limited basis during the strike. The plant brewmaster prepared to begin the first full brew on Tuesday.

Rocky Completely Out of It

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said today he saw no possibility of accepting a draft for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller, here to address the opening session of the International Press Institute's annual convention, met with reporters after his speech and praised President Ford for his leadership.

He was then asked if there was any situation at all in which he would accept a draft for the GOP presidential nomination.

"I can see absolutely none," Rockefeller said.

In his speech to some 245 IPI journalists from around the world, the vice president called on the nations of the free world to block any further expansion of Soviet communism.

"Whether we like it or not, a continuing attempt is under way to organize the world into a new empire in which the Soviet sun never sets," he said. "This new form of imperialism...involves ideological, diplomatic, economic, financial, political and military structures and relationships importantly dominated by and directed from Moscow."

Rockefeller said "a positive and far closer partnership of the independent nations of the world" would be needed to oppose "the Soviet's expansionist thrust."

Police Chiefs Hit Cuts

Dear Editor:

Attached find copy of letter sent to Governor Hugh Carey, State Senators Richard Schermerhorn, Edwyn E. Mason, and Assemblymen Emeel S. Betros and Maurice D. Hinchey Jr.

We, the Police Chief's of Ulster County feel that this subject is important enough to be brought to the attention of the public through the press media. We also solicit favorable editorials if you agree with our position.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention to this matter, I remain:

Very truly yours,
JULIUS GLASSMAN
PRESIDENT, Police Chiefs of Ulster County, Inc.

Governor Hugh L. Carey
New York State Capitol
Albany, New York

Dear Governor Carey:

This letter is being submitted to you for the purpose of formally advising of our opposition to the recent cuts in the budget of the New York State Police.

The cuts have drastically affected the Services of the New York State Police to the People of Ulster County and also must affect the assistance to local police departments in the near future. In the interests of justice and the protection of the people of the county, reinstatement of such budget cuts must be given top priority.

A reduction of police vehicles, mileage limitations, and restrictions of Troopers performing bonafide necessary police duty due to overtime restrictions is abhorrent. A loss of law enforcement can only endanger our society. Police departments, including the State Police, have always been historically very frugal and politically impotent. We feel you have a moral obligation in seeing that adequate law enforcement is maintained.

We, the Chiefs of the Police Departments of Ulster County, vehemently oppose these cuts and endorse their reinstatement forthwith in the present session of the legislature.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt consideration in this matter, I remain

Very Truly Yours,
Chief JULIUS GLASSMAN
President, Police Chiefs of Ulster County

Sees a 'Power Group'

Dear Editor:

The integrity of Onteora School Board member, Mr. Howard Lewis, sinks to a new low by reason of his recent attack in your columns against School Superintendent Dr. Frank Marlow. But his attack does serve one good purpose. It reveals and confirms what many of Onteora's concerned citizens have begun to suspect — that the trumped up and without-substance charges brought against Dr. Marlow by the Onteora Board of Education actually did constitute a shameful coverup of hypocrisy and deceit. Now Howard Lewis has raised a brand new issue. Why was this particular issue omitted from the list of charges originally brought by the Board? — For the simple reason that the Board well knew the pack lies, half truths and distortions of fact, so viciously expounded by Mr. Lewis at this late date, would have been thrown out when reviewed by the State Board of Education as nothing else but cheap slander.

Howard Lewis seems to have a diabolical talent for character assasination. He appears to have learned little from the spontaneous outburst of boos and catcalls when at a recent Board meeting he prefaced his remarks with a cheap vaudeville "joke" about "counting his fingers after a handshake with Dr. Marlow." Is it not unlikely it was at this moment that Mr. Lewis may have had second thoughts, and soon thereafter decided not to run for re-election to the Board? And did not Mr. Lewis play amateur psychoanalyst when he flatly stated that Dr. Marlow was "looking not only for another job — but a better one? These are the slanderous presumptions of Mr. Lewis — his words — and in no way are the thoughts or words of Dr. Marlow.

Concerned citizens of Onteora should note that until June 1974 previous Board evaluations of Dr. Marlow's performance were pronounced as satisfactory. Is it not strange — within three short months thereafter — and only when Mrs. Beverly Britting and two other new members were elected to the Board, that Mrs. Britting headed up the move to explore ways and means to break the contract of Dr. Marlow? Whereupon they developed the seven insidious and phoney charges which threw the district into a turmoil.

With a decision pending on Dr. Marlow's appeal to the Higher Board, I would ask Mr. Howard Lewis how, in good conscience, dare he suggest that Dr. Marlow, at this juncture, immediately to move out? With the callous actions of the Onteora Board of Education responsible for the dark cloud overhanging the reputation and professional standing of Dr. Marlow, is it not fair and just that he retain his post as School Superintendent until the State Board renders its verdict on the Appeal — hopefully one of complete vindication?

Concerned citizens of Onteora should again read the last paragraph of Mr. Lewis's "hate" letter. I believe it is a logical question whether "Peace" might more quickly come to Onteora by the departure of Howard Lewis himself —and the stepping down of certain other vengeful members of the Board.

Yes, I am not quite convinced that what we at present have in Onteora is a Board NOT dedicated to the ideals of nurturing and improving the standards of our educational system. What we now have instead is a POWER GROUP, utilizing without conscience the unsavoury tactics and manipulations that invariably go with abuse of power. May I cite the depressing example of the Power Group which manned the inner sanctum of Ex-President Nixon? They destroyed the President — and they destroyed themselves. With a Power Bloc as we now have on the Onteora Board of Education, ultimately they may well wind up with their own dismal and destructive Watergate.

Very truly yours,
WALTER COWAN

'Dollar Difference'

Dear Editor:

To the Editor and the Taxpayers of the Onteora School District:

Once again the Sneaky Six have pulled it off. We've been "had" again!

At the "special public meeting" of Apr. 21, — "special" because only certain (i.e., "hand-chosen") people attend and "public" because members of the press are carefully notified and the "specials" are not bona fide Board members, — the findings of "our new architects" (Dr. Keogh's terminology) were brought to light and discussed. The Big Thing was the "dollar difference" (Sam Mercer's terminology) in the report of "our new architects" as compared to that of our "old" architects M.D. Lane Associates, — $8,500 as compared to a whopping $189,000. How come? Everyone Asked.

To Board candidate Dexter Olsen's comments of "It's such a discrepancy. The public will have a lot of questions," Board President Donald Lawson glibly replied, "I certainly share the same curiosities."

Really now.

To begin with, the kind of report "new" architects Kaminsky and Shiffer were asked to give differed vastly from the one given by the "old" architects. In the second place, Kaminsky and Shiffer had the decided advantage of working with a newly-devised, much-simplified State Education Dept. Form EFP-E, — a fact that surfaced at the meeting only through questions raised by OCS staff member Bert Breitenberger. (Bless you, Bert). No where, in any of the reports I heard or read, did these very important facts appear. Was it because the big voices of Mercer, Mower, and Darrow (in order of bigness) were strangely quiet? Don't forget, Taxpayers, that the Sneaky Six want you to know ONLY what THEY THINK you should know!

It should have been obvious to anyone at all familiar with them that there is little comparison between the complex and comprehensive report of M. D. Lane Associates and the simplistic one of Kaminsky and Shiffer. Be that as it may, the public has been left with the belief that Onteora needs but eight-thousand-five-hundered dollars worth of additional work and repairs to get the necessary approval of the State Education Department in order to receive the State Aid monies due us on Proposition I.

That was Wednesday night, April 21, in the new, sparkling All-Purpose Area of the Jr. High School, — a piece of sheer genius created out of a homely, strictly-utilitarian corridor.

And then, in Saturday morning's mail, the other shoe dropped: This Board member received Part II of Kaminsky and Shiffer's report. A few things bother me:

1. Both parts of this report are dated April 19, 1976 . Why did not Part II appear on Wednesday night along with Part I?

2. If due to lack of time copies of Part II could not be completed for Wednesday night's meeting, why was existence of it never mentioned? Both Don Lawson and Dr. Keough had to know of it. By Wednesday night so, too, did Trustees (!) Britting, Darrow, Mercer and Mower.

3. Why did not Don Lawson answer Dexter Olsen's comments with the truth: that taking the whole of the Kaminsky and Shiffer report and considering that the Board is adding into its 1976-77 Budget some items that appeared in the Lane report, the final figures in each report are amazingly close?

I propose that we have here simply more evidence of the half-truths and the under-handedness to which the Sneaky Six treat the public. As a prominent and much-respected member of the Onteora School District said to me: "For the past year your Board of Education has done only one thing: back-stabbing. When are they going to stop?

The beginning of the end, I hope, will come with the School Board elections on May 26th.

EDNA L. HOYT
Member, Onteora Central Schools Board of Education.

A Crise de Foi

WASHINGTON — God checked out sometime in the middle of the 19th Century, but he didn't take the need for an omnipotent, unifying and integrating principle with him. That principle, as many have remarked, was transferred to the national state.

It was a relatively easy transmission since God was so frequently associated with the secular Mower when he was alive.

The substitution of the state for the divinity in the tabernacle was obvious enough in Fascist Germany, but not as self-evident in a democracy like our own for we are a people who detest our government while we worship our nationhood, which is the spiritual essence of our state.

It is easy enough to look at the old newsreels of the Nazi rallies in Nuremberg and the current Soviet ones in Red Square and see what principle reigns where the dead god once did.

Because we attend similar events ourselves in a happy, reverential and patriotic spirit, the religious character of our Veterans' Day parades escapes us.

But another and larger impediment to our recognizing our worship of the state exists' We are a democracy, and we believe democracy is a rational arrangement of human society whereby first there is reasonable debate and thsn the will of the people is expressed by the election of officeholders who proceed to carry the popular mandate into practical effect.

National elections are nothing of the sort. The mandate or platform or program is invariably ambiguous to the point of incomprehensibility, and the election of one man as opposed to another is seldom of any practical consequence to most of us.

Instead you might regard elections as a way of celebrating mass in honor of our nationhood. It is the supreme symbolic rite of our secular religion, and like the older forms of Christian worship it serves to unify, reaffirm and assure the voters in the pews.

But in this late winter primary season, it appears that the members of the great democratic congregation are suffering a crise de foi. Many are saying, "What difference does it make? Why vote? They all go back on their promises."

We're not the first Americans to say those things. There have always been atheists in the congregation, just as there have always been members who temporarily absented themselves because they objected to the high church liturgy in the national cathedral, but they still believed in the religion. The discontented maintained their faith in elections; they just wanted them conducted differently.

This isn't the first period in our history that we've had low voter turnouts either, but it may be the first one that doubts the efficacy of the ritual. This isn't the same as the much talked about, if questionable, general apathy. This is disbelief, and without faith the electoral sacrament can't do its work of relieving social tension, or resolving anxiety and providing the communion of post-electoral contentment which causes the commentators to tell us, "The people have spoken."

The political atheism in the air is palpable. The same commentators refer to it as the cynicism and disillusionment in the wake of Vietnam and Watergate.

But other generations have had hard knocks and dreadful politicians. Of our 38 presidents, 10 or fewer can be fairly said to have reached the heights of inefmediocrity. No, the difference is that in times past, in the church and in the voting both, people did not see how inefficacious these ceremonies are in terms of their own lives.

Now they do.

Fewer and fewer join political parties, the very rough equivalent of the Holy Name Society or teaching Sunday school in the secular church. Again, the failure to sign up is attributed to disillusionment, but historically ths best predictor of a person's party affiliation and political disposition has been his parents, his family, not the honesty or honor of politicians.

Perhaps, just as families can no longer inculcate religious belief, they can no longer transmit political values. Are we disillusioned, or are we coming to be a nation of different people who perceive differently and think differently because we live in changed circumstances?

If the times have swollen the proportion of political agnostics, it may account for the impression that who wins these elections is less important than that why have elections.

Certainly, the acolytes in the cathedral of American democracy, the media people, seem to be straining is never before to bring the elections off. the candidates themselves act like priests of troubled faith and let the media hit us from every side, twice a day, with lectures and lessons on the importance, gravity and epochal meaning of every detail of the electoral celebration: Cronkite, Chancellor and Reasoner out on the streets distributing Bible verses like Seventh Day Adventists.

We don't care who you vote for but vote. For long decades religiously affiliated schools had compulsory chapel attendance for their agnostic student bodies. The purpose wasn't the cure of souls but the concealment of the loss of faith from those officiating at the services. Some people are demanding voting be made compulsory. God died anyway, will faith in the American national state pack it in also?

"Black Bag' Jo

WASHINGTON — The FBI, without technically telling an untruth, has led the public to believe its agents took part in no more than 238 criminal housebreakings. The actual figure is well over 1,000 and may surpass 2,000.

These "black bag" jobs, as the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover called them, were employed principally against suspected spies, organized crime figures, foreign diplomats and a few dangerous revolutionaries.

But Hoover also sent his agents to burglarize the premises of law-abiding U.S. citizens whom the old FBI curmudgeon simply disliked.

Confidential FBI memos, obtained by the Senate Intelligence Committee, acknowledge that the "black bag" jobs violated the criminal laws the FBI was supposed to enforce. Yet we have learned from FBI sources that Hoover, although sworn to uphold the laws, personally sanctioned more than 1,000 of the break-ins.

Not until 1967 did Hoover take steps, in a self-serving memo turned up by the Senate probers, to end the break-ins. Even then, we have learned, it wasn't his own idea but pressure from then-Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark that brought the change.

The figure of 238 "surrepitious entries," as the burglaries were politely called, first appeared in an FBI memo to the Senate committee om Sept. 23, 1975.

The memo accurately but cagily reported that the 238 housebreakings were perpetrated against 14 "domestic subversive targets" during the 1942-68 period. But a careful reading shows the bureau left a hedge. Almost in passing, the memo indicates the figure is "incomplete," based as much on the memory of agents as on actual data. Indeed, Hoover purposely destroyed many of the records dealing with the break-ins, presumably to eliminate documentary evidence of the FBI crimes.

From our internal sources, however, we have ascertained that some top FBI officials believe the 1,000-to-2,000 figure is a "conservative estimate" of the total housebreakings.

These include not only burglaries to get information but break-ins to install bugging devices. One source said the housebreakings go back far beyond 1942 and never terminated completely in 1968. Under FBI chief Clarence Kelley, however, the bureau has scrupulously followed legal procedures.

The Senate Intelligence Committee, meanwhile, has pushed the FBI hard for more complete break-in figures. The committee will release a report shortly showing the confirmed housebreakings totaled slightly less than 1,000. Our higher figures, however, came from indisputable FBI sources.

In defense of the past practice of breaking and entering, the FBI said this technique was used only "to obtain secret and closely guarded organizational and financial information" or to plant electronic equipment in the most "highly selective" cases.

Footnote: Those who believe in law and order had better demand that it begin with the government. A lawless government is far more dangerous than any lawless individual. Yet in spite of the clear evidence that the FBI, CIA and other agencies engaged in illegal acts, the senate Rules Committee led by Chairman Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., voted against strong oversight of these agencies.

CHAUFFEUR'S COMPLAINT: The former secretary of Rep. Phillip Burton, D.-Calif., a member of the powerful House leadership, has accused him of requiring her to chauffeur him around at all hours until it broke her health.

Mrs. Nina-Ann Coleman, 91, also claims she had to pay more than $15,000 from her own pocket for gasoline, repairs, insurance and a succession of cars since 1967 to keep up with Burton's 12-hour days.

In a confidential claim submitted to the Labor Dept. for disability payments, the former secretary charges that she was pressed into service as a chauffeur not only for the congressman but for his wife, a movie star, union friends and other colleagues.

She ferried Mrs. Burton to the market, to clothing stores and to parties, the filed papers allege. On one occasion, Mrs. Coleman picked up a Burton aide at Dulles Airport, she said, but later discovered he had submitted a voucher for the trip and had chiseled $20 out of the denies the charge.

On the way home from another airport pickup, according to Mrs. Coleman, the cigarette smoke in he car was so thick, it precipitated an asthma attack. A statement from her doctor separations before she was fired by Burton earlier this year.

Responding to the Labor Dept.'s request for comment, Burton said Mrs. Coleman's illness had made her irritable, nervous and absent from work about two months a year since 1974. He conceded to us that she had driven him a great deal but said he had reimbursed her for some trips.

In any case, he said, chauffeuring "was part of her job responsibility and her pay reflected" the added responsibility.

The Fourth Age of Man

I'm not old, but...

There are more bridges in my mouth than span the Mississippi. I only use glasses when I want to see something. Arthritis is no problem except in the spine, the thumbs and my good shoulder.

Golf has been cut to four times a week. My grandsons Jim and Kevin cannot look down on me if I kneel on a chair. The barber claims to have found a bald spot in the back, but I have not seen it.

Either the type in newspapers is smaller or my arms are shorter. I am sure that the next generation has gone to hell in a hand basket and so has the one behind that, and the one succeeding that one.

I used to love to breast the mountainous waves - what a waste of energy! The exquisite workbench and the gleaming tools I had in the cellar are in the hands of another sucker.

I had the mistaken notion that young ladies in scanty attire are alluring; I now see they are disgusting. There are five adult movies in my area; I attend the kiddie shows.

No matter how warm the night, I want a blanket. Nobody will listen to me tell how tough times were when I was a boy. When I agreed to permit my wife to cut her long hair, why did it have to be me who fell on the bed and cried?

I'm thinking of getting a face lift. Pants too. There are freckles on the back of my hands - in winter. I never forget a face, and never remember a name. All other drivers are maniacs. My nose is getting bigger and my lips are thinner.

On the phone, a busy signal irritates me. I do not envy young men with mountainous muscles; I just wish they'd play in other neighborhoods. My mother's been dead many years, but her cooking seems to have improved.

Something new has been added to slumber - the bathroom. It is distressing to listen to an elderly man speak, and find that he remembers everything I do, and nothing more. Young girls who fall in love should, in my estimation, be placed in institutions.

Pedestrians have only one right - to be killed. At what point did music composers stop writing melodies? Why is sex more important as it becomes less important? When Howard Hughes died, I said, "My God, such a young fella!"

The price I once paid for a new house, $5,990, I now pay for a car. I have no trouble putting trousers on, if I can lean against a chest of drawers. I sit in the shower because it's comfortable. No matter where it hurts, my wife has a pill for it.

I used to step over the sleeping dog with ease; now, on my approach, he runs for his life. My veins look like the back roads in the Catskills. My pot belly is here for the duration.

My head gets younger and younger - a few more years and it will be childish. Who's nervous? One eye is now stronger than the other, but that's true of everything that comes in twos. My penmanship is now uphill and partially indecipherable.

I laugh at jokes I don't understand' When I read articles about lung cancer, I smoke more. There are two types of politicians I never trust - the dishonest ones and the honest ones. Shaving is a bore.

On the other hand, trimming toe nails is an adventure. What brings on a charley horse in the middle of the night? My dreams are of Clara Bow and Marlene Dietrich, in black and white of course. These days, all insurance premiums are paid ahead of time.

I hope never to get a letter, even a nice one, from Social Security. The birthday cards from my sister Adele (the last of the flappers) now close with, "God bless you and keep you well." Young fellows who were reporters with me are now fat, loathsome presidents of corporations.

Bellboys smile and say, "Let me carry that suitcase, ·

Dad." After two drinks, I refuse to shut up. I used to chastise my children; I can't bear it when they chastise theirs.

Youngsters are now growing up twice as fast as they used to. I'm not old, but I am convinced that there are four ages of man: Birth, youth, maturity, and "God you look great!"...

Wrong Issues by Carter Foes?

Nice guys, said Leo Durocher when he was snarling at umpires, finish last. Well, what do you make of Jimmy Carter, the bicuspid kid from Georgia peanut country?

Jimmy is a nice guy from away back, and he has been running away with the Democratic primaries. He fudges his points, which ought to get him condemned as a trimmer. But he has a way of making his fuzziness about such things as busing and abortion seem rooted in a real concern for his listeners' feelings, and this lets him off a lot of hooks. As a religious man, he exudes compassion. Nobody has really pinned him down on the subject of being charitable with other people's money, but when the time comes for an explanation he will surely find a non-abrasive straddle for that, too.

I can accept the "nice guy" image as a partial explanation for Carter's ballot box appeal. But when he won in Pennsylvania, a supposed "labor" state, there had to be more to it than an expression of religiosity and a dazzling smile. Could it be that Carter got 37 per cent of the Pennsylvania presidential preference vote as compared to Scoop Jackson's 25 per cent and Mo Udall's 19 per cent all on his own? Isn't it a more likely explanation that Jackson and Udall picked the wrong issues on which to go to the public?

Jackson, for example, let it be known that he was AFL-CIO boss George Meany's buddy-buddy, a ferocious opponent of right-to-work laws and an enemy of "runaway" industrialists who were closing their factories in the North in order to avail themselves of cheap labor in the South.

There is no doubt that the union bosses are against state right-to-work laws and would welcome labor contracts that would be uniform from the mill towns of New Hampshire to the bayous of Louisiana. But in poll after poll the rank and file of labor has shown that it is no great enemy of voluntary unionism.

As for the "runaway" factory argument in Pennsylvania, it just doesn't make much sense. Pennsylvania is steel country, and you just don't pick up steel plants and transplant them to South Carolina or Mississippi, where there is no coking coal and the rail and road distance to Detroit's automobile factories would make the shipment of raw steel extremely expensive.

The plain fact is that, outside of the Philadelphia area, Scoop Jackson's labor dependency failed him. A more puzzling matter is where the non-black "ethnics" went. Jackson's anti-Soviet stand should have commended him to all the Pennsylvania descendants of East European minorities. No doubt "ethnic" support accounted for at least some of the Jackson vote, but foreign policy apparently was less of an issue in Pennsylvania than in North Carolina, where Reagan beat Jerry Ford by some last minute denunciations of the Kissinger be-kind-to-Russia syndrome.

Could the Pennsylvania primary be taken as the latest bit of proof that there is no "labor" vote as such in the America of 1976? Jimmy Carter, outside of his rather tepid statement that he would not veto a Federal law designed to prohibit state right-to-work laws, has not kowtowed to the official labor hierarchies. His response to Jackson's perfervid chastisement of the South for "stealing" factories from the North was commonsensical.

The fact is that much of the plant building in the South has not been at the expense of the North; it has been a simple matter of national companies expanding their operations to take advantage of population growth in the "southern rim" states.

Without taking anything away from Carter as a personality-plus kid, it could be that he is winning primaries by default. Most of the country is out of sympathy with Udall-type liberalism. And Henry Jackson is now appealing for votes from "labor" constituencies that are probably just as tired of strikes as average citizens, sick of putting up with recalcitrant teachers or stubborn San Francisco municipal employes.

The President's Crisis

WASHINGTON — Having undergone primary election humiliations not experienced by a President since William Howard Taft in 1912, Gerald R. Ford is being braced with this stern advice: You will lose the nomination unless you place your house in order, starting with the sacking of Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State.

Dr. Kissinger's African safari, blamed for transforming defeat into catastrophe in Texas, has expanded the dump-Kissinger chorus into a howling mob. Party leaders are also calling for pro-Ford campaigning instead of anti-Reagan counterpunching, which hit counterproductive bottom with demands for release of Reagan's 1975 tax returns. Therefore, these politicians want an experienced wise man to travel full time with President Ford to protect him from the noxious gimmicks dredged up by press secretary Ron Nessen, author of the Reagan tax ploy.

But the President may ignore such pleas, particularly if he sticks with his political operatives who publicly and privately attribute Reagan's stunning victories to the . "cross-over" Democrats rather than basic Ford campaign problems. They seemingly fail to comprehend the full gravity of the President's crisis, threatening him with the repudiation of an incumbent President, last suffered by Chester Arthur, if the contagion of primary defeats spreads.

That contagion began with the May Day massacre in Texas, a many-sided disaster for Mr. Ford. The landslide generated not only an estimated 10 per cent vote turnaround in Indiana which led to Mr. Ford's stunning upset there but also brought his lavishly financed campaign to virtual bankruptcy. On the road to defeat, Mr. Ford's agents engaged in profligate spending of nearly $1 million (four times Reagan's spending) in Texas. The result is not only job layoffs at the Ford campaign committee here but a parity of poverty between the Reagan and Ford campaigns.

Perhaps the most critical aspect of Texas, however, was the point of no-return for Henry Kissinger. His championship of black majority rule in Rhodesia is blamed for the magnitude of Reagan's win by Ford partisans who are publicly describing the Ford-Kissinger relationship in extraordinarily blunt terms. An example is Rep. Ed Derwinski, a consevative Republican and Ford delegate from Illinois.

"You don't go down to Africa and promise away the federal treasury four days before the Texas primary," Derwinski told us. "I think the President is a captive of Henry K. The subordinate is controlling his chief." Derwinski months ago urged Mr. Ford to fire Kissinger, but that idea is generating new disciples — such as conservative Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, once an ardent Kissinger fan, but also including some moderates.

Besides a new Secretary of State, Mr. Ford is being pressed to name a cool head to travel with him and provide instant wisdom of the kind given Reagan by Dr. Martin Anderson. That became clear the day before the Indiana primary when Nessen talked the President into demanding that Reagan release his 1975 income tax returns. When Reagan released the gross figures but not the actual returns, Nessen moralized that Reagan had not learned the lessons of Watergate.

That helped not at all in Indiana but generated instant outrage at the Treasury, where Secretary William Simon — a steadfast Ford loyalist — sent word to the White House that Reagan's personal income tax is nobody's business but his own. Other Republican politicians were appalled that the President had joined in county-level politicking.

Nessen's ploy was but a particularly maladroit aspect . of the Ford campaign's dominant theme: undermine Reagan. In the wake of last Tuesday's triple defeat, pro-Ford Republican politicians outside his campaign organization feel he must try to forget about Reagan and concentrate on positive issues.

Whether Mr. Ford will take any of this advice, beginning with the easing-out of Dr. Kissinger, is by no means certain. Far more than the public generally realizes, the President is strong-minded to the point of stubbornness — as is reflected by a strange incident while campaigning in Indiana last weekend.

Winding up his Hoosier campaign, Mr. Ford asked an Indiana Republican Congressman, Rep. John Myers, for helpful hints. Myers had two: first, don't mention the Panama Canal; second, stop promising to keep Kissinger at the State Department. The President nodded, then did exactly the opposite on both points at his next stop.

Jerry Ford's ability to take advice may become critical over the next three weeks when he could well lose eight out of 10 primaries. Such losses conceivably could cost him the nomination, not in terms of delegates but in shredded prestige.

Accordingly, the President's supporters who regard Reagan's nomination as a limitless disaster are frantic that Ford heed their counsel, not to move right but to assume the presidential pedestal and shift attention to the booming economy. He cannot do that by applauding Henry Kissinger, defending the dictator of Panama and thrashing about with innuendo about Reagan's taxes.

A Tangential Bosom Maybe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The art world abounds in mysteries. Three that I have personally investigated are:

1. What was Mona Lisa smiling at?
2. What was Whistler's Mother staring at?
3. Which posed first, the Naked Maja or the Clothed Maja?

Opportunities to study these questions at first hand came about when the countries that own the paintings generously loaned them to the National Gallery of Art for special showings to American audiences.

At the time of the Mona Lisa exhibit in 1963, the prevailing theory among art critics was that her enigmatic smile was prompted by something the artist, Leonardo da Vinci, had said.

After viewing the portrait close up, and comparing it with several photographs I had taken, I was able to establish, at least to my satisfaction, that what Leonardo said was: "Say 'cheese.'"

As for Whistler's Mother, which came here the following year, my research indicated there were only two occasions when a matron's eyes become fixed in the type of glassy stare seen in this painting.

One is when she is watching television and the other is when she is half snockered on cooking sherry.

Television not having been invented at the time Mrs. Whistler posed for her son, the conclusion was that she must have been nipping a bit that day.

This brings us to the Naked Maja, which has arrived from Spain for a loan exhibition along with its companion piece, the Clothed Maja.

One thing is certain, contrary to what was once suspected. The sitter for these famous paintings was not the Duchess of Alba, girl friend of the artist, Francisco Goya.

Or at least she didn't pose for the part above the neck.

There is a portrait of the Duchess hanging in New York and the countenance seen thereon does not match the visage of Goya's Majas.

It's possible, of course, that Goya painted the Duchess from the neck down and then gave her another woman's face.

In any event, most art experts surmise that Goya painted the nude version first. But I'm convinced it was the other way around.

I base that conclusion on the Naked Maja's bosom. She has — how shall it put this? — a tangential bust. By which I mean that the two sides tend to veer off in opposite directions.

I have seen a lot of Playboy centerfolds in my time and I've never seen anything quite like that.

It therefore is my theory that Goya never saw the Naked Maja undressed. By which I mean that she posed fully clothed and Goya did the nude version from imagination. Which was somewhat faulty.

Admittedly, this is not as brilliant a deduction as my art detective work on the Mona Lisa and Whistler's Mother. But if it adds anything to the cultural enrichment of those viewing the Goya exhibit, I shall feel well paid.

CHECKING THE CHART for their flight in the All Women's International Air Race's Bicentennial Historical Flight between Quebec City Airport in Canada and Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport in the U.S., are Gertrude Felsen, right, pilot, and Nancy Cooper Moore, center, co-pilot. Ms. Moore is an instructor for Carroll Air Service at Kingston-Ulster Airport. Looking on is Joan Cramer of Wallace's who is supplying the outfits the women will be wearing in the derby.

Local Women in Angel Derby

KINGSTON— Two area residents will be among the 118 women pilots from 24 states and Canada who will fly this year's 26th Angel Derby, the world's most unique speed race. They are Gertrude Felsen, pilot, and Nancy Cooper Moore, co-pilot.

Eight historical cities are included on the unprecedented Bicentennial flight which originates in Quebec City, Canada, May 27 and terminates in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., May 29.

The intrepid angels will land for refueling in Bedford, Mass., between Lexington and Concord; Schenectady, near Saratoga Springs; Wilmington, Del., after passing Valley Forge; Richmond, Va., where Patrick Henry made his "give me liberty or give me death" speech; Wilmington, N.C., site of the first open armed resistance to the Stamp Act; Savannah, Ga., where the British renewed their attack on the South; St. Augustine, Fla., an important military post since the city was founded; to a finish line at Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport.

The Angel Derby which is the only international air race in the world today is sponsored this year by the City of Fort Lauderdale.

More than $9,000 will be awarded to the top six finalists. To be eligible to race in the derby, women pilots must have flying experience in excess of that required for a commercial certificate. The race will emphasize pilot ability and not the power produced by the airplane engine.

The All Women International Air Derby is organized by a small group of volunteer women pilots in Fort Lauderdale.

DONNA FARGO is one of many headliners scheduled to perform at the 1976 Saratoga Fair at Saratoga Race Course. Ms. Fargo will appear Sunday, June 27, at two free grandstand performances set for 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. The Fair runs from June 25 to July 4.

JOHNNY CASH will make an appearance at the 1976 Saratoga Fair on Monday, June 28. In addition to 16,000 free grandstand seats for each performance, 2,500 reserve grandstand seats are available.

Whole New Concept for Saratoga Fair

SARATOGA SPRINGS— If you're a fair-going buff but get annoyed about the dust and dirt, the odor of livestock, the over-crowded conditions, and the concessionaires who camp on the grounds and bump into you coming and going with toothbrush in hand and towel slung over the shoulder, then the 1976 Saratoga Fair promises to be tailored to your taste. There's a whole new concept. This year's 10-day event has been planned so that the problems are eliminated, but the features improved.

For the first time, the Saratoga Fair is being sponsored by the local residents themselves. A non-profit organization, Saratoga Fair, Inc., is comprised of Saratoga Springs citizens, both young and old, who have purchased shares in the fair for the nominal amount of $50. These share-owners have a vested interest and want the beautiful Saratoga Race Course to look just as handsome AFTER the 300,000 fairgoers visit it, as it did before.

This year thers will be no trailers or trucks allowed on the grounds. All animal exhibits except for the petting zoo have been eliminated. Sprinkler systems will be operated to keep dust to a minimum. Whereas the grounds in former years were occupied 24-hours a day throughout the 10-day period, this year at 12 each night, a clean-up crew will ready the course for the following day.

There will be no cramped midway. Reithoffer, Inc., of Pompano Beach, Fla., a family-operated company which owns and operates more than 100 shows and spectacular rides and is a highly respected organization in fair circles, will provide more than 40 major rides, three "spectacular super rides," 80 games and several side shows. A major name in midways, it was organized in 1898.

Only quality concessionaires have been allotted space at this year's fair. Everything one expects to find at a fair will be there, but in a limited number.

Lots of free, star-studded entertainment is slated. On opening day, June 25, it's The Fifth Dimension; June 26, Anson Williams; June 27, Donna Fargo; June 28, Johnny Cash; June 29, Rene Simard; June 30, Up With People; July 1, Ray Stevens; July 2, Tanya Tucker; July 3, Pat Boone and Family; July 4, Charlie Rich and the Bicentennial fireworks display, one of the biggest in the east.

A ticket to the Saratoga Fair promises to be one of the bargains of the year, entitling visitors to view the exhibits, attend the free grandstand shows and amuse themselves on the grounds from 10 a.m. until midnight ... all for the price of one admission. Prices for rides will be in line with last year's.

A local venture, reserved seats are being handled by the Youth Commission; clean-up by local residents, as well as parking attendants. Experienced ushers will be supplied by Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

The 1976 Saratoga Fair promises to be first-rate and should satisfy the most critical tastes.

Woman's Club Plans Anniversary Gala

SAUGERTIES — A gala tenth year anniversary celebration will be held May 13 by the Woman's Club of Saugerties at a dinner to be held at the Colonade Restaurant, Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston. Charter members and past presidents will be honored, and accomplishments of the organization during its ten year history will be reviewed.

Officers for the 1976-77 year will be installed by Mrs. Bernice Rusczyk, Ulster County chairperson of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs. Those to be installed are president, Mrs. Frances Bailey; vice president, Mrs. Mary Finger; secretary, Mrs. Audrey Krommenhoek, and treasurer, Mrs. Martha Almquist.

During the dinner Fashion-time Models will present a fashion show featuring clothes from Vivian's, The Buttonhole, Rose's Half-Size Shop, Lady Bug, Silks and Tweeds, and Wallace's. Clothing in various price ranges for people of all ages will be modeled.

The Woman's Club was organized in 1966 especially for the mutual benefit of women and for community service. Since then, the organization has engaged in many projects such as sponsoring the annual art show at the Mum Festivals, providing scholarships for advanced education, starting the drive to restore the Old Grist Mill, arranging for the demolition of the burned-out Exquisite Form Industries building, sponsoring Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 152, providing for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas, collecting food and clothing for migrant workers, presenting free Children's Theater programs, decorating vacant stores at Christmas time, sponsoring trips to museums in New York City, providing Christmas decorations at the Children's Rehabilitation Center, collecting books for military personnel and prisoners, promoting poster contests for worthwhile causes, aiding handicapped children through obtaining Betty Crocker coupons, co-sponsoring tours of homes, starting a movement for a community swimming pool, and participating in Olde Timers' Days.

In general meetings and special department meetings the Woman's Club has provided varied programs concerning the arts, handicrafts, flower arranging, consumer education, parapsychology, detection of cancer, interior decorating, local history, music, self improvement, care of the home, travel and environmental protection. The club has also sponsored record hops for teenagers, dinner dances, Las Vegas nights, luncheons and fashion shows.

A prime ribs of beef dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. on May 13 at the Governor Clinton Hotel preceded by a social hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dinner reservations should be made with Mrs. Gerry Caughell.

Community Leaders Set for Walkathon

KINGSTON — May 22 is the big day for the Zonta Walkathon. Beginning at 9:30 a.m., rain or shine, registered walkers will don comfortable footwear and begin their march from Ulster Shopping Plaza to Kingston Plaza in an effort to raise funds for the start of a Kidney Foundation in conjunction with the new Renal Dialysis Unit to be placed at Kingston Hospital in the near future. The Foundation will assure that no one who needs the use of the life-saving kidney machine will be unable to use it due to lack of funds. Anyone who has ever needed the machine which takes the place of a normal kidney, or has been close to a family member or friend in such need, is well aware of the urgency and community need for such a project.

Many community leaders are taking an active role in the Walkathon, including Len Cane, Maurice Hinchey, and Miss Ulster County. Announced as Grand Marshall for the Walkathon is Joel Carruthers, noted TV personality and star of "Somerset," NBC's top-rated daytime serial.

Saugerties merchant, Bobbie Decker, and her husband Morrow, who have often performed their "clown" act, will be in full regalia for the walk, along with 20 members of the Saugerties Stockaders in colonial costume, under the direction of Pat Larue.

Providing musical accompaniment for the walkers will be many members of the Kingston Musicians' Union, arranged by Harry Castiglione, president; the Junior Group of the Kingston Indians; and the well-known duo of Pete Matthews and Tony Pizzarelli.

Waiting to welcome walkers to their destination at Kingston Plaza, will be the popular "Papa Bear," Ed Kerchner, and his accordion. A large tent will be set up to welcome 'home' the walkers, with refreshments provided by Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonald's and Dunkin' Donuts. A & W Root Beer will distribute tickets for refreshments as walkers pass their establishment.

Many walkers are still needed. Ms. Mickey Duncan, co-chairperson of the event and incoming Zonta president for the coming year, will answer any questions concerning the Walkathon at her home at Hidden Valley. Kay Sullivan of Heritage Savings Bank may also be contacted for information.

Beverlee Mulligan, transportation chairperson, announced that walkers will be given bus transportation from Kingston Plaza back to the Ulster Shopping Plaza at the close of the walk.

Outright donations to the Walkathon may be sent to: UPO Box 143, Kingston.

Ms. Sullivan added that the Renal Dialysis Unit at Kingston Hospital would provide treatment for patients in Ulster, Sullivan, Greene and Delaware Counties. The Center will house a five-unit Chronic Chemodialysis Center, and statistics show that an increase of one new patient can be expected annually for each 16,000 people.

IT'S RONDOUT RONNIE! No, it's Al Teetsel of Rondout National Bank. Either way, he'll be one of the big attractions at the Zonta Walkathon Saturday morning, May 22. Rondout Ronnie says, "C'mon... walk along!"

BIRTHDAY GIRL, Nancie Seaman will be 105 on Thursday. On that special night she will be attending the races at Monticello Raceway where a party will be held to celebrate the momentous occasion. A native of Grahamsville, Nancie is shown here in her room at Liberty Loomis Hospital at Liberty.

Taking in the Track at 105

MONTICELLO — The year was 1871. Bismark was the strong man in Europe, Ulysses S. Grant occupied the White House, Goldsmith Maid was the undisputed Queen of the trotting world as she broke Dexter's record by going a mile in 2:17 and on a farm in the Village of Grahamsville, in the Northeastern corner of Sullivan County, a girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Tillson whom they named Nancie.

Thursday, May 13 will mark the beginning of the 105th year since Nancie first came into this world. To celebrate that momentous occasion she will — for the first time in her life — attend the races at Monticello Raceway and make a bet or two.

"I always drove a horse and carriage before I was married and after, too," said Nancie, indicating she still had an eye for horse flesh. "Maybe they ought to let me drive one around the track on my birthday."

The years have etched mosaic of character and humanity into Nancie's face. She is a tiny, frail woman but she is still ambulatory and has a mind that is trigger sharp and aware of everything that goes on around her. Because of her great age and the fact that she has outlived almost all her blood relatives, she has become a permanent resident of Liberty Loomis Hospital, Liberty, N.Y., where she is under the loving care of nurses.

Despite her years, Nancie likes to celebrate her special day by doing something she's never done before. Last year she went for her first helicopter ride. This year it will be attending the races.

Asked by her nurses what she wanted most on her birthday this year, Nancie thought about it for a moment and then declared with a twinkle in her eye: "A man'."

The remark caused great hilarity among the nurses. Nancie also laughed and added: "I was only foolin'."

The customary question asked of everyone who has reached a great age is: "To what do you owe your great longevity?"

"Don't really know," Nancie answered. "I didn't plan it this way. Never smoked or drank to amount to much. Just happened, that's all."

Nancie married Charles Seaman, a Grahamsville farmer in 1903. They had no children and she has been widowed many years now. She last worked when she was a mere 100, pumping gas at a gas station. She then decided she had pumped enough gas in her lifetime and retired.

On her 105th birthday she will be picked up by chauffeured limousine on Thursday evening and driven to Monticello Raceway. A birthday party will follow that will include dinner with friends of her choice, champagne and a huge birthday cake. In addition, a race will be named in her honor and the racetrack crowd will be asked to sing "Happy Birthday" to her.

"Don't know what all the fuss is about," Nancie said.

Dear Abby

'Equality' Depends On Marital Status?

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who thinks women have equal rights in this country is crazy.

If a man's trousers are too tight, he's just put on a little weight. (If a woman's skirt is too tight, she's trying to be sexy.)

If a man stands on a street corner, he's getting some fresh air. (If a woman stands on a corner, she's looking to be picked up.)

If a man has one drink too many, he's "feeling good." (If a woman has one drink too many, she's a lush.)

If a man has a night out with the boys, he's put in a hard day at work and needs to "relax." (If a woman has a night out with the girls, she's up to no good and should stay home with her family.)

If a man cheats om his wife, people say he's probably married to a cold fish and he's only human. (If a woman cheats, she's a tramp.)

If a kid turns out good, he's a chip off the old block. (If he turns out bad, his mother did the rotten job raising him.)

It's still a man's world!—WANTS EQUALITY

DEAR WANTS: Only if he's single. If he's married, almost everything is in his wife's name.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14, and the oldest of five kids, so I'm the one who has to help my mom with the dishes and housework. I also have to help with the younger kids and I hate it!

When I complain about all the work I have to do around here, my mom gives me this routine about what good "practice" it will be for me in later life.

Abby, please help me! I plan on being a model or an actress, and I don't need all this "practice."—TIRED

DEAR TIRED: That's what YOU think! What do you think happens to all those broken-down models and actresses?

DEAR ABBY: A member of our family was recently in a near fatal accident and naturally we are very much concerned, but our problem is this.

Friends and relatives who mean well have been calling us constantly to find out how he is getting along. Abby, we are half-crazy answering the telephone every few minutes. They all want to know the "details" of the accident, and I am exhausted reliving that nightmare so many times a day!

Also, friends have been phoning the hospital to inquire about the patiemt's condition, and we've been asked by the hospital personnel to instruct them not to call so much.

Abby, please tell your readers that it would help so much if they would send a cheery card to the hospital instead. Then the patient could read the cards at his leisure when he's sufficiently recovered and keep them as souvenirs if he so desires.—GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your letter is well worth the space in this column. Readers—please?

Card and Game Party at Red Hook

RED HOOK— Northern Dutchess Hospital Mothers' Club will hold a card and game party May 11 at 8 p.m. in the Parish House of Christ Episcopal Church, 50 South Broadway, Red Hook. Awards will be presented and refreshments served. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Wally Kokkila or Dan Kilpatrick of Rhinebeck.

Mothers' Club activities are held to raise funds to provide needed equipment for maternity and pediatric departments of Northern Dutchess Hospital. Upcoming fund raising projects include a May 21-22 flower and vegetable plants sale of plants grown at Hettling Farmlands; a community flea market at Dutchess County Fairgrounds on June 5 and 6, with Mrs. Joseph Ambrose of Rhinebeck in charge; and the sixth annual Arts and Crafts Show and Sale on September 25 and 26 at Dutchess County Fairgrounds in Rhinebeck. Mothers' Club members also participate in the Rhinebeck Central School pre-kindergarten screening program in May by testing vision and hearing.

Orientation Program Set for Friday

KINGSTON— Miss Susan See, director of the Big Sisters Program of Kingston, has announced that an orientation program will be held Friday, May 14 at 7 p.m. at 277 Fair Street.

Big Sisters organization is a group of women who are concerned about children today, especially the lonely, confused and trouble young girls who need the continued friendship and guidance of someone who cares. Each Big Sister spends time with her little sister, doing things together, learning about each other, sharing fun and friendship and even solving each others problems.

Anyone interested in becoming a Big Sister, or who knows of little sisters to be referred, as well as those interested in learning more about the program are invited to attend the informational meeting.

About the Folks

KINGSTON— William Mohr of 626 Delaware Avenue has returned home from the hospital.

'Crusade for Parents' at Coleman Tonight

KINGSTON— A program called "Crusade for Parents" will be presented this evening at 7:30 o'clock at John A. Coleman School. The crusade is being held to introduce a new program, entitled "Evenings for Parents," developed by Chuck Gallagher, S.J., of Marriage Encounter, and Lyman Coleman of Serendipity, to give good parents a chance to face into their successes and their opportunities, and to share those with others.

"Crusade for Parents" is designed to help parents cope with the pressures society places on them and help them with the difficulties every parent must face in bringing up children.

Parents and religious of all faiths as well as anyone working with or concerned about the family and parent-child relationships are encouraged to attend this special information night.

Topic Announced for AMH Meeting

ROSENDALE— Dr. Dorothy T. Hayes, coordinator of the Student Mental Health Field Work Course at New York State University College at New Paltz, will be guest speaker May 12 at the annual meeting of Ulster County Association for Mental Health, Inc. Social hour is set for 6 p.m., with dinner slated for 7 o'clock, at Williams Lake Hotel. Dr. Hayes' topic will be "Bridging Academic/Community Services."

Paintings, Silk Screen Display

ELLENVILLE— Oil paintings and silk screens by Lorna Massie of Lyonsville will be on exhibit at the Sunshine Gallery in Ellenville through May.

Overdue Miracle

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — More than 3,000 Neapolitans prayed Sunday for the congealed blood of St. Januarius to liquefy, but the faithful believed the overdue miracle apparently had produced its dire consequences days ago.

Tradition has it that when the blood of Naples' patron saint, contained in two glass vials, fails to liquefy on the first Saturday of May, it is a bad omen for the city.

It has been said that the miracle happens within minutes or hours, but this year the blood failed to liquify after eight days. The vials were ordered locked up in the treasury of the city's cathedral until next year.

Many Neapolitans linked the record delay in the liquefaction of the blood to Thursday's killer earthquake in northeast Italy, which was faintly felt in Naples.

It was not the first time the blood failed to liquify with alleged fatal results.

Church records say the plague hit Naples in 1527 and 1528 when the miracle did not occur. Another failure in 1835 was followed by a cholera epidemic.

Death Ride

MONTGOMERY, N.Y. (UPI) — A Montgomery man was killed Saturday when he failed to negotiate a turn while riding a stolen motorcycle, state police said.

Troopers said John Young, 22, was killed instantly when the cyle struck a pile of asphalt and he was thrown from the machine into a utility pole.

Police said the motorcyle was stolen earlier in the day from a nearby shopping center, but they did not implicate Young in the theft.

A friend of Young's, Patsy Jack Derrico, 22 of Newburgh, was arrested and charged with third-degree grand larceny. He was ordered held in lieu of $500 bail in the Orange County jail, officials said.

Young's family told police that Derrico had arrived at Young's home on the motorcyle and offered to let Young testdrive it.

Young lived on Orlando Drive, where the accident occurred.

NBC Strike Could End Saturday

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC technicians and news writers on strike for more than five weeks could be back at work by Saturday if union members ratify a tentative contract agreement.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said the tentative pact was reached Saturday at its offices. Details were not disclosed.

A spokesman for NBC said, "NBC has negotiated an agreement with the union committee which the committee will submit to its members for ratification. The vote is to be completed by Wednesday, May 12, and if it is passed, all union members will return to work by Saturday, May 15."

The strike began April 1, with the conciliation service entering the talks a week later.

Bjorn Borg celebrates with Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Hunt

Borg, Vilas Forgot About Friendship

DALLAS (UPI) — Bjorn Borg and Guillermo Vilas have looked at each other across a tennis net almost every day for the past three years.

Most of the time they merely are getting in some practice.

But Sunday it was for real and with all that money at stake it was quite easy for them to forget they are the best of friends.

At least that is what Borg says and he should know since he forgot about the friendship long enough to dispose of Vilas in four sets and win the biggest prize of his still brief professional career — the World Championship of Tennis.

"It is a tough competition," said the teen-aged Swede in his broken English. "And it is something just to get here. But I am really happy to have won.

"Now I am surely going to try hard to win either Wimbledon or Forest Hills this year. But if I don't I will try again next year."

Borg will probably be around for a lot more than next year since he does not turn 20 until next month. Borg and the 23year-old Vilas represent the wave of the future in tennis.

And since the WCT final was a Borg-Vilas affair, the match, perhaps, was a forerunner of many major championship matches.

Borg's 1-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1 victory did not contain a lot of spectacular tennis, but from the second set on Borg was the steadier of the two and on the slow surface employed for WCT steadiness is critical.

"He missed some shots in the first set," said the downcast Vilas, "and I was hoping he would keep missing them. But he didn't. He didn't miss much at all."

Borg claimed $50,000 with the title and Vilas' runner-up check was worth $20,000.

Borg and Vilas, a native of Argentina, became close friends soon after the Swede hit the pro tennis circuit and because of their similar styles of play — both like to hit topspin shots from the baseline — they soon began to practice together. Now they both have moved to Monte Carlo for tax reasons and they even live in the same apartment building.

"Sure we joke beforehand," said Vilas. "But when we are on the court there is a match to play. Why is it that people think that people can't be friends and still play tennis against each other?"

Borg made several errors in the opening set and said he simply was not patient enough.

"I tried to come to the net in the first set and he hit too many passing shots," said Borg. "I had to start waiting for a really short ball before I came in.

"Guillermo started out playing really well. I said to myself that 'if he keeps playing like that I will be gone in three sets.' But he did not play as well the rest of the match."

Lapointe Talks, Shoots Habs to Win

Canadiens mob Guy Lapointe as Wayne Stephenson hangs his head

MONTREAL (UPI) — In hockey's most hallowed shrine, where a certain mystique of past glory hangs heavy, it's not uncommon for Montreal players of succeeding generations to be pushed forward by divine inspiration.

But there was nothing supernatural about the guiding force at the Forum Sunday night. No voices from the past, no mystical visions. All it took was a few shouted words in Gallic by defenseman Guy Lapointe.

The result was a comeback 4-3 victory for Montreal over the Philadelphia Flyers in the opening game of their Stanley Cup title series, one that the Canadiens felt they were lucky to get after falling behind 2-0.

There were only two minutes left when Lapointe talked his team to victory—and then delivered the decisive blow himself.

"When I was sitting on the bench before going out on the ice," he explained, "I said to the players, 'Look, we don't want to have any overtime. Let's go out there and score a goal right now.'"

Just after he stepped on the ice, Lapointe opened his mouth again. As flashy forward Steve Shutt picks up the story:

"I was fighting with (Flyer Tom) Bladon for the puck. It was going back and forth between us. Then I heard a voice. I didn't even know who it was. I was just hoping it was one of my players. I looked up and there was Guy Lapointe and he had the puck on his stick. I said to myself, 'Gee, what a great play I made.'"

It turned into an even greater play when Lapointe sent the puck into the far corner of the net past goalie Wayne Stephenson. It put the Canadiens ahead for the first time with only 1:22 left and proved to be the winner.

"Stephenson didn't give me much room before I took the shot," said Lapointe, "but I knew I got good wood on it."

The late fireworks put a damper on the continuing individual heroics of Flyer Reggie Leach, who set two NHL playoff records when he scored after only 21 seconds old. It was Leach's 16th goal in 13 playoff games this season, surpassing the mark of 15 set by Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer in 17 games three years ago.

Also, Leach now has scored at least once in his last 10 games, extending his own record, and with a total of 77 goals, including 61 in the regular season, he is only two shy of the record set by Phil Esposito with Boston in 1970-71. When Ross Lonsberry scored at 13:22, the Flyers had a 2-0 lead that seemed even bigger because of Montreal's lackluster, disorganized play.

"We started off slow against the Islanders (in the semifinals) and got into trouble and now we started off slow against the Flyers and got into trouble," Shutt said. "I don't know why we wait for the other team to score the first goal. We were lucky to come back from two goals down. That's a no-no in playoff hockey. It's just a lack of concentration on our part."

In a span of 2:26 early in the second period, Montreal got both goals back on shots by Jim Roberts and Larry Robinson. The Flyers once again took the lead at 3-2 on a power play goal by Larry Goodenough at 5:17 of the third period but Jacques Lemaire got that one back less than five minutes later.

"On the road, we wouldn't have done so well if we fell behind like that," said Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman. "In Philadelphia, it would be hard to do a job like that. But being behind 2-0 just made my team work harder. You don't like to fall behind and we won't do it again if we can help it."

Flyer Coach Fred Shero said that he might replace Stephenson in Tuesday night's second game with Bernie Parent, the playoff MVP the last two years when Philadelphia won the Stanley Cup. Parent has not been as effective as usual in limited action this season following neck surgery.

"I haven't made up my mind as yet," Shero said. "In my opinion, they are both equal."

Attles Knows Why Suns Are Challenging

By U P I

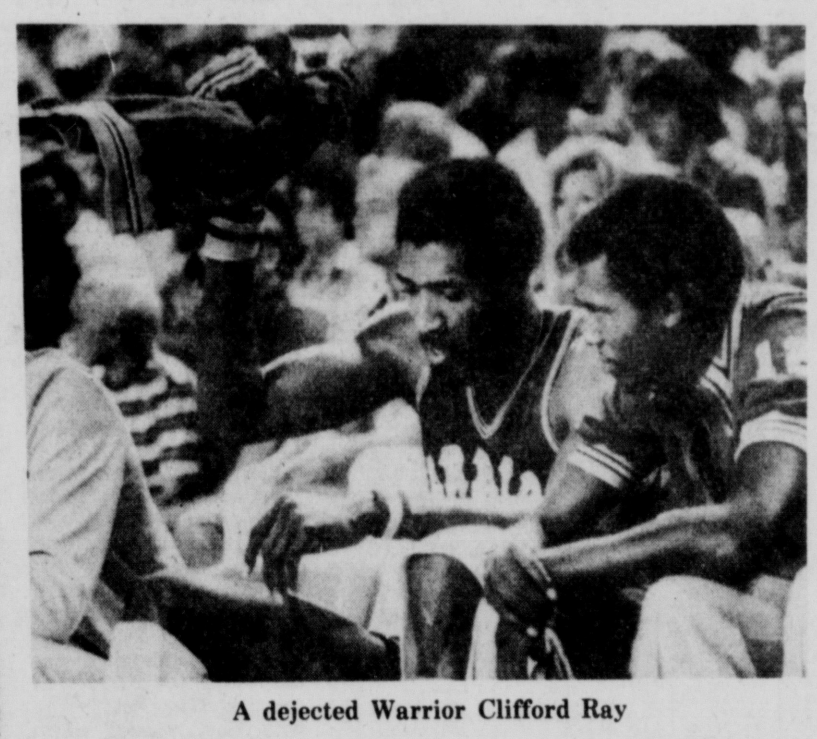
If anyone can understand why the Phoenix Suns are threatening to upset defending NBA champion Golden State in the Western Conference playoff finals, it's Warriors coach Al Attles.

"We should have had it won, both in regulation and the first overtime, but they never gave up," Attles said after the Suns defeated the Warriors 133-129 in double overtime Sunday to tie the best of seven series at 2-2.

Attles knows that tenacity and hustle more often than not beats sheer talent. He proved it last year when his "no name" Warriors swept by the Washington Bullets to take the title and he proved it again this year when his team blitzed through the regular season, often making the competition look like stone pillars.

Golden State has earned the recognition it has received as a finely tuned basketball machine. The Warriors are quick, aggressive and well-drilled. But now they are also recognized as deep in talent. Rick Barry was always a superstar. Guard Phil Smith is being considered another Jerry West, Jamaal Wilkes is, as ever, smooth as silk, reserve forward Derrek Dickey can be explosive and center Clifford Ray gives nothing away under the boards.

Phoenix, however, is a team composed of a couple of promising rookies (Alvan Adams and Ricky Sobers) and several solid and scrappy veterans (Dick Van Arsdale, Gar Heard, Paul Westphal and Keith Erickson). None would be considered for All-NBA but with determination and luck, the Suns can run with anyone in any game.



A dejected Warrior Clifford Ray

Erickson, playing for his fourth team in 11th season, has always had a fine outside shot but has never averaged 15 points. In the second overtime Sunday, he poured in eight points and virtually whipped the Warriors by himself.

Erickson set the stage for his heroics by hitting a 20-foot jumper with two seconds left in regulation to tie the score 112112. That shot came after Dickey missed one of two free throws with eight seconds left, blowing a chance to give the Warriors a three-point margin.

In the first overtime, the Warriors led by four with 41 seconds left but Sobers hit a jumper with 34 seconds to go and two free throws at the :02 mark to again tie the score.

Golden State put in the first two field goals of the second overtime but Phoenix hit the next 14 points, eight by Erickson.

"When we got up by six points, I began feeling confident we could win," said Erickson, who had a team high of 28 points. "They were getting kind of raggedy and we were playing under control at that time."

Barry was hampered by fouls but still finished with 26. Smith had 30 points. Barry played only eight minutes in the first half and scored just four points, and finally fouled out with 1:37 left in the second regulation and Phoenix ahead by six..

"That definitely hurt us," Attles said. "Although Phoenix had the momentum, we still would have had a chance with Barry's shooting."

Heard scored 22 points and Van Arsdale 20 for the Suns. Wilkes had 24 for Golden State.

The series shifts back to Oakland for the fifth game Wednesday night.

Boston took a 2-0 lead over Cleveland in the Eastern Conference finals with a 94-89 triumph Sunday. The next two games are scheduled for the Cavaliers' home court Tuesday and Friday night.

Jo Jo White led Boston with 24 points with John Havlicek added 20. Dave Cowens had eight of his 15 points in the final period.

Cleveland led 71-68 after three periods but the Celtics broke the game open with their fast break attack in the last quarter. The Cavs were hurt when center Nate Thurmond fouled out with 7:36 to play.

Hayes Made Sure He Didn't Choke

DALLAS (UPI) — Mark Hayes and Don Bies each talked about the same subject Sunday, delicately, and from a different approach.

Hayes was the first to use the word — "choke."

"I think I had more pressure on me Saturday," said Hayes, whose steady two-under-par 69 Sunday gave him a two-stroke victory over Bies in the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic. It was Hayes' first win during a 2½ year pro career.

"You choke when you aren't hitting the ball well and I wasn't hitting it well yesterday. I was hitting it well today," said Hayes, who finished dead last in the 1975 Nelson.

The fact Hayes was a non-winner brought up the subject of ppessure. Bies indicated he had believed Hayes would not play boldly.

"I thought if I could shoot a 68 or 69, that I would win," said Bies, who started the day three strokes behind Hayes and shot his 68. "I really didn't think Mark would break par."

During the night, Hayes didn't either.

"I want to come from behind the next time to win," he said. "I couldn't sleep, I couldn't eat. Maybe the next one will be easier."

But his difficulties, he said, went beyond the physical. He had said he was not swinging well Saturday and that carried over to the practice tee Sunday morning.

"I was kind of desperate," he said. "I was searching around for something that would work. Then Larry Nelson told me to slow my swing down; slow everything down."

"I really needed for him to tell me that. I started swinging slow and I started hitting them. Out on the course, I was trying to walk as slow as Don January and I did."

Though Bies cut Hayes' lead to two strokes at the end, the only real competition on the final holes was for second place between Bies and Masters' champion Ray Floyd.

Both had made the turn at seven under and picked up an early second nine birdie. But then Floyd fell apart.

He bogeyed Nos. 13 and 14 while Bies birdied No. 15 and that contest was over.

Floyd finished two back at seven under.

Hale Irwin took fourth place at six under with a final round 68, and Texas favorite Ben Crenshaw held fifth place with a final round 69 at five under.

Next at four under were Larry Nelson and Dave Stockton.

Jack Nicklaus, who said his three under position Saturday was within reach of Hayes, who at that time was nine under, could never gain control of his round.

He eagled No. 15, but bogeyed 17 and finished at three under.

Lee Trevino and Tom Kite tied at two under, while Arnold Palmer and defending champion Tommy Watson finished at four over.

Hayes started in ragged fashion, hitting what he called three "shaky" shots on the par-4 opening hole. He made his par there.

"I hit a good drive on No. 2 and I hit it solid from then on," he said. "I really felt confident after No. 4 when I hit that (15-foot) putt for par."

"I felt I had the tournament in the bag after No. 17 when I two putted from 35-feet. On that last hole, I was just trying to get that first putt down into two-putt range. After I hit it, I knew I could two putt from two feet uphill."

Sally Wasn't Ready When Dream Came True

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Sally Little has spent a lot of time dreaming about her first pro golf victory, but when it happened she wasn't ready for it.

Then again, how many people have their dreams come true?

Little did, when she blasted a 75-foot bunker shot into the 18th hole Sunday for the birdie that gave her a one-stroke victory over Jan Stephenson in the inaugural Women's International tournament.

"I'm in a state of shock," she said, and no one could blame her.

Over the final six holes, Little managed to lose the lead she had held alone for two and a half days, caught up and went ahead again—and then seemed headed for disaster.

Needing par on the final two holes to win, she bogeyed 17, then drove into the rough on 18 and dumped her approach shot into the sand.

"I was nervous," admitted Little, a South African protege of Gary Player. "I was scared to death. Your first opportunity to win a tournament—it's scary. I think everyone is scared in that situation."

All she hoped to do was scramble from the bunker, salvage par, and force a playoff.

Instead, she blasted out 12 feet short of the hole and watched the ball take one bounce and roll in.

"I couldn't believe it," Little said. "That's a dream that few golfers go through."

One who did was Doug Ford, who holed from a bunker in a similar situation to beat Sam Snead for the Masters title in 1957. It's the Masters that the Women's International wants to copy for the girls and Sunday's theatrical finish gave the new tournament instant tradition.

The winning birdie gave Little a final round 70, two under par, and combined with her previous 71-69-71 for a 281 total. Stephenson finished at 70-282, and no one else was close.

In many ways, the top two are remarkably similar. Both are former LPGA rookies-ofthe-year, both are foreigners (Little, from South Africa, now lives in Dallas; Stephenson, from Australia, lives in Palm Springs), both are 24 years old, both are blue-eyed blondes, and both are among the most attractive players on the tour.

But that's where it ends. Stephenson is the No. 2 money winner this year with $38,870 and two victories and Little is a career struggler, 0-for-104 before breaking through Sunday. The only other time she led a tournament this year, at Naples, Fla., with an opening 67, Little finished 77-80--and Stephenson won.

Stephenson figured two short putts cost her Sunday. She missed from 18 inches at No. 4 and from four and a half feet at 17. "That one made me so mad," she said. "I knew that was the winning putt."

Women's Open champion Sandra Palmer shared third at 287 with Betty Burfeindt. Amy Alcott finished at 288, Murle Breer at 289 and JoAnne Carner was at 290.

Janet Still Trying to Get on Indy Track

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — If the third time proves a charm, Janet Guthrie may get on the track today at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in her efforts to pass the rookie test for the world's richest automobile race.

Both Saturday and Sunday Guthrie, the first woman ever nominated to drive in the May 30 Indianapolis "500," was left on the sidelines despite encouragement of thousands of race fans as her car developed problems during shakedown runs.

Until recently, women were not even allowed into the pits around the track in the belief that they were bad luck, and some oldtimers may have taken revengeful delight in her difficulties, which may point to problems during the next two weekends of qualifications for the $1 million classic.

Saturday the Rolla Veollstedt entry required extensive repairs to the clutch that consumed most of the day, then when teammate Dick Simon took it out for a shakedown run, it developed an oil line leak that sent it back to the garage until after the 2½-mile oval was closed for the day.

Sunday, Simon again was testing the car when a piston burned, forcing the crew to tear down the engine before it could be readied in time for Simon to take a few laps at moderate speed before the first weekend of practice ended.

However, there was little moderation being shown in speeds turned in by the "hotdogs" Sunday, led by former winners Johnny Rutherford and A.J. Foyt, after cheif steward Tom Binford lifted the 180 mile per hour speed limit.

Rutherford, the 1974 champion, was clocked at 187.696 m.p.h. while three-time winner Foyt, who will be seeking his third straight pole position in next weekend's qualfications, was only slightly slower at 187.266.

Gordon Johncock, who won the rain-plagued and shortened 1973 race, clocked 184.653. Mario Andretti, Wally Dallenbach and Tom Sneva, who has recovered from a spectacular crash during last year's race, were also clocked around 184.

Weather conditions both Saturday and Sunday were nearly ideal, with sunny skies and temperatures in the upper 60s and low 70s while the track was open, and more of the same was expected today, producing a very crowded field.

Bobby Olivero of Lakewood, Calif., made track history Saturday as he became the first rookie ever to complete all of his tests on the opening day. Spike Gehlhasen of Jasper, Ind., became the second rookie to pass his driver's test Sunday. Billy Scott of San Bernardino, Calif., another rookie who passed his tests last year but failed to qualify for the race, passed his refresher tests.

Redman Didn't Miss Racing's 'Big Boys'

LONG POND, Pa. (UPI) — Brian Redman said he doesn't think racing in the Indianapolis 500 is any "higher" form of racing than what can be found at Pocono International Raceway.

"I didn't see (Johnny) Rutherford or any of those Indy guys do anything special when they ran these cars," Redman said Sunday after winning the Sports Car Club-United States Auto Club Formula 5000 championship over Danny Ongais. "It's not higher, it's just a different world."

Asked if the absense of Mario Andretti and Al Unser, who were practicing at Indianapolis, had any effect on the outcome, Redman said: "Well, it's not really breaking my heart. I'm not shedding any tears over it."

Driving the Boraxo-sponsored Chapparal Lola T332C, Redman, undefeated in three races at Pocono, won easily after early leader Ongais, of Costa Mesa, Calif., spun on the backstretch of the 2.8-mile winding road course.

Hurley Haywood of Jacksonville, Fla., driving a new turbo-powered Porsche, scored a half-car victory over Al Holbert of Warrington, Pa., in the Trans-Am championship portion of the doubleheader.

Redman, of England, has recorded 44 first and second place finishes out of 50 starts in the Chapparal. He also won both 25-mile preliminary heat races.

Finishing third was Vern Schuppan of Santa Ana, Calif., in Dan Gurney's Jorgensen Eagle. Fourth, one lap down, was Randy Lewis of Los Altos, Calif., followed by Sam Posey, who started 17th in the 18-car field.

Redman won $17,500 for the day's event including his two heat race victories. He averaged 123.437 miles per hour. Haywood collected $2,000 for his victory in which he averaged 105.335 m.p.h.

Busby Survives Protest To Win Ontario Race

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Upset winner Jim Busby of Laguna Beach, Calif., withstood a protest of his driving technique by second place finisher Peter Gregg Sunday to win the International Motor Sports Association Camel GT 100-miler at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Busby, in scoring the biggest American road racing victory of his career, averaged 96.657 miles per hour in a Porsch Carrera to beat Gregg by 2.319 seconds. Gregg drove a BMW.

With eight laps to go, Busby caught Gregg in a slow corner, went to the inside and slid into the side of Gregg's race car, spinning Gregg out. When both cars resumed racing, Gregg had a 17-second lead and he played it out, driving conservatively at the end.

Meanwhile, Gregg radioed to his pit crew chief, Jack Atkinson, instructing him to protest Busby's driving tactics. After the race, Gregg conferred with chief steward Charles Rainville and withdrew the protest.

Bob Matkovich of Cupertino, Calif., suffered a possible concussion and neck injuries in a two-car accident and was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital.

In the 100-miler for sedans racing on street radial tires, Gene Felton of Atlanta won at an average speed of 79.997 m.p.h. by 11 seconds over Carson Baird, the series leader from Laurel, Md. Felton drove a Gremlin, Baird a Colt.

The Formula Atlantic race was won by Canadian champ Gilles Villeneuve in a March. He averaged 106.675 m.p.h. in the 50-mile race.

Cale Cops Music City 420

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough said his car "just couldn't run any better" than it did Saturday when he won the Music City 420 at the Nashville Speedway.

"I thought it was taking the turns better than any car out there and when you bore down on the straightaways, you could almost feel it jump beneath you," he said.

Yarborough, from Timmonsville, S.C. drove his Holly Springs Chevrolet into the lead as the race began, and except during a couple of pit stops, led all the way.

In second place was Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C. and in third was Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N. C.

Yarborough, who had the outside pole position, collected $6,265 for his effort. It was his third win of the season.

Darrell Waltrip of Nashville, last year's winner, was in the same lap with Yarborough, Petty and Parsons when the rear end of his Chevrolet went out,forcing him out of the race. Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N. C., was fourth, followed by Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala.

Ump's 'Gift' Helps A's Get to Catfish

OAKLAND (UPI) — Even the winning pitcher thought his team's winning run might have been a gift from the umpires as the Oakland A's finally handed ex-teammate Catfish Hunter a setback.

Oakland edged New York 4-3 in 12 innings Sunday when Campy Campaneris belted a sacrifice fly to knock home Sal Bando with the winning run.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin, Hunter and the rest of the Yankees felt that Bando should never have been on third and that the fly ball to right field should have been the third out.

Bando walked to open the inning and went to third on Larry Lintz' sacrifice bunt, with a close play at the bag. Umpire Rich Garcia ignored the entreaties of the New Yorkers that Bando was out.

A's reliever Paul Lindblad, who allowed only one hit in seven brilliant relief innings, surprisingly said afterwards that "I thought Sal was out."

Said Hunter: "I tagged him four feet before he reached the base."

Said Martin: "He was tagged, but it's all over with."

But Bando insisted "I touched the bag before I felt the tag. I made up my mind to go all the way to third when I noticed nobody was covering the bag.

The A's' win marked their first decision over Hunter in five tries since he went to the Yankees from Oakland before last season.

Oakland scored in the fourth on Bill North's single, a stolen base, a sacrifice and sacrifice fly. It was 2-0 in the fifth on Billy Williams' homer on what Hunter later called "a good pitch."

But New York, which managed only three hits all day, got three in the sixth when Mike Torrez lost his control and walked the bases loaded before a passed ball and Thurmon Munson's single.

Oakland, whiich managed only six hits, tied it without a hit in the ninth on a walk to Joe Rudi, a stolen base, an errant throw into the outfield and Don Baylor's sacrifice fly.

Richards Must Yearn for Good Old Days

By UPI

Paul Richards probably wishes he was still in retirement.

Richards, who left his ranch in Waxahachie Texas to assume the reins of the Chicago White Sox this season, learned Sunday left-handed ace Wilbur Wood probably will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season.

Wood was injured in the sixth inning of Sunday's 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers when he was hit on the left kneecap by a line drive off the bat of Ron LeFlore. X-rays later revealed that he had suffered a fractured kneecap.

It was only a few months ago that Richards, 67, was in retirement, relaxing on his ranch and thinking about his baseball past. But when showman Bill Veeck bought the ailing White Sox franchise in the off-season, he immediately called his old friend Richards and asked him to assume control of the club.

What Richards has gotten so far this season is a a lot of headaches, a club that has lost nine of its last 11 games, a team with a shaky pitching staff and little punch at the plate.

But if things weren't bad enough, they became even worse with the loss of Wood, who has anchored the White Sox mound staff since 1968, the year he established the American League mark for appearances.

The loss of Wood, a four time 20-game winner, leaves Richards with a gaping hole in his rotation, a staff already weakened by the trade of veteran Jim Kaat to Philadelphia prior to the season's start.

If there can be any consolation for Wood, he did receive credit for the victory, his fourth in seven decisions. Clay Carroll came in finish up as the two pitchers combined on a five-hitter.

In other games Oakland edged New York 4-3 in 12 innings, Texas nipped Boston 65, California topped Cleveland 3-2, Kansas City ripped Baltimore 7-4, and Minnesota beat Milwaukee 6-4.

Rangers 6 Red Sox 5

Denny Doyle's wild throw on Len Randle's potential double play ground ball in the eighth inning enabled the Rangers to score two runs and hand Boston its ninth straight loss. With the bases loaded, Randle's grounder was fielded by shortstop Steve Dillard, who flipped to Doyle for for the force at second. But Doyle threw the ball away attempting to complete the double play and two runs scored.

Angels 3 Indians 2

Rusty Torres' two-out triple drove in two runs in the eighth innings as the Angels scored their third straight come-from-behind victory over the Indians. Trailing 2-0 on just three hits, Lee Stanton led off the eighth with a double, pinch-hitter Ron Jackson walked, pinch-hitter Paul Dade singled to score Stanton and Torres tripled.

Royals 7 Orioles 4

Bob Stinson doubled home two runs and Frank White added a two-run single during a five-run third inning rout of Jim Palmer that carried the Royals past Baltimore. Palmer, who pitched a two-hit shutout in his last start, was tagged for seven hits and four earned runs in 2 2-3 innings as his record fell to 4-4.

Twins 6, Brewers 4

Minnesota scored two runs in the eighth inning when catcher Darrell Porter committed a passed ball and a throwing error to edge the Brewers. The score was tied 4-4 in the eighth when Butch Wynegar tripled and Dan Ford drew an intentional walk. Porter's passed ball, allowed Wynegar to score and Ford to go to second. Ford then stole third and scored when Porter threw the ball wildly into left field.

Strom Turns Tables, Plays Role of Enforcer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brent Strom thought he was a sacrificial lamb Sunday but he turned the tables and played the role of the enforcer instead.

Strom, a former Met, pitched a two-hitter and Dave Winfield blasted a two-run homer as the San Diego Padres turned back the New York Mets, 4-0, beating Tom Seaver for the first time in four years.

Strom struck out two in pitching his second career twohitter and held the Mets hitless until Joe Torre hit a line drive single to left center with one out in the seventh inning. Torre immediately was erased on a double play.

Strom had entered the game figuring he had two chances for a win—slim and none.

After all, Seaver was on the mound as the opposing pitcher and last year's Cy Young award winner had reeled off eight straight wins at the Padres' expense, building his career record against San Diego to 18-1.

"The way Seaver usually pitches against this team, I considered myself the sacrificial lamb," Strom said.

Strom insisted no-hitter wasn't on his mind either.

"I wasn't thinking about it. I'm not a no-hitter type pitcher like Seaver, Nolan Ryan or Jon Matlack because I'm not a strikeout pitcher. Those guys strike out 10 batters in a game and that's 10 fewer balls they have to worrry about becoming hits. I started thinking about it in the sixth inning, but the way the Mets have been hitting and playing lately I was more intent on winning.

"I pitched poorly in my last two starts and would have been satisfied with a win."

Cincy Just Loves It In Cubs' Wrigley Field

By UPI

The Cincinnati Reds and Wrigley Field form the sweetest combination since Baskin met Robbins.

"If we played 81 games in Wrigley Field," says Reds' manager Sparky Anderson, "we'd probably break the all-time scoring record. I don't think anybody could hold us under seven runs."

Anderson could be right. The Reds completed a three-game weekend sweep in Wrigley Field Sunday by thrashing the Chicago Cubs, 14-2, behind a 21-hit attack that featured a grand slam homer by Ken Griffey, a pair of solo blasts by Tony Perez, a two-run shot by Dan Driessen and solo homers by George Foster and Pete Rose.

It was the second 14-run game for the Reds in as many days at Wrigley Field and in the three-game series Cincinnati collected 44 hits.

Perez, who had entered the series in an 0-for-18 batting slump, found the small park to be an oasis as he banged out seven hits in 13 at bats and drove in six runs in the three games.

"I like this park a lot," said Perez in a classic understatement. "I just hit good here. As soon as I hit them (the homers) I knew they were gone."

Rookie Pat Zachry benefitted from the Reds' blitz to win his first game. Zachry allowed just five hits, including a two-run homer to Bill Madlock, in eight innings before giving way to Will McEnaney.

"Allowing only two runs in eight innings in a park like Wrigley Field is like pitching a triple shutout," exclaimed Anderson. "I took him out in the ninth because he was running out of gas. Everything you hear about the Chicago pitchers with the high ERA (5.69), you're overblaming. Anyone with a 4.00 ERA or under is doing very good in this ballpark."

The Reds' victory moved them to within one-half game of first place Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers, who had a 12-game winning streak broken by Philadelphia Saturday night, were beaten again by the Phillies, 10-3.

In other NL action, Pittsburgh handed Atlanta its 13th straight loss, 5-2; San Diego blanked New York, 4-0; Houston whipped St. Louis, 10-5, and San Francisco downed Montreal 4-2, then lost 8-0.

Phillies 10, Dodgers 3

Jim Lonborg pitched perfect ball for 6 1-3 innings, then combined with Ron Reed on a six-hitter as the Phillies beat the Dodgers for the second straight day. Greg Luzinski hit his second tape measure homer in as many games for the Phillies while Larry Bowa drove in three runs. Ed Goodson hit a two-run pinch homer for Los Angeles.

Pirates 5, Braves 2

Jerry Reuss tossed a six-hitter for his fourth win in pitching the Pirates to their fifth victory in a row. Rennie Stennett doubled home two runs to highlight a four-run fourth inning which tagged Dick Ruthven with the loss. Clarence Gaston hit a two-run, pinch-hit homer for Atlanta.

Astros 10, Cardinals 5

c

Cliff Johnson drove in three runs with a homer, double and two singles to power the Astros to victory over the Cardinals. Larry Dierker pitched eight innings to gain his fourth win. Lou Brock had four hits for the Cardinals.

Giants 4-0, Expos 2-8

John Montefusco won his fourth game and Gary Matthews hit his sixth homer as the Giants snapped a six-game losing streak in the opener. But the Expos came back to capture the nightcap behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Rogers. Gary Carter homered for Montreal in the second game as the Giants suffered their 12th loss in their last 14 games.

Countdown to Olympics

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Five conference championships plus the Meet of Champions at Houston are on this weekend's busy track and field schedule with one more conference showdown and the California Relays the following week in the countdown to the Olympic Trials in June.

The West Coast Relays here was the big meet of the past weekend as various athletes won qualifying spots for the Trials, which run from June 19-27 at Eugene, Ore.

Surprisingly, not many Olympic hopefuls have won qualifying places thus far, but a lot more will this weekend with conference championships in the Big 8, Big Ten, Southeastern and Southwestern Conferences.

When all the sorting out has been completed, upwards of 65 men will make up the U.S. team for the Olympics in Montreal starting on July 17.

Cost, of course, is a factor, but the U.S. Olympic Committee wouldn't mind if as many as 40 athletes win qualifying spots for each event of the Trials.

"The more the merrier," said one official, "since the idea is to wind up with the strongest team possible."

There were enough good performances in the West Coast Relays to indicate the U.S. has nothing to worry about in fielding its 1976 team. Even though the rest of the track and field world seems to be catching up, especially East Germany and the Soviet Union, there is a lot of optimism this year among U.S track and field people to indicate there will be strength on the team.

In the field events, especially, as indicated here this past weekend, there are a number of fine Olympic candidates, fellows like Mac Wilkins in the discus, Al Feuerbach and George Woods in the shot put, Tom Woods in the high jump, Dan Ripley in the pole vault, Randy Williams and Arnie Robinson in the long jump and James Butts and Abdul Rahman in the triple.

Wilkins, who broke the world discus record four times in eight days a couple of weeks ago, won here with a so-so 212-3, but said he was satisfied he's on schedule for the Olympics.

"I'll be all right," said the former Oregon strongman. "I'm going to Europe for a couple of tuneups in Germany and Italy before the trials."

Kingston was at Webutuck today and will host Jay Wednesday and Ketcham Thursday.

Rec Title to Joe's

KINGSTON — Teddy Van Dyke's brilliant shooting from the corner produced 34 points and led Joe's Barber Shop to a 108-102 victory over Joyous Lake and the championship of the Rondout Neighborhood Center Winter Basketball League.

Joe's outscored Joyous Lake 63-52 in the second half to come from behind and earn the title.

Bert Henderson dumped in 28 points, Rachid Walker nailed 16, and Nate Mulligan rimmed 13 to back up Van Dyke's efforts.

Rod Chando topped all scorers with 37 for Joyous Lake. Ted Wood flipped in 27.

Dream Match On Tap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Mexico's so-called dream match between undefeated bantamweights Carlos Zarate and Alfonso Zamora apparently is going to come off.

Zamora, the World Boxing Association bantamweight king, was at ringside Saturday night to watch Zarate do the expected—take away the World Boxing Council 118-pound title from Rodolfo Martinez in nine rounds.

Promoter Danny Villanueva said he planned to stage a showdown in August "right after the Olympic Games."

A crowd of 17,468 showed up at the Forum and paid a gross gate of more than $250,000 to see Zarate, a 2-1 favorite, overwhelm his countryman.

Both the baby-faced, ever-smiling Zamora, a silver medalist in the 1972 Olympics, and Zarate, a mustachioed 22-year-old, are fearsome knockout punchers who have a combined 65 KOs in 66 fights. Zamora has 25 knockouts in 25 fights while Zarate is 41-0 with 40 knockouts.

They're both from Mexico City and are extremely popular among their countrymen. Zarate began his pro career in March, 1973, a month before Zamora. Zamora won his title in the same Forum ring by knocking out Soo Hwan Hong of South Korea in four rounds March 14, 1975.

Zarate knocked Martinez through the ropes with a sizzling left hook in the fifth and battered him at will in the eighth before flooring him with a right at 1:51 of the ninth of the scheduled 15-rounder. Martinez was out cold.

"I haven't thought about it yet," Zarate said when asked about his proposed match with Zamora. "Let me enjoy this win. Zamora is still a long way off."

Martinez, 29, lost in his fourth defense of the crown he took from Rafael Herrera, another Mexican. His manager, Lupe Sanchez, made it clear there were no thoughts of retirement.

"We'll take a month off and then see what happens," he said. "Rodolfo showed a lot of courage against Zarate. He fought on courage alone after the fifth round.

"Hopefully, we can win a couple of fights and get another title fight. We didn't have any rematch clause but, perhaps, we might get one later."

Martinez earned $130,000 while Zarate got $30,000.

Fitz' Pigeon Is First Home

OLEAN, Pa.— A pigeon handled by Rudy Fitz captured the North Catskill Pigeon Racing Club's third race of the season Saturday.

The bird covered an air mileage distance of 200 in four hours for a winning average of 1,692 yards per minute.

Second was a pigeon trained by Joe Filliciotto.

Baeza OK

Jockey Braulio Baeza, scheduled to ride Honest Pleasure in the Preakness on Saturday, was released Sunday from a Long Island hospital after being thrown by his mount in the ninth race at Belmont Park Saturday. Baeza, who suffered a sprained neck and a shoulder bruise but did not incur any fractures, was dischared after being held overnight for observation.

SAA Lassie Expands to 14 For June 1 Season Opener

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Athletic Association (SAA) Lassie Softball League has organized for its ninth season by expanding from 12 to 14 teams and obtaining a new field for its June 1 openers.

The league, which consists of women 16 years of age and up, will be split into a four-team A Division and a 10-team B Division. Both circuits will engage in 10-game pennant races with doubleheaders scheduled for Sundays and single games Monday through Friday.

Some 220 participants figure to see action.

The new field, one of three added to Veterans Memorial Field by the Town Recreation Commission, will be the Lassie League's permanent home. The league, which began in 1968, has played on four different diamonds over the years.

Another addition this season will be the first female commissioner. She is Mrs. Mary Ann Maines, who succeeds Jack Rinaldi.

The women will play seven-inning games and utilize a 15-run "stopper" rule effective once the game is official and the inning is complete.

The Lassie League is believed to be the oldest women's softball league in the Hudson Valley.

Teams and their managers or captains are:

A Division: Cuties, Joan Zuckerman; Gallagher's Gals, Cathy Schaffer; Little Levis, Phil Discordia; Turk Construction, Frank Anderson.

B Division: Comets, Soonie Hillje; Ferroxcube Hunny B's, Candy Sperl; Happy Chasers, Cindy McDowell; Happy Hookers, Angie Gaffney; Love Bugs, Dennis Sheehan; Milt's Msfits, Joe McCutcheon; Mountain Trail Inn, Donna Nardo; Razzberries, Ray Bean; Sawyer Agency Sals, Sandy Nickerson; Sahek, Rattle, Roll, Emily Romano.

SHS Beaten By AHS Girls

FREEDOM PLAINS — Saugerties High's girls softball team generated 18 hits for 16 runs but came out on the short end of a 28-16 DCSL game with Arlington.

The Admirals also had 18 hits but five of them were home runs, two of which were grand slams by Diane Shultz and Pam Williamson.

Shultz also had a two run homer as did Adrian Lashway.

Saugerties is now 5-3 while Arlington is 7-1.

YMCA 'A' Division

Perry's Claims Title

KINGSTON — Perry's completed a YMCA basketball sweep when it defeated The Handlebar, 71-66, in the third and deciding game of the Winter League A Division championship playoffs.

By winning the best-of-three series two games to one, Perry's put the Winter trophy next to the one it captured by gaining the Fall League crown.

To win the finale, Perry's needed a big fourth quarter effort from Pete Koola and Jim Alba. The former had 26 points for the game, many in the final session when the winners were forced to rally from one point down. Alba, meanwhile, scored 10 of his 14 points in that fourth frame.

Koola also had 17 rebounds to go with his 26 points. Jim Cosentino had 11 points and Dave Kane 10 for the winners.

The Handlebar was led by Corey Chambers' 17 points and 19 rebounds. Joe Uhl flipped in 14 while Tom Fiore and Mike Derrenbacher dumped in 11 apiece.

'B' Crown to Wenzel's

KINGSTON — Art Shelightner scored 35 points to lead Wenzel's to a 95-74 victory over Wrixon in the third and deciding game of the best-of-three YMCA B Division basketball championship playoffs.

Wenzel's thus took the title two games to one.

The winners led 39-34 at halftime, then broke the game open after intermission by outscoring Wrixon 25-15.

Skip Lyons backed up Shelightner's point production with 17. Harry Brink had 16 to bring his three-game total to 94. Brink added 20 rebounds in the clincher.

Wrixon got 27 points from Teddy Van Dyke. Mike Kiernan had 19 and Earl Edmonds 18.

In the B Division consolation game, John Jasinski scored 42 points to lead Well Wolfpack to a 77-61 win over Dolphin Inn. Mike Sass had 19 for Dolphin.

Emerson-Durr Team Triumphs

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — Roy Emerson teamed with Francoise Durr to defeat Tony Trabert and Billie Jean King, 6-4, 6-4, Sunday in the finals of the $60,000 Mixed Doubles Classic at the La Costa Racquet Club.

Emerson and Durr split $20,000 while King and Trabert, the defending champions, divided $12,000.

Breaking Trabert's service three times during the 54-minute match watched by 3,250, the winners rallied from 1-4 in the second set with Emerson dominating the play.

Emerson, who at 39 is eight years younger than Trabert and the youngest of the eight all-timers in the male field, said he wasn't going to apologize for his comparative youth.

"I was invited to play and was happy to participate," said Emerson, a three-time Wimbledon doubles winner. "I don't compete any longer, but now I think I'll take up mixed doubles."

Emerson and Durr broke Trabert in the first game of the opening set, but Durr lost her serve to tie the score at 2-2. The teams then held service through the eighth game before a crucial double fault by Trabert and a winning cross-court Emerson backhand gave Emerson-Durr a 5-4 lead.

Trabert and King took advantage of Durr's soft service for a break and a 2-0 lead in the second set. They went ahead 4-1 before King lost her service in the seventh game and Trabert was broken for the third time in the ninth game.

Hartford Team Fires Coach

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Hartford Bicentennials have fired head coach Manfred Schellscheidt and replaced him with Bobby Thompson, an English striker signed by the franchise earlier this year.

The switch was announced Sunday by Rudi Schiffer, general manager of the North American Soccer league team.

The dismissal followed the team's third straight loss of the season after the Bi's won their first two games. In Schellscheidts's first full year as coach in 1975, the Bi's won only six of 22 games, including 11 straight losses.

Thompson, 31, who will be player-coach, has played for the England national team eight times and was captain of the Luton Town team when he signed a two-year contract with the Bi's.

Thompson will direct the team for the first time Saturday night when the Bi's host the Pele-led New York Cosmos at Dillon Stadium.

Schellscheidt was an assistant coach of the Philadelphia Atoms when they won the NASL title in 1973

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MAY 11

Your birthday today: Your first half-year is full of widening horizons and higher earning capacity. In the latter half of the year, your responsibility increases, and you must decide on definite programs. Relationships are at first casual, and then become serious. Today's natives are individualistic, are involved in extremely specialized fields.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Guard the health of someone you care about. Take off from work for personal concerns where feasible; it won't be any more convenient later.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): If you push too far ahead with what you want to do, you provoke resistance and add extra burdens. Help yourself out by abstaining from criticism.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Play it safe, whatever else you do. Simple statements suffice now, but explanations are in order later. A minor windfall isn't any excuse for extravagance.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You are too optimistic in assuming speculative factors will work out well. Protect your best interests through moderation. Expect little from others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): A sense of limitation seeps in gradually as you see how the day's patterns turn out. Competition comes from those who don't achieve satisfying results.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't lend or borrow. Check up on what you lent earlier, recover scattered possessions and replace things that are worn out or lost. Be open for personal comment.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Commercial plans miss their mark. Surprises give you useful information. Exercise restraint in dealing with temperamental associates.

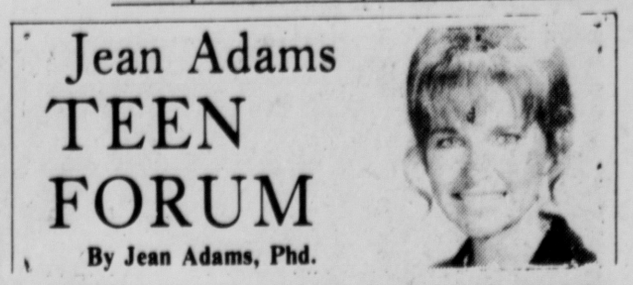
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People beyond your immediate reach are less likely prospects; concentrate on well-known associates. Passing circumstances are exasperating.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Schemes of friends and rivals are equally fantastic. Pursue your own plans. Expenses run higher than usual.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good opportunity for increased earnings depends entirely on what you can do singlehandedly. A pause for technical advise blocks progress.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Carry your full responsibility without hesitation, but take special precautions with machines or leave it to others. Keep a sense of humor.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't rush into a financial move without getting the details clear. The welfare of youngsters gives you much to think about.



Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

DATING: (Comment) I strongly disagree with some of the advice you give your female readers. You tell girls not to make a habit of calling up boys, and you are constantly giving tips to the girls on how to destroy a boy's ego.

I personally don't understand your dating advice. Why should a girl wait around all week for the phone to ring so she can have the pleasure of a boy's company on a weekend night?

What is she supposed to do when she doesn't get asked out. Sit at home and wash her hair? Or maybe go out with her girl friends and try to get picked up?

Don't you realize what a burden it can be on a boy to make the first step toward getting a girl friend? All of his friends are boys. He may have never had a real conversation with a girl. Of course he's scared.

It would all even out in ths end. The frightened boy might find out that he really isn't the awful, ugly person he thinks he is if a girl should suddenly call him up. And the girl too timid to call up a boy and ask him for a date will still be asked by the braver, more experienced boys. The whole system of girls having to goad guys into being the aggressors all the time is, in my opinion, archaic and stupid. —Post-Teen Male In Massachusetts

(A.) Often I suggest that girls call boys. Also I sometimes urge a girl to take the first step in some other way. It all depends upon the circumstances. I think your complaint is more ahout how our society functions than about the advice I give teens on how to get along in that society. Just the same, I am happy to print your letter. Some of it makes a lot of sense. You do not, however, go into detail about "how to destroy a boy's ego." If you feel that I should advise a girl to risk getting pregnant just to build up a boy's ego, I am sorry that sometimes I have to disappoint you.

WHAT?: (Q.) I like this guy Bill. I don't know if he likes me. What should I do? Should I go right out and ask him if he likes me? Or should I wait and hope he will ask me out? —Waiting in Connecticut

(A.) Make the first move. Ask Bill to call you or come over. But wait till later to tell him you like him. And let him tell YOU he likes you, if it turns out that he does.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Oswald: "In 'Bridge Logic', H. W. Kelsey shows a couple of hundred bridge hands where common sense reasoning makes it possible for a thinking player to substitute a sure thing or near sure thing for a guess."

Jim: "The hands range from simple to complex. For instance, let's look at his first example."

Oswald: "South is in four spades. West opens the king of hearts and continues after dummy ducks. South wins that trick and leads a trump to West's ace. A third heart is led and ruffed, trumps are drawn, a diamond is led from dummy, East plays low."

Jim: "An unthinking South has to guess between the play of the king or the jack. The thinker doesn't have to guess."

Oswald: "West dealt and passed. He has shown up with the king and queen of hearts and ace of spades. If he also held the ace of diamonds he would have opened the bidding so thinker South plays his king of diamonds."

Faced With the Naked Truth

Two-year-old Raven Schlossberg covers her eyes and says "Daddy, that woman has no clothes." The other viewers in the room, where Goya's "The Naked Maja" went on exhibition at the National Gallery of Art were somewhat more discreet. The painting is now in the U.S. on loan from the Prado in Madrid. (UPI)

Want Tougher Juvenile Justice

ALBANY (UPI) — The State Division for Youth should be able to hold juvenile delinquents for up to three years, instead of the current 18 months, according to recommendations by an Assembly committee.

In addition, in a report released Sunday, the Committee on Child Care suggested mandatory one-year stays in secure facilities for 14-and 15-year-old juvenile delinquents charged with committing serious violent crimes.

Both proposals were part of a package of bills aimed at improving the juvenile justice system.

Assemblyman Richard Gottfried, D-Manhattan, committee chairman, said the mandatory-committment provision of his recommednation would cover "designated felony acts" including first-and second-degree murder, first-degree rape, first-degree sodomy, first-and second-degree arson and firstdegree robbery.

In an administrative order effective May 1, the division took similar action, requiring youths it called "classified cases" be held for a year in a secure facility for crimes outlined in Gottfried's measures.

The recommendations came out of a 16-month study of the juvenile justice system by his committee, Gottfried said.

In comments on the state of the juvenile justice system, the report said, "Psychiatric and psychlogical services are woefully inadequate. A system based on rehabilitation is denied the resources to carry out that mandate."

Other recommendations included establishment of a statewide juvenile justice information service to be run by the Division of Criminal Justice Services, the same agency that operates the state's adult crime information system.

Gottfried's bills also would require a court order before a youth could be transferred from a secure facility to a nonsecure one such as a training school.

In addition, a youth confined to a secure facility could be transferred to a State Mental Hygiene Department facility.

For the "designated felony act" cases, the same judge would be required to handle a youth's case from beginning to end, and county attorneys who had petitioned the youth to Family Court would be allowed to participate in dispositional hearings.

Full-scale probation investigations would be required before a youth's case was disposed of and 30-day detention periods would be allowed for that instead of the present 10 days.

The committee report, which said that a separate juvenile justice system is still necessary, included a measure to set up a separate part of Family Court to handle juvenile delinquency cases.

The proposals also would encourage courts to make more use of restitution of damages and community services in punishing juvenile delinquents.

The report criticized voluntary youth agencies for accepting only the least troublesome delinquents, leaving the "more violent or mentally disturbed youth ... to the Divison for Youth, which generally lacks the service resources of many of the voluntary agencies."

The juvenile justice system often allows repeat offenders to go untreated until they have become serious threats, the report said. It charged that youths either receive "revolving door" handling and become contemptuous or are treated too severely and become bitter and more dangerous.

Methodist Leaders Seek Stringent Gun Control

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The General Conference of the United Methodist Church has approved without debate a statement urging stringent controls on all types of guns in one of the final actions before the 12-day meeting ended.

The 10 million-member organization called Saturday for licensing of all gun owners and registration of all firearms.

The policy statement on gun control also urges a national ban on importing, manufacture, sale, and possession of handguns and handgun ammunition with exceptions only for a few restricted areas such as law enforcement and antique collections.

"We do not believe there is any Constitutional personal right to bear arms," the statement said.

In one of its final reports on the conference, the church news service said most participants in the sessions, held every four years to formulate church policies, "seem to agree that the United Methodist Church has moved to the right."

The Rev. Lloyd Wake, a minister at San Franciso's Glide Memorial Church, said, "For me it's like coming into another kind of world, a very uptight world, a world that's self-enclosed."

The Rev. Woodie White, Detroit, a top official of the church's commission on religion and race, said, "We didn't really lose anything." He added, "I'm more concerned about what's happened to people in the past three or four years that would make then turn so inward."

Thelma Stevens, retired leader of the Women's National Agency of the church, cited removal of a quota system for women in church agency executive staffs and a new requirement for all new executive staff members to be Methodists as example of steps to the right.

Bishop William R. Cannon, Atlanta, Ga., said, however, delegates were "less directed by pressure from certain small groups and its sense of moral commitment has been very keen." He added, "I feel the church at large will be quite pleased with the outcome of this conference."

In other actions just before the conference closed delegates:

— Rejected a call for estabishment of a publicly administered universal health care program.

— Approved lowering the retirement age for bishops from the current 68-72 to 66-70 and agreed to shorten their assignments in specific areas.

— Approved a budget of nearly $60.93 million a year for the next four years — $14 million more than approved for each of the past four years and $20 million more per year than was actually collected.

— In one more action on the conference's most controversial subject, rejected a number of petitions calling for a specific ban on ordination of homosexuals.

Think Mystery Man Victim of Accident

PORT EWEN — An autopsy, ordered by Ulster County William S. Keyser, has revealed "no reason to suspect foul play" in the death of an unidentified man whose body was found washed up on the banks of the Hudson River Saturday.

The autopsy was conducted shortly before noon on Sunday with detectives from the sheriff's office as witnesses. There were no bruises or broken bones, said a spokesman for the sheriff's office, and the tentative ruling is one of accidental death by drowning "at this time."

Police authorities estimate the man might have been dead for as long as two months. He is described as white, between 50 and 60 years of age, 5 feet 9 in height and between 170 and 180 pounds. He was wearing green corduroy pants, brown work boots, a green plaid jacket, a yellow rain jacket with hood, black rain pants and rust colored rubber work boots. Police theorize he may have either been a fisherman or may have fallen off one of the boats that ply the river.

A nationwide teletype alert has been sent out. Anyone with information is requested to contact the Ulster County sheriff's office.

DWI

James Maynard, 28, of Port Ewen was ticketed for driving while intoxicated shortly after 11:30 a.m. Sunday on New Salem road near the intersection of Route 213.

Sheriff's deputies said Maynard lost control of his car, hit some guard rails on the right and crossed over, hitting trees on the left. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's ambulance and treated and released for head injuries.

Deputies ticketed him for driving while intoxicated, driving with a suspended license and failure to keep right. He will reappear before Esopus Justice Robert Jordan on May 11.

Pooler for Local Consumer Agency

KINGSTON — Rosemary Pooler, executive director of the New York State Consumer Board, has called for Ulster County to have its own consumer protection agency "so that local problems can be solved here."

Speaking to 150 members of the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club at their recent 25th annual luncheon, Mrs. Pooler said she would be "flattered, delighted and thrilled to come to speak at the opening of a consumer agency in Ulster County."

"I don't think you want to go to Albany to have your complaints settled," she said' "because local complaints belong in the local community."

Mrs. Pooler, a former Syracuse City Council member, noted that her board has been able to make some ground despite funding and power limitations.

"The board was created in 1970," s said, "but it doesn't have the power to do anything. It's just charged with investigating consumer interests across the state."

If Mrs. Pooler had her way, the Consumer Protection Board, which she calles "weak and diffused," would become the Consumer Protection Agency.

It would have the power to ask for testimony and "the right to sue the sons-of-guns if we think they're doing something wrong."

Referring to herself as an "aggressive, troublemaking woman," Mrs. Pooler said she is now engaged in a fight against utility rate increases, increases in Blue Cross and Blue Shield rates, and auto repair part rates. She is also working on prescription drug rates, fraudulent television repair practices and the excess fat content of meats.

Many of the consumer problems she is working on are aided by the introduction of legislation by Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., she said. She lauded his interest in the region's consumer needs and said she hoped that at least two of his bills related to consumer protection would be acted on favorably by the Legislature.

Ulster County Legislator Kathleen Quick, D-City, who was present at the luncheon, said that a resolution to investigate the need for a county consumer agency has been introduced by Minority Leader Louis M. Klein, D-Dist 6, but refused to predict when the resolution will be brought out of committee.

Mrs. Pooler, a Brooklyn native, currently maintains a law practice in addition to her duties as executive director of the consumer board.

Children's Home Centennial

KINGSTON — Nearly 200 persons have been invited to attend the Centennial Celebration at the Children's Home of Kingston on Sunday, May 16.

The program, slated for 2 p.m. at 26 Grove Street, will commemorate the agency's 100th birthday. A plaque recognizing the home's high standards will be presented by Mrs. James T. Butler, representing the Child Welfare League of America.

Community leaders, friends, supporters, neighbors, board members and staff will join in acknowledging the past 100 years of services to problem children and families. Former board president Mrs. William Hilton will highlight the agency's gradual change from an orphanage to a treatment center. Mrs. James DeRose, current president of the Board of Directors, will describe the home's goals and community-based preventive services. Lawrence B. Siewers, executive director, will be master of ceremonies for the program.

Immediately after the speeches there will be a reception with champagne and punch and a cake designed as a replica of the home's "well-house' logo. Guests will be invited to tour the home's facilities, including a campus school and residential units.

Started by a small group of Kingston women in 1876 as the Industrial Home, the agency continues to live up to its motto "We Seek to Serve." Now more than 200 families and 60 emotionally troubled boys yearly receive help at the Children's Home of Kingston.

Pot Poll Evokes 'Mixed Bag' of Reaction

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON — While young Jack Ford is trying to persuade his father that pot penalties should be abolished, the Daily Freeman turned up a mixed bag of persuasions this week regarding Gov. Hugh L. Carey's proposal to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana.

And, while the President isn't expected to take a position on pot before the November election, the New York State Legislature is. A vote on the question should reach the floor of the State Legislature before the month is out.

Ironically, the majority of those polled locally on the moral and legal aspects of Carey's proposal, favored decriminalization, but three out of four of Ulster County's state legislators, the ones who will make the ultimate decision, are against it.

Only Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., would approve. The others — State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40th Dist., Sen. Edwyn E. Mason, R-48th Dist. and Assemblyman Emeel Betros, R-99th Dist., are opposed.

Removal of penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana for personal use was called for last week by delegates to the United Methodist Conference.

The denomination's top lawmaking body stressed however, that its action "in no way implies approval or encouragement of marijuana use or its legalization."

Much the same sentiment has been expressed here recently by many members of the legal profession, law enforcement and the clergy. Most favor decriminalization but not legalization with the exception of Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn of Temple Emanuel who, "while not fully committed to legalization wouldn't be too unhappy" if it came about.

He said he feels that individuals should have the freedom to do what they want with their lives. He said he sees marijuana use as "no worse than alcohol as a form of socially acceptable behavior," and tends to think it is less harmful.

Because use of pot has become so widespread, he suggests that inconsistent law enforcement results, disrespect for law ensues and the issue becomes a political football.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino would agree that morally "it is not wrong at this time in light of youth today." He feels that young people have a valid argument when they tell their parent "You drink alcohol over the weekend, I smoke pot."

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt advocates a strictly "practical" approach saying "a law is a law only if it can be enforced."

Because of the wide use of marijuana, enforcement of the pot laws could detract from the fight against hard drugs. Vogt's office and others have opted for the fight against heroin, cocaine and other hard drugs.

However, Vogt is very much opposed to the use of pot, saying he is well aware of the arguments for it but, he said, "I have never seen hospital wards filled with 13- and 14-year-old alcoholics but for years I have seen teenage drug addicts filling the hospital

Mental Health Director Ralph H. Golding points to recent federal government reports which contend that pot is not as dangerous as experts said it was. Golding believes a lot of myths have been exploded and that anyone can become dependent on anything when it is used to excess. He also feels that youths have been turned off by false information given them by adults and have been turned on by pot which they use to spite authorities.

He would favor decriminalization, as would Probation Director Stephen Morris who sees it as a practical solution. Morris said he can't see any reason for pot possession carrying criminal penalties. Calling it a burden on the system, he reflected on the lives and careers that have been destroyed as the result of pot convictions and feels the law is not worth "such a heavy consequence."

Police Chief Julius Glassman of Kingston disagrees. He would like to see the law stay the way it is, believing pot use leads to hard drug use and that decriminalization would only encourage more adults as well as youths to smoke it.

The Rev. Allan Janssen of Port Ewen, while not supporting the use of any type of drugs, still contends that "it seems a bit hypocritical to call marijuana a drug requiring criminal prosecution and alcohol, which is more dangerous, non-criminal. "

Betros believes that there is a mechanism within the law now to deal with marijuana, pointing out that anyone picked up as a first offender, with no record, can have their case dismissed. But Mason and Schermerhorn are adamantly against any relaxation.

"What the President's wife and now his son is suggesting is that our children commit a crime," Schermerhorn said, predicting that we will have "a generation of potheads."

Putting Muscle into a Softball Throw

It Was A Beautiful Day For The Special Olympics

KINGSTON — Another "Special Olympic" success was racked up Saturday when about 175 young people, aged five through 21, participated in bowling, swimming track and field events.

Sponsored by the Exchange Club of Greater Kingston and Ulster County Chapter of Teachers of the Mentally Handicapped, the event began with a parade at Dietz Stadium to the accompaniment of the Kingston High School Band.

Kingston High School students served as chaperones on a one-to-one basis throughout the entire day.

"It was beautiful," Michael Cacchillo, chairman of the olympics said, obviously pleased that the students gave up their day for the mentally retarded and found the experience rewarding.

Cacchillo was assisted by Joseph DeFino, physical education instructor who scheduled such events as the 50-yard dash, 220 and 440-yard events, side jump, broad jump, basketball, softball throw and forward jump. Each child was allowed to participate in up to three events.

The more proficient children will be asked to participate in the state special olympics to be held at Brockport in June.

Swimming events took place earlier this month at Ramada Inn and bowling events were scheduled for last Friday at Bowlerama.

The day's events Saturday ended with a victory dance held at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Cacchillo is already making plans for the fourth annual event next year and hopes to incorporate the use of an olympic torch in the ceremonies.

Reaching the Finish Line and Hard-fought Victory

City Water Rate Increase Angers Quick, Raichle

KINGSTON — Official reaction to the 20 per cent rate increase announced last week by the Kingston Water Board began today with some stinging criticisms from Aldermen Donald E. Quick, D-6th Ward, and Clarence C. Raichle, R-1st Ward.

Quick, chairman of the Common Council's Laws and Rules Committee, accused the water board of "dirty pool" and deception stemming from earlier assurances that rates would not be increased.

Raichle, in a statement released today, deplored the rate increase and threatened to ask the council to conduct an investigation of the water board and its water rate structure.

Quick noted that an informal meeting was held between the council and the water department in late 1975 to discuss a proposed contract for water department employes. Quick said that the water department assured the council that the new two-year contract — containing nine per cent salary hikes each year — would not result in a water rate increase.

"I personally feel that I was lied to when the question was asked about the rate increase," said Quick, "and I call on the Kingston Water Board to reconsider their proposed rate increase at a time when unemployment is at a record high, and when more and more people of Kingston are living on a fixed income. . . "

Raichle pointed to the apparent inconsistency of a rate increase approved just five months after the water department trimmed its operating budget by some $76,000, and suggested that the cost increases which necessitated the rate hike should have been anticipated earlier.

In addition, he termed the proposed 20 per cent rate increase "a slap in the face" to real property owners in the city and to senior citizens and others living on fixed incomes.

But Edwin F. Radel, administrative assistant of the Kingston Water Department, today defended the rate increase. In response to Quick's criticism, he said the increased costs of supplies and materials — not the wage hikes for department employes — prompted the rate increase. He said the board did not anticipate higher rates last year, but that inflated costs for supplies and materials "caught up to us."

The 20 per cent rate increase — which takes effect at the start of the third quarter (July 1) — is expected to raise an additional $148,000 in revenues for a full year, said Radel. He added that the water board "hopes" that the new rate hike will provide sufficient additional operating revenues to prevent another rate increase "for at least three or four years."

Radel said the rate hike would increase the minimum charge of water by about two cents a day. For larger residential users, rates will increase by slightly more than three cents a day.

"Twenty per cent sounds drastic when you say it," said Radel, "but it's probably conservative compared to other commodities that have gone up in price."

Fear Low Guess of Quake's Death Toll

Udine, Italy — Shortly after Thursday's earthquake struck northern Italy, Italian officials estimated its death toll would be 1,000; they now predict it will go higher, since the count has already reached 815, and the search for bodies continues.

Two new tremors shook the Italian disaster area today, further weakening structures already damaged by the original quake and the heavy rains which have fallen

Ford Moves to Meet Reagan Surge

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford, faced with the grim prospect of losing two key primaries, one in Nebraska and one in his home state of Michigan, huddled with his top advisers and made some scheduling changes in his campaign.

Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter was dealt a minor setback in Maine, interesting mainly for its rarity.

'Incredible Mail' for Hughes Judge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The judge assigned to the Howard Hughes case says he's received some "incredible mail" from persons who think the billionaire meant to mention them in his will.

Judge Keith Hayes, who will help determine if the handwritten will found last month is valid, said he's also received one threatening call warning that "the judge is going to die."

Hayes said he'd been contacted by friends he hadn't heard from in 20 years and is sometimes stopped on the street by people who jokingly suggest he cut them in on a piece of the estate's action.

"I've received some incredible mail there is no other way to describe it," Hayes, 44, a softspoken former state legislator, said in an interview.

President Moves to Stop Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President-elect Elias Sarkis appeared to have mastered his first challenge today by calming a fierce battle in the mountains northeast of the capital.

Sarkis held telephone consultations with Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and other leaders to try to stop the fighting among the mountain peaks and snow-patched canyons of the central Mount Lebanon region.

Cable Cars are Moving Again

SAN FRANCISCO — Cable cars, buses and trolleys were moving again in San Francisco, but major labor disputes across the nation continued to idle more than 100,000 workers.

Passengers carrying bottles of champagne hopped on San Francisco cable cars Sunday to celebrate the end of a city workers strike which shut down mass transit and other city services for 39 days. An agreement was reached Saturday.

A couple of members of the city's board of supervisors saluted San Franciscans for their patience during the strike by 3,800 workers which stranded about 250,000 daily transit riders.

City officials said a tough stand against the walkout helped avoid a financial crisis.

However, Mayor George Moscone warned that sudden "antiunionism" could lead to San Francisco becoming "like New York was, a series of warring camps."

State Police Kept Tabs on Liberals

NEW YORK — State police compiled intelligence files on persons believed to be liberals and leftists by using a secret "right-wing intelligence newsletter," it was disclosed Sunday.

The New York Times reported an investigation by the Office of Legislative Oversight and Analysis uncovered evidence that the newsletter, Information Digest, was used to supply state police with thousands of names for inclusion in noncriminal intelligence files.

According to the Times, among the names passed to state police headquarters in Albany through the newsletter were those of former Mayor John V. Lindsay; New York Democratic Reps. Herman Badillo, Shirley Chisholm and Charles Rangel; Bronx Borough President Robert Abrams, Bishop Paul Moore Jr. of the Episcopal Diocese of New York and filmstar Dustin Hoffman.

Creator of Opus 40

Bizarre Tragedy Claims Harvey Fite

HIGH WOODS — Harvey Fite, the renowned sculptor and artist, and longtime Ulster County resident, was found dead Sunday following what State Police described as a bizarre lawn-mower accident at his home here.

Troopers said Fite, 72, was apparently operating a riding lawn mower on top of Opus 40, the monumental environmental landscape sculpture he had been creating over more than four decades. Police said he must have lost control of the mower and gone over the edge of the mammoth sculpture which had been developed in an old bluestone quarry. His death had apparently resulted from hitting his head on bluestone rock 15 feet below.

Fite's body was discovered around 8 p.m. by a friend who had arrived for dinner. Police estimated his death had occurred sometime between 4 and 8 p.m.

One of the nation's most prominent sculptors, Fite had travelled widely, studying the stone work and architecture of the Far East and West. His own work in wood and stone had been influenced by the ancient stone work of Egypt, Thailand and Cambodia.

In 1960 he had restored the Castle of Rocca Cinivalla, built in 1430 and located in the mountains beyond Rome. He was also an admirer of Khmer sculpture and had visited many Asiatic temples, including Angkor Wat, which was much in the news during the Vietnam War. Some of the beauty and detail of the walls of Angkor Wat were present in Fite's sculpture works.

A prolific sculptor, Fite was also a Professor of Sculpture at Bard College for many years. He retired from that position early in this decade and was a Professor Emeritus of the college at the time of his death.

Eminently famed for his sculpture, he was equally renowned for Opus 40, the huge maze of bluestone that covered almost 10 acres. He had worked alone for decades to construct the abandoned quarry and its chaos of stone rubble into an ordered artistic creation of circular platforms connected by winding corridors and stairways, quiet pools of water and winding paths connecting the various levels.

Art critics, awed by its grandeur, often wrote that there was nothing in the annals of art that remotely compared with it in conception.

On occasion, Fite would open his rarely seen creation to the public for a worthy community cause. One local organization that benefited from such showings was the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Kingston.

In recent years, he had added another attraction at the site. After building a rustic museum in the woods, he put on display his large collection of tools and artifacts, machines and implements used by the early quarrymen, carpenters, farmers, housewives, fire-fighters and stone masons of Ulster County.

Fite had been working on Opus 40, his gargantuan one-man-made architectural restructuring of the landscape, since 1942. His schedule called for its completion in 1982 It seemed already complete to the hundreds who had viewed it, but Fite often suggested that it would never be finished.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Buono Funeral Service, Inc., Saugerties.

Kirschner To Seek Treasurer's Post

PORT EWEN — Citing his near upset of County Clerk Albert Spada in last fall's election, along with other factors, Lewis C. Kirschner has announced he will actively seek the Democratic nomination for Ulster County Treasurer this year.

Kirschner lost to Spada by approximately 5,000 votes in what was considered a close race for a countywide election. Spurred by that record, by public statements of top county Democratic leaders in support of his potential candidacy, and encouraged by pledges of support from vast numbers of area residents, says Kirschner, he will seek the County Treasurer's post from which Republican Fred DuBois is retiring after 18 years.

"Because of my educational background and experience in county government," said the candidate, "I believe I can provide effective representation to Ulster County citizens, even though I recognize Fred DuBois will be difficult to replace."

Kirschner cited his experience as a former member of the County Legislature for six years as a major reason for seeking the nomination for treasurer.

His experience in the Legislature, he says, "has familiarized me with all county operations." And, as a result he suggests, his election "would assure county residents that I would serve as the watchdog of county funds since that function would be carried on by a County Treasurer who possesses the necessary familiarity with the financial operations of Ulster County."

Kirschner also notes the office carries many diversified responsibilities, including maintaining the county's financial books and records, and "assuring the proper use of public funds in the best interest of the county."

Referring to the fact that government "benefits" from a check and balance system, Kirschner said, in his opinion, "there is no greater need for proper checks and balances than in the expenditure of public funds." Since the County Legislature prepares the county budget, and is controlled by the Republican party, he suggested, what better check on county funds could the public have than through the election of a former member of the County Legislature, who represents the Democratic party.

Dems Set Meeting

The Kingston Democratic Mens' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting today at 8 p.m.

Gene Perry, club president, urges all members to be present at this important meeeting to forumlate plans for future meetings.

The meeting will be held at the Ten Grand Tavern, 118 Grand Street.

Permanent Nuclear Burial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It appears likely that deadly radioactive garbage may be disposed of forever by burial far beneath the ground.

The government has launched an effort to solve the problem of permanent nuclear waste disposal by 1985, and the Energy Research and Development Administration sends Congress this week a five-volume, 1,500-page analysis of various means for handling and storing atomic power plant wastes.

ERDA says a plan will be announced "in the near future" by the Energy Resources Council and public comment will be invited.

Others have tried — and failed — to find acceptable solutions to the problem of atomic disposal for more than three decades.

Top German Terrorist Used Violence to End

STUTTGART, West Germany (UPI) — Ulrike Meinhof died as she lived — violently.

She spent two frantic years as a leader of West Germany's urban guerrillas, abandoning her twin daughters and a career as a writer to go underground.

"Resistance is my making certain that something which does not suit me no longer occurs," she wrote in jail. "Naturally, shooting is permitted."

The 41-year-old, pipesmoking, petite brunette hanged herself with a towel early Sunday in her cell in Stuttgart's Stammheim prison.

She and three other members of the "Red Army Faction" — as they called themselves — had been on trial for nearly a year on charges they staged a terrorist campaign of bombings and bank robberies.

Four American soldiers were killed and 13 others injured in two 1972 bombings at U.S. Army headquarters in West Germany. The Red Army Faction claimed responsibility for the blasts.

The reason for her suicide was unknown. Justice Ministry officials said no note was found.

Acquaintances said Mrs. Meinhof may have killed herself because she despaired of achieving her goal of overthrowing what she called the "repressive capitalist bourgeois system."

Her lawyer, Prof. Axel Azzola, said, "The authorities are responsible for her death. There is no such thing as suicide. There are only the pursuers and the pursued."

Justice authorities said they feared her death might lead to retaliatory terror attacks.

(In Paris, branch offices of two German firms near the Avenue Champs Elysees were gutted by firebombs Sunday night. Another bomb seriously damaged the German Cultural center in Toulouse. No injuries were reported in any of the incidents.

Death Toll Rises; New Italian Tremors

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — Two new tremors shook northern Italy's disaster area today, and a government spokesman said the death toll from Thursday's earthquake would soar over the 1,000-mark.

An army of soldiers and volunteer rescuers dug through the ruins of two dozen shattered mountain communities for the fourth day and officials said their original estimate of 1,000 dead may have been too low.

"When we first spoke of 1,000 dead, it was what we feared," Udine prefecture spokesman Natale Labia said. "Now we are almost there and we fear it will be even more."

Police said 815 bodies had been recovered from the rubble of northeast Italian towns and villages hit by the Thursday earthquake and 523 had been identified. Police reported about 1,300 injured. Officials would not estimate how many bodies might still be buried in the debris.

Digging resumed at dawn in debris made shakier Sunday by a heavy downpour.

Reports from outlying villages said at least three persons were found alive under the rubble Sunday. Officials said it would be several more days before isolated hamlets can be combed for bodies or survivors. Two more shocks, measuring between 5 and 6 on the 12-degree Mercalli scale, were felt in the area before dawn, but no new damage or casualties were reported.

The aftershocks were intense enough to cause only moderate damage under normal circumstances, but scientists said they could have caused the collapse of buildings weakened by the main shock. They did not even awaken many refugees in their army tents or railroad cars.

"There is no great problem with the shocks, but the weather make things very difficult first the sun and now the rain," an Italian interior ministry spokesman said in Udine.

Rescue workers slogging through heavy rains appealed for tents to shelter the thousands left homeless by Thursday's earthquake.

Another sharp earthquake jolted northeastern Italy Sunday morning, about 53 hours after Thursday's major tremor devastated 24 Friuli region towns. The new quake sent panicky thousands fleeing into streets in nightclothes but claimed no more lives.

Heavy rain Sunday night pelted the stricken area adjoining the Austrian and Yugoslav frontiers and rescue officials appealed for additional thousands of tents.

Senate Report: FBI Did Over 200 'Black Bag Jobs'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI conducted more than 200 illegal "black bag job" breakins against domestic groups between 1948 and 1966 without telling the Justice Department, a Senate committee staff report said today.

The report, latest in a series released by the Senate Intelligence Committee, said former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover outlawed the practice for use against domestic targets in 1966 for undisclosed reasons.

It quoted from a 1966 staff memo by former assistant FBI director William C. Sullivan, saying the technique was "clearly illegal" and that authorization was not sought outside the FBI because "it would be impossible to obtain any legal sanction for it."

The committee said the FBI continues today to use clandestine entry techniques without warrants to gather evidence on "foreign agents" with the permission of the Justice Department. It recommended that warrants be required.

Other committee reports issued during the past week have told of 40 years of FBI bugging and tapping of telephones in noncriminal cases, and traced the development of domestic spying activities that included the incitement of violence between rival factions of dissident groups.

The reports prompted an unprecedented public apology from FBI director Clarence J. Kelley, who said in a speech at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., Saturday, "We are truly sorry we were responsible for instances which now are subject to such criticism." He said they must not be repeated.

The latest report said "black bag" entries against at least 15 targets were apart from 1,000 other breakins made to install hidden microphones or wiretaps.

It said the FBI reported at least 239 entries between 1942 and 1966, more than 200 of them in the post-World War II years and some of them involving repeated entries against the same targets.

Despite Hoover's ban, the report said there was evidence one illegal breakin was made against a "domestic subversive target" between 1966 and 1968.

Targets included the Ku Klux Klan, the Socialist Workers Party and its affiliates, and an unidentified "white hate group."

The report said in most cases the FBI was able to obtain keys for the breakins from cooperative landlords or neighbors, but if this was impossible agents specially trained in "lock studies" were available to open doors and safes."

One SWP affiliate was such a frequent target the FBI even had written instructions to burglarize its offices, the report said. The FBI carefully avoided mention of breakins for any purpose to higher officials, the report said.

It quoted one FBI official who briefed former attorney general Robert F. Kennedy on bugging operations as saying he was "purposely vague" and that Kennedy may not have been aware breakins were used to plant the bugs.

Ford Forced to Change

A worried President Ford, facing prospects of losing "crucial" primaries to Ronald Reagan in Nebraska Tuesday and in his home state of Michigan May 18, summoned political aides to talk strategy and revise his campaign schedule.

The President returned Saturday from a two-day swing through Nebraska, and called in campaign aides Sunday, where it was decided to add a second day in Michigan this week. Additional senior aides, including campaign manager Rogers Morton, were to meet with him late today.

Originally scheduled to campaign in Michigan Wednesday, and in Kentucky, Tennessee and possibly Arkansas later in the week, Ford has rescheduled a second trip to Michigan — to the tulip festival in Holland and to his home town of Grand Rapids — Saturday.

The second day in Michigan reportedly came at the expense of Arkansas, but that had not been a firm date.

Meanwhile, the Yankee state of Maine, which gave southerner Jimmy Carter one of his early boosts for the Democratic nomination by favoring him in district delegate maneuvering before New Hampshire, now may have given him a rare — if minor — setback.

Carter won nine of the state's 20 delegates in Maine's Democratic state convention. But the convention unexpectedly elected five delegates for Morris Udall and left six uncommitted, thus blocking Carter from winning the majority his supporters predicted.

Carter spent Sunday at his home in Plains, Ga., while Udall and Henry Jackson campaigned in Connecticut in hopes of upsetting the former Georgia governor there.

Jackson took himself out of the active campaign after losing the Pennsylvania primary last month, but said he would fulfill his commitments in Connecticut and on Sunday spoke of a possible miracle there to reestablish his candidacy.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said on television (CBS-TV's Face the Nation) the race is still wide open and he hopes to win the Maryland primary May 18. He picked up his first delegate Saturday in Wyoming.

"Some people think the campaign is locked up," said Brown. "I think it's wide open ... I think the chemistry of this campaign can change in Maryland. And as we spread across the country, you're going to see some real surprises."

Brown said he is seeking uncommitted delegates across the country, and will campaign in New Jersey, Nevada, and his home state of California.

Reagan widened his lead over Ford in weekend delegate selection in six states, gaining 28 new delegates to Ford's 18. The new totals show Reagan with 397 to Ford's 336, with 298 uncommitted. It takes 1,130 to nominate at the GOP convention in Kansas City in August.

In Democratic delegate selections, 39 were chosen over the weekend but most of them were uncommitted. Carter picked up 13 to bring his total to 574.

Anticipates Battle For Spy Watchdog

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Powerful opposition awaits the effort by Senate reformers to create a strong, prestigious committee for overseeing all U.S. intelligence activities.

Senate leaders scheduled the start today of what promises to be a bitter floor battle between reformers who want to establish a committee with legislative and budgetary powers and old guard conservatives backing a second-rank panel with little authority.

The decision to create a new intelligence oversight committee stemmed from the lengthy investigation which exposed abuses by the CIA, FBI and other intelligence gathering agencies.

Led by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who spearheaded the investigation, the reformers persuaded the Government Operations Committee to recommend an 11-member panel with legislative powers that cut deeply into its own jurisdiction and into territory now controlled by the Armed Services, Judiciary and Foreign Relations Committees.

But on a 5-4 vote, the reformers were beaten when they sought approval by the Rules Committee.

The rules panel approved creation of a select committee — not a fullranking standing committee — with no legislative powers and no control over the intelligence budget. In addition, 8 of the 11 members would be drawn from the committees which have handled intelligence oversight in the past.

It seemed doubtful the reformers will be able to reverse this move completely and get all they want in the way of independence for their oversight committee with powers to review the intelligence budgets, review covert operations in advance and disclose spy secrets on its own authority.

The Rules Committee stripped those powers from the proposal it cleared. And, although reformers are prepared to fight in floor debate, the mood of Congress seems to have shifted away from the outrage provoked by the intelligence committee's disclosures to concern for protection of U.S. security abroad.

Speed Reading Course To Begin in Kingston

Arrangements have been made by the Institute of Speed Reading, Inc., to conduct a 24 hour course in speed reading. The course is open to anyone above the age of 13 and guarantees every graduate a reading speed triple that of your present rate and with at least an increase in comprehension.

After the eight week program a person can read any average length book in less than an hour and understand it better. In addition to speed reading the course also emphasizes improved study techniques, better test taking skill, and increased concentration and retension abilities.

The course requires a person to attend one class per week on the evening of their choice. For those who would like more information, without obligation to enroll, a series of Free one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled.

These meetings are free to the public and the course will be explained in complete details including entrance requirements, class room schedule and location. You need to attend only one of the meetings whichever one is most convenient for you. These free one hour orientations will be held as follows:

Monday the 10th at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday the 11th at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday the 12th at 7:30 p.m. AND FINAL MEETING THURSDAY, MAY 13th AT 7:30 P.M. ALL MEETINGS UPSTAIRS AT THE KINGSTON-ULSTER COUNTY YMCA. 507 BROADWAY, KINGSTON.

Saugerties Democrats Taking on A New Face

By Mary Messina
Special Correspondent

SAUGERTIES — The new face of the Saugerties Democratic Club is a smiling one. Its programs are attracting wide audiences and proving socially and intellectually rewarding.

A large and enthusiastic gathering heard Dr Gerald P. Gorman, Kingston, define some of the health problems directly related to stress "Recognizing the problem is the first step in relieving it," he said. Using x-rays to graphically illustrate the ravages of prolonged cigarette smoking, Dr. Gorman gave a lucid description of the predisposition and receptiveness of the body to cancer in the case of the heavy smoker.

Club president, William Marchetti, suggests that area residents keep alert for announcements of future meetings and welcomes all individuals regardless of political .

Statistics show that most smokers are in this category inasmuch as only 30 per cent of the population is smoking the billions of cigarettes manufactured annually — and are paying dearly — often with their lives.

The doctor recommended that everyone should take advantage of the free chest X-ray at the Ulster County Chest Clinic. Its primary purpose as a diagnostic tool is to detect cancer or lung disorders as early as possible.

An Explanation

Dr. Gerald P. Corman of Kingston explains the relation of cigarette smoking and lung cancer during his appearance before the Saugerties Democratic Club with the aid of this X-ray picture.

Barclay Sewers Underway

Special Correspondent

SAUGERTIES — Wednesday, May 5, marked the official ground-breaking for the Barclay Heights Sewer Project The first contract, known as contract 1A, was awarded to Halmar Construction of Mt Vernon. Dante Serricchio is the superintendent A Diachishin and Associates are the consulting engineers for the project which has begun under the supervision of Robert Longfield, resident field engineer

According to Longfield, the work begins at the Esopus Creek at East Bridge Street and crosses Ferry to Burt Street Hill up to 9W. There will be a 100-foot tunnel under the road that will be about 22 feet deep Traveling along the western side of 9W about 24 feet down to Overbaugh to Simmons Drive on to Appletree Drive, this part of the project ends as called for in contract 1A

The big, interesting red machine that has attracted so many school children on Simmons Drive is known as a drill rig and is used for a well point system Caissons are being sunk into the ground to take up any subterranean water in order to keep the trenches dry while workers are digging It will be used all along the way, and it is fascinating to watch

The construction company has 300 days in which to complete the work outlined in contract 1A The section of work to be done on 9W will be inspectsd for approval by the New York State Transportation Authority The second contract hasn't been awarded as yet, but when it is, it will include connecting feeder lines to the main trunk line that is being constructed now. Six hundred days have been allowed for that

KINGSTON — The office of the Registrar of Vital Statistics of the City of Kingston will not be able to provide full services on Thursday, May 27, because office personnel will be attending an out-of-town conference that day

The office will remain open, and will be staffed that day, but only for informational purposes

James Earl Ray Loses His Try for New Trial

CINCINNATI (UPI) — James Earl Ray, the confessed assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who now claims he is innocent, today lost his latest attempt to change his guilty plea and stand trial.

The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, in a unanimous 3-0 ruling, decided that Ray had intelligently and voluntarily pleaded guilty to killing the civil rights leader and had received competent legal advice.

King was assassinated April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tenn. Ray, who pleaded guilty to first degee murder on March 10, 1969, is now serving a 99-year sentence at the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville.

Ever since entering the guilty plea, Ray has been seeking to withdraw that plea and to stand trial

Ray based his appeal on the contention that his guilty plea was not "voluntarily and intelligently" made because his attorney, Percy Foreman, pressured him into pleading guilty against his will

Ray contended Foreman made him believe the judge would not permit him to change attorneys and that unless he pleaded guilty, he had no alternative but to go to trial with Foreman, whom he felt he could not trust

The appellate court decided, however, "the plea was entered voluntarily and knowingly"

The appellate judges said that Judge Preston Battle "very carefully questioned Ray as to the voluntariness of his plea before it was accepted"

Ray also appealed on grounds he was denied "effective assistance of counsel"

Brewery Strike Settled

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Employes returned to work today at the Anheuser-Busch brewery here following settlement of a two-month strike

Strikes continued, however, at Anheuser-Busch plants in eight cities in other states

Ben Merker, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 102, said he was not satisfied with the new pact and added that out-of-state strikers might come to Newark to picket.

A brewery spokesman said later that no pickets had shown up and that the first and second shifts of workers had reported on schedule

The returning workers packaged and shipped beer that had been brewed on a limited basis during the strike. The plant brewmaster prepared to begin the first full brew on Tuesday

Rocky Completely Out of It

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said today he saw no possibility of accepting a draft for the Republican presidential nomination

Rockefeller, here to address the opening session of the International Press Institute's annual convention, met with reporters after his speech and praised President Ford for his leadership

He was then asked if there was any situation at all in which he would accept a draft for the GOP presidential nomination

"I can see absolutely none," Rockefeller said

In his speech to some 245 IPI journalists from around the world, the vice president called on the nations of the free world to block any further expansion of Soviet communism

"Whether we like it or not, a continuing attempt is under way to organize the world into a new empire in which the Soviet sun never sets," he said "This new form of imperialism involves ideological, diplomatic, economic, financial, political and military structures and relationships importantly dominated by and directed from Moscow"

Rockefeller said "a positive and far closer partnership of the independent nations of the world" would be needed to oppose "the Soviet's expansionist thrust"

Police Chiefs Hit Cuts

Dear Editor:

Attached find copy of letter sent to Governor Hugh Carey, State Senators Richard Schermerhorn, Edwyn E. Mason, and Assemblymen Emeel S. Betros and Maurice D. Hinchey Jr.

We, the Police Chief's of Ulster County feel that this subject is important enough to be brought to the attention of the public through the press media. We also solicit favorable editorials if you agree with our position.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention to this matter, I remain:

Very truly yours,
JULIUS GLASSMAN
PRESIDENT, Police Chiefs of Ulster County, Inc.

Governor Hugh L. Carey
New York State Capitol
Albany, New York

Dear Governor Carey:

This letter is being submitted to you for the purpose of formally advising of our opposition to the recent cuts in the budget of the New York State Police.

The cuts have drastically affected the Services of the New York State Police to the People of Ulster County and also must affect the assistance to local police departments in the near future. In the interests of justice and the protection of the people of the county, reinstatement of such budget cuts must be given top priority.

A reduction of police vehicles, mileage limitations, and restrictions of Troopers performing bonafide necessary police duty due to overtime restrictions is abhorrent. A loss of law enforcement can only endanger our society. Police departments, including the State Police, have always been historically very frugal and politically impotent. We feel you have a moral obligation in seeing that adequate law enforcement is maintained.

We, the Chiefs of the Police Departments of Ulster County, vehemently oppose these cuts and endorse their reinstatement forthwith in the present session of the legislature.

Thanking you in advance for your prompt consideration in this matter, I remain

Very Truly Yours,
Chief JULIUS GLASSMAN
President, Police Chiefs of Ulster County

Sees a 'Power Group'

Dear Editor:

The integrity of Onteora School Board member, Mr. Howard Lewis, sinks to a new low by reason of his recent attack in your columns against School Superintendent Dr. Frank Marlow. But his attack does serve one good purpose. It reveals and confirms what many of Onteora's concerned citizens have begun to suspect — that the trumped up and without-substance charges brought against Dr. Marlow by the Onteora Board of Education actually did constitute a shameful coverup of hypocrisy and deceit. Now Howard Lewis has raised a brand new issue. Why was this particular issue omitted from the list of charges originally brought by the Board? — For the simple reason that the Board well knew the pack lies, half truths and distortions of fact, so viciously expounded by Mr. Lewis at this late date, would have been thrown out when reviewed by the State Board of Education as nothing else but cheap slander.

Howard Lewis seems to have a diabolical talent for character assasination. He appears to have learned little from the spontaneous outburst of boos and catcalls when at a recent Board meeting he prefaced his remarks with a cheap vaudeville "joke" about "counting his fingers after a handshake with Dr. Marlow." Is it not unlikely it was at this moment that Mr. Lewis may have had second thoughts, and soon thereafter decided not to run for re-election to the Board? And did not Mr. Lewis play amateur psychoanalyst when he flatly stated that Dr. Marlow was "looking not only for another job — but a better one? These are the slanderous presumptions of Mr. Lewis — his words — and in no way are the thoughts or words of Dr. Marlow.

Concerned citizens of Onteora should note that until June 1974 previous Board evaluations of Dr. Marlow's performance were pronounced as satisfactory. Is it not strange — within three short months thereafter — and only when Mrs. Beverly Britting and two other new members were elected to the Board, that Mrs. Britting headed up the move to explo.e ways and means to break the contract of Dr. Marlow? Whereupon they developed the seven insidious and phoney charges which threw the district into a turmoil.

With a decision pending on Dr. Marlow's appeal to the Higher Board, I would ask Mr. Howard Lewis how, in good conscience, dare he suggest that Dr. Marlow, at this juncture, immediately to move out? With the callous actions of the Onteora Board of Education responsible for the dark cloud overhanging the reputation and professional standing of Dr. Marlow, is it not fair and just that he retain his post as School Superintendent until the State Board renders its verdict on the Appeal — hopefully one of complete vindication?

Concerned citizens of Onteora should again read the last paragraph of Mr. Lewis's "hate" letter. I believe it is a logical question whether "Peace" might more quickly come to Onteora by the departure of Howard Lewis himself —and the stepping down of certain other vengeful members of the Board.

Yes, I am not quite convinced that what we at present have in Onteora is a Board NOT dedicated to the ideals of nurturing and improving the standards of our educational system. What we now have instead is a POWER GROUP, utilizing without conscience the unsavoury tactics and manipulations that invariably go with abuse of power. May I cite the depressing example of the Power Group which manned the inner sanctum of Ex-President Nixon? They destroyed the President — and they destroyed themselves. With a Power Bloc as we now have on the Onteora Board of Education, ultimately they may well wind up with their own dismal and destructive Watergate.

Very truly yours,
WALTER COWAN

'Dollar Difference'

Dear Editor:

To the Editor and the Taxpayers of the Onteora School District:

Once again the Sneaky Six have pulled it off. We've been "had" again!

At the "special public meeting" of Apr. 21, — "special" because only certain (i.e., "hand-chosen") people attend and "public" because members of the press are carefully notified and the "specials" are not bona fide Board members, — the findings of "our new architects" (Dr. Keogh's terminology) were brought to light and discussed. The Big Thing was the "dollar difference" (Sam Mercer's terminology) in the report of "our new architects" as compared to that of our "old" architects M.D. Lane Associates, — $8,500 as compared to a whopping $189,000. How come? Everyone Asked.

To Board candidate Dexter Olsen's comments of "It's such a discrepancy. The public will have a lot of questions," Board President Donald Lawson glibly replied, "I certainly share the same curiosities."

Really now.

To begin with, the kind of report "new" architects Kaminsky and Shiffer were asked to give differed vastly from the one given by the "old" architects. In the second place, Kaminsky and Shiffer had the decided advantage of working with a newly-devised, much-simplified State Education Dept. Form EFP-E, — a fact that surfaced at the meeting only through questions raised by OCS staff member Bert Breitenberger. (Bless you, Bert). No where, in any of the reports I heard or read, did these very important facts appear. Was it because the big voices of Mercer, Mower, and Darrow (in order of bigness) were strangely quiet? Don't forget, Taxpayers, that the Sneaky Six want you to know ONLY what THEY THINK you should know!

It should have been obvious to anyone at all familiar with them that there is little comparison between the complex and comprehensive report of M. D. Lane Associates and the simplistic one of Kaminsky and Shiffer. Be that as it may, the public has been left with the belief that Onteora needs but eight-thousand-five-hundered dollars worth of additional work and repairs to get the necessary approval of the State Education Department in order to receive the State Aid monies due us on Proposition I.

That was Wednesday night, April 21, in the new, sparkling All-Purpose Area of the Jr. High School, — a piece of sheer genius created out of a homely, strictly-utilitarian corridor.

And then, in Saturday morning's mail, the other shoe dropped: This Board member received Part II of Kaminsky and Shiffer's report. A few things bother me:

1. Both parts of this report are dated April 19, 1976 . Why did not Part II appear on Wednesday night along with Part I?

2. If due to lack of time copies of Part II could not be completed for Wednesday night's meeting, why was existence of it never mentioned? Both Don Lawson and Dr. Keough had to know of it. By Wednesday night so, too, did Trustees (!) Britting, Darrow, Mercer and Mower.

3. Why did not Don Lawson answer Dexter Olsen's comments with the truth: that taking the whole of the Kaminsky and Shiffer report and considering that the Board is adding into its 1976-77 Budget some items that appeared in the Lane report, the final figures in each report are amazingly close?

I propose that we have here simply more evidence of the half-truths and the under-handedness to which the Sneaky Six treat the public. As a prominent and much-respected member of the Onteora School District said to me: "For the past year your Board of Education has done only one thing: back-stabbing. When are they going to stop?

The beginning of the end, I hope, will come with the School Board elections on May 26th.

EDNA L. HOYT
Member, Onteora Central Schools Board of Education.

A Crise de Foi

WASHINGTON — God checked out sometime in the middle of the 19th Century, but he didn't take the need for an omnipotent, unifying and integrating principle with him. That principle, as many have remarked, was transferred to the national state.

It was a relatively easy transmission since God was so frequently associated with the secular Mower when he was alive.

The substitution of the state for the divinity in the tabermacle was obvious enough in Fascist Germany, but not as self-evident in a democracy like our own for we are a people who detest our government while we worship our nationhood, which is the spiritual essence of our state.

It is easy enough to look at the old newsreels of the Nazi rallies in Nuremberg and the current Soviet ones in Red Square and see what principle reigns where the dead god once did.

Because we attend similar events ourselves in a happy, reverential and patriotic spirit, the religious character of our Veterans' Day parades escapes us.

But another and larger impediment to our recognizing our worship of the state exists' We are a democracy, and we believe democracy is a rational arrangement of human society whereby first there is reasonable debate and thsn the will of the people is expressed by the election of officeholders who proceed to carry the popular mandate into practical effect.

National elections are nothing of the sort. The mandate or platform or program is invariably ambiguous to the point of incomprehensibility, and the election of one man as opposed to another is seldom of any practical consequence to most of us.

Instead you might regard elections as a way of celebrating mass in honor of our nationhood. It is the supreme symbolic rite of our secular religion, and like the older forms of Christian worship it serves to unify, reaffirm and assure the voters in the pews.

But in this late winter primary season, it appears that the members of the great democratic congregation are suffering a crise de foi. Many are saying, "What difference does it make? Why vote? They all go back on their promises."

We're not the first Americans to say those things. There have always been atheists in the congregation, just as there have always been members who temporarily absented themselves because they objected to the high church liturgy in the national cathedral, but they still believed in the religion. The discontented maintained their faith in elections; they just wanted them conducted differently.

This isn't the first period in our history that we've had low voter turnouts either, but it may be the first one that doubts the efficacy of the ritual. This isn't the same as the much talked about, if questionable, general apathy. This is disbelief, and without faith the electoral sacrament can't do its work of relieving social tension, or resolving anxiety and providing the communion of post-electoral contentment which causes the commentators to tell us, "The people have spoken."

The political atheism in the air is palpable. The same commentators refer to it as the cynicism and disillusionment in the wake of Vietnam and Watergate.

But other generations have had hard knocks and dreadful politicians. Of our 38 presidents, 10 or fewer can be fairly said to have reached the heights of inefmediocrity. No, the difference is that in times past, in the church and in the voting both, people did not see how inefficacious these ceremonies are in terms of their own lives.

Now they do.

Fewer and fewer join political parties, the very rough equivalent of the Holy Name Society or teaching Sunday school in the secular church. Again, the failure to sign up is attributed to disillusionment, but historically ths best predictor of a person's party affiliation and political disposition has been his parents, his family, not the honesty or honor of politicians.

Perhaps, just as families can no longer inculcate religious belief, they can no longer transmit political values. Are we disillusioned, or are we coming to be a nation of different people who perceive differently and think differently because we live in changed circumstances?

If the times have swollen the proportion of political agnostics, it may account for the impression that who wins these elections is less important than that why have elections.

Certainly, the acolytes in the cathedral of American democracy, the media people, seem to be straining is never before to bring the elections off. the candidates themselves act like priests of troubled faith and let the media hit us from every side, twice a day, with lectures and lessons on the importance, gravity and epochal meaning of every detail of the electoral celebration: Cronkite, Chancellor and Reasoner out on the streets distributing Bible verses like Seventh Day Adventists.

We don't care who you vote for but vote. For long decades religiously affiliated schools had compulsory chapel attendance for their agnostic student bodies. The purpose wasn't the cure of souls but the concealment of the loss of faith from those officiating at the services. Some people are demanding voting be made compulsory. God died anyway, will faith in the American national state pack it in also?

"Black Bag' Jo

WASHINGTON — The FBI, without technically telling an untruth, has led the public to believe its agents took part in no more than 238 criminal housebreakings. The actual figure is well over 1,000 and may surpass 2,000.

These "black bag" jobs, as the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover called them, were employed principally against suspected spies, organized crime figures, foreign diplomats and a few dangerous revolutionaries.

But Hoover also sent his agents to burglarize the premises of law-abiding U.S. citizens whom the old FBI curmudgeon simply disliked.

Confidential FBI memos, obtained by the Senate Intelligence Committee, acknowledge that the "black bag" jobs violated the criminal laws the FBI was supposed to enforce. Yet we have learned from FBI sources that Hoover, although sworn to uphold the laws, personally sanctioned more than 1,000 of the break-ins.

Not until 1967 did Hoover take steps, in a self-serving memo turned up by the Senate probers, to end the break-ins. Even then, we have learned, it wasn't his own idea but pressure from then-Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark that brought the change.

The figure of 238 "surrepitious entries," as the burglaries were politely called, first appeared in an FBI memo to the Senate committee om Sept. 23, 1975.

The memo accurately but cagily reported that the 238 housebreakings were perpetrated against 14 "domestic subversive targets" during the 1942-68 period. But a careful reading shows the bureau left a hedge. Almost in passing, the memo indicates the figure is "incomplete," based as much on the memory of agents as on actual data. Indeed, Hoover purposely destroyed many of the records dealing with the break-ins, presumably to eliminate documentary evidence of the FBI crimes.

From our internal sources, however, we have ascertained that some top FBI officials believe the 1,000-to-2,000 figure is a "conservative estimate" of the total housebreakings.

These include not only burglaries to get information but break-ins to install bugging devices. One source said the housebreakings go back far beyond 1942 and never terminated completely in 1968. Under FBI chief Clarence Kelley, however, the bureau has scrupulously followed legal procedures.

The Senate Intelligence Committee, meanwhile, has pushed the FBI hard for more complete break-in figures. The committee will release a report shortly showing the confirmed housebreakings totaled slightly less than 1,000. Our higher figures, however, came from indisputable FBI sources.

In defense of the past practice of breaking and entering, the FBI said this technique was used only "to obtain secret and closely guarded organizational and financial information" or to plant electronic equipment in the most "highly selective" cases.

Footnote: Those who believe in law and order had better demand that it begin with the government. A lawless government is far more dangerous than any lawless individual. Yet in spite of the clear evidence that the FBI, CIA and other agencies engaged in illegal acts, the senate Rules Committee led by Chairman Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., voted against strong oversight of these agencies.

CHAUFFEUR'S COMPLAINT: The former secretary of Rep. Phillip Burton, D.-Calif., a member of the powerful House leadership, has accused him of requiring her to chauffeur him around at all hours until it broke her health.

Mrs. Nina-Ann Coleman, 91, also claims she had to pay more than $15,000 from her own pocket for gasoline, repairs, insurance and a succession of cars since 1967 to keep up with Burton's 12-hour days.

In a confidential claim submitted to the Labor Dept. for disability payments, the former secretary charges that she was pressed into service as a chauffeur not only for the congressman but for his wife, a movie star, union friends and other colleagues.

She ferried Mrs. Burton to the market, to clothing stores and to parties, the filed papers allege. On one occasion, Mrs. Coleman picked up a Burton aide at Dulles Airport, she said, but later discovered he had submitted a voucher for the trip and had chiseled $20 out of the denies the charge.

On the way home from another airport pickup, according to Mrs. Coleman, the cigarette smoke in he car was so thick, it precipitated an asthma attack. A statement from her doctor separations before she was fired by Burton earlier this year.

Responding to the Labor Dept.'s request for comment, Burton said Mrs. Coleman's illness had made her irritable, nervous and absent from work about two months a year since 1974. He conceded to us that she had driven him a great deal but said he had reimbursed her for some trips.

In any case, he said, chauffeuring "was part of her job responsibility and her pay reflected" the added responsibility.

The Fourth Age of Man

I'm not old, but...

There are more bridges in my mouth than span the Mississippi. I only use glasses when I want to see something. Arthritis is no problem except in the spine, the thumbs and my good shoulder.

Golf has been cut to four times a week. My grandsons Jim and Kevin cannot look down on me if I kneel on a chair. The barber claims to have found a bald spot in the back, but I have not seen it.

Either the type in newspapers is smaller or my arms are shorter. I am sure that the next generation has gone to hell in a hand basket and so has the one behind that, and the one succeeding that one.

I used to love to breast the mountainous waves - what a waste of energy! The exquisite workbench and the gleaming tools I had in the cellar are in the hands of another sucker.

I had the mistaken notion that young ladies in scanty attire are alluring; I now see they are disgusting. There are five adult movies in my area; I attend the kiddie shows.

No matter how warm the night, I want a blanket. Nobody will listen to me tell how tough times were when I was a boy. When I agreed to permit my wife to cut her long hair, why did it have to be me who fell on the bed and cried?

I'm thinking of getting a face lift. Pants too. There are freckles on the back of my hands - in winter. I never forget a face, and never remember a name. All other drivers are maniacs. My nose is getting bigger and my lips are thinner.

On the phone, a busy signal irritates me. I do not envy young men with mountainous muscles; I just wish they'd play in other neighborhoods. My mother's been dead many years, but her cooking seems to have improved.

Something new has been added to slumber - the bathroom. It is distressing to listen to an elderly man speak, and find that he remembers everything I do, and nothing more. Young girls who fall in love should, in my estimation, be placed in institutions.

Pedestrians have only one right - to be killed. At what point did music composers stop writing melodies? Why is sex more important as it becomes less important? When Howard Hughes died, I said, "My God, such a young fella!"

The price I once paid for a new house, $5,990, I now pay for a car. I have no trouble putting trousers on, if I can lean against a chest of drawers. I sit in the shower because it's comfortable. No matter where it hurts, my wife has a pill for it.

I used to step over the sleeping dog with ease; now, on my approach, he runs for his life. My veins look like the back roads in the Catskills. My pot belly is here for the duration.

My head gets younger and younger - a few more years and it will be childish. Who's nervous? One eye is now stronger than the other, but that's true of everything that comes in twos. My penmanship is now uphill and partially indecipherable.

I laugh at jokes I don't understand' When I read articles about lung cancer, I smoke more. There are two types of politicians I never trust - the dishonest ones and the honest ones. Shaving is a bore.

On the other hand, trimming toe nails is an adventure. What brings on a charley horse in the middle of the night? My dreams are of Clara Bow and Marlene Dietrich, in black and white of course. These days, all insurance premiums are paid ahead of time.

I hope never to get a letter, even a nice one, from Social Security. The birthday cards from my sister Adele (the last of the flappers) now close with, "God bless you and keep you well." Young fellows who were reporters with me are now fat, loathsome presidents of corporations.

Bellboys smile and say, "Let me carry that suitcase, -

Dad." After two drinks, I refuse to shut up. I used to chastise my children; I can't bear it when they chastise theirs.

Youngsters are now growing up twice as fast as they used to. I'm not old, but I am convinced that there are four ages of man: Birth, youth, maturity, and "God you look great!"...

Wrong Issues by Carter Foes?

Nice guys, said Leo Durocher when he was snarling at umpires, finish last. Well, what do you make of Jimmy Carter, the bicuspid kid from Georgia peanut country?

Jimmy is a nice guy from away back, and he has been running away with the Democratic primaries. He fudges his points, which ought to get him condemned as a trimmer. But he has a way of making his fuzziness about such things as busing and abortion seem rooted in a real concern for his listeners' feelings, and this lets him off a lot of hooks. As a religious man, he exudes compassion. Nobody has really pinned him down on the subject of being charitable with other people's money, but when the time comes for an explanation he will surely find a non-abrasive straddle for that, too.

I can accept the "nice guy" image as a partial explanation for Carter's ballot box appeal. But when he won in Pennsylvania, a supposed "labor" state, there had to be more to it than an expression of religiosity and a dazzling smile. Could it be that Carter got 37 per cent of the Pennsylvania presidential preference vote as compared to Scoop Jackson's 25 per cent and Mo Udall's 19 per cent all on his own? Isn't it a more likely explanation that Jackson and Udall picked the wrong issues on which to go to the public?

Jackson, for example, let it be known that he was AFL-CIO boss George Meany's buddy-buddy, a ferocious opponent of right-to-work laws and an enemy of "runaway" industrialists who were closing their factories in the North in order to avail themselves of cheap labor in the South.

There is no doubt that the union bosses are against state right-to-work laws and would welcome labor contracts that would be uniform from the mill towns of New Hampshire to the bayous of Louisiana. But in poll after poll the rank and file of labor has shown that it is no great enemy of voluntary unionism.

As for the "runaway" factory argument in Pennsylvania, it just doesn't make much sense. Pennsylvania is steel country, and you just don't pick up steel plants and transplant them to South Carolina or Mississippi, where there is no coking coal and the rail and road distance to Detroit's automobile factories would make the shipment of raw steel extremely expensive.

The plain fact is that, outside of the Philadelphia area, Scoop Jackson's labor dependency failed him. A more puzzling matter is where the non-black "ethnics" went. Jackson's anti-Soviet stand should have commended him to all the Pennsylvania descendants of East European minorities. No doubt "ethnic" support accounted for at least some of the Jackson vote, but foreign policy apparently was less of an issue in Pennsylvania than in North Carolina, where Reagan beat Jerry Ford by some last minute denunciations of the Kissinger be-kind-to-Russia syndrome.

Could the Pennsylvania primary be taken as the latest bit of proof that there is no "labor" vote as such in the America of 1976? Jimmy Carter, outside of his rather tepid statement that he would not veto a Federal law designed to prohibit state right-to-work laws, has not kowtowed to the official labor hierarchies. His response to Jackson's perfervid chastisement of the South for "stealing" factories from the North was commonsensical.

The fact is that much of the plant building in the South has not been at the expense of the North; it has been a simple matter of national companies expanding their operations to take advantage of population growth in the "southern rim" states.

Without taking anything away from Carter as a personality-plus kid, it could be that he is winning primaries by default. Most of the country is out of sympathy with Udall-type liberalism. And Henry Jackson is now appealing for votes from "labor" constituencies that are probably just as tired of strikes as average citizens, sick of putting up with recalcitrant teachers or stubborn San Francisco municipal employes.

The President's Crisis

WASHINGTON — Having undergone primary election humiliations not experienced by a President since William Howard Taft in 1912, Gerald R. Ford is being braced with this stern advice: You will lose the nomination unless you place your house in order, starting with the sacking of Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State.

Dr. Kissinger's African safari, blamed for transforming defeat into catastrophe in Texas, has expanded the dump-Kissinger chorus into a howling mob. Party leaders are also calling for pro-Ford campaigning instead of anti-Reagan counterpunching, which hit counterproductive bottom with demands for release of Reagan's 1975 tax returns. Therefore, these politicians want an experienced wise man to travel full time with President Ford to protect him from the noxious gimmicks dredged up by press secretary Ron Nessen, author of the Reagan tax ploy.

But the President may ignore such pleas, particularly if he sticks with his political operatives who publicly and privately attribute Reagan's stunning victories to the "cross-over" Democrats rather than basic Ford campaign problems. They seemingly fail to comprehend the full gravity of the President's crisis, threatening him with the repudiation of an incumbent President, last suffered by Chester Arthur, if the contagion of primary defeats spreads.

That contagion began with the May Day massacre in Texas, a many-sided disaster for Mr. Ford. The landslide generated not only an estimated 10 per cent vote turnaround in Indiana which led to Mr. Ford's stunning upset there but also brought his lavishly financed campaign to virtual bankruptcy. On the road to defeat, Mr. Ford's agents engaged in profligate spending of nearly $1 million (four times Reagan's spending) in Texas. The result is not only job layoffs at the Ford campaign committee here but a parity of poverty between the Reagan and Ford campaigns.

Perhaps the most critical aspect of Texas, however, was the point of no-return for Henry Kissinger. His championship of black majority rule in Rhodesia is blamed for the magnitude of Reagan's win by Ford partisans who are publicly describing the Ford-Kissinger relationship in extraordinarily blunt terms. An example is Rep. Ed Derwinski, a consevative Republican and Ford delegate from Illinois.

"You don't go down to Africa and promise away the federal treasury four days before the Texas primary," Derwinski told us. "I think the President is a captive of Henry K. The subordinate is controlling his chief." Derwinski months ago urged Mr. Ford to fire Kissinger, but that idea is generating new disciples — such as conservative Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, once an ardent Kissinger fan, but also including some moderates.

Besides a new Secretary of State, Mr. Ford is being pressed to name a cool head to travel with him and provide instant wisdom of the kind given Reagan by Dr. Martin Anderson. That became clear the day before the Indiana primary when Nessen talked the President into demanding that Reagan release his 1975 income tax returns. When Reagan released the gross figures but not the actual returns, Nessen moralized that Reagan had not learned the lessons of Watergate.

That helped not at all in Indiana but generated instant outrage at the Treasury, where Secretary William Simon — a steadfast Ford loyalist — sent word to the White House that Reagan's personal income tax is nobody's business but his own. Other Republican politicians were appalled that the President had joined in county-level politicking.

Nessen's ploy was but a particularly maladroit aspect of the Ford campaign's dominant theme: undermine Reagan. In the wake of last Tuesday's triple defeat, pro-Ford Republican politicians outside his campaign organization feel he must try to forget about Reagan and concentrate on positive issues.

Whether Mr. Ford will take any of this advice, beginning with the easing-out of Dr. Kissinger, is by no means certain. Far more than the public generally realizes, the President is strong-minded to the point of stubbornness — as is reflected by a strange incident while campaigning in Indiana last weekend.

Winding up his Hoosier campaign, Mr. Ford asked an Indiana Republican Congressman, Rep. John Myers, for helpful hints. Myers had two: first, don't mention the Panama Canal; second, stop promising to keep Kissinger at the State Department. The President nodded, then did exactly the opposite on both points at his next stop.

Jerry Ford's ability to take advice may become critical over the next three weeks when he could well lose eight out of 10 primaries. Such losses conceivably could cost him the nomination, not in terms of delegates but in shredded prestige.

Accordingly, the President's supporters who regard Reagan's nomination as a limitless disaster are frantic that Ford heed their counsel, not to move right but to assume the presidential pedestal and shift attention to the booming economy. He cannot do that by applauding Henry Kissinger, defending the dictator of Panama and thrashing about with innuendo about Reagan's taxes.

A Tangential Bosom Maybe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The art world abounds in mysteries. Three that I have personally investigated are:

1. What was Mona Lisa smiling at?
2. What was Whistler's Mother staring at?
3. Which posed first, the Naked Maja or the Clothed Maja?

Opportunities to study these questions at first hand came about when the countries that own the paintings generously loaned them to the National Gallery of Art for special showings to American audiences.

At the time of the Mona Lisa exhibit in 1963, the prevailing theory among art critics was that her enigmatic smile was prompted by something the artist, Leonardo da Vinci, had said.

After viewing the portrait close up, and comparing it with several photographs I had taken, I was able to establish, at least to my satisfaction, that what Leonardo said was: "Say 'cheese.'"

As for Whistler's Mother, which came here the following year, my research indicated there were only two occasions when a matron's eyes become fixed in the type of glassy stare seen in this painting.

One is when she is watching television and the other is when she is half snockered on cooking sherry.

Television not having been invented at the time Mrs. Whistler posed for her son, the conclusion was that she must have been nipping a bit that day.

This brings us to the Naked Maja, which has arrived from Spain for a loan exhibition along with its companion piece, the Clothed Maja.

One thing is certain, contrary to what was once suspected. The sitter for these famous paintings was not the Duchess of Alba, girl friend of the artist, Francisco Goya.

Or at least she didn't pose for the part above the neck.

There is a portrait of the Duchess hanging in New York and the countenance seen thereon does not match the visage of Goya's Majas.

It's possible, of course, that Goya painted the Duchess from the neck down and then gave her another woman's face.

In any event, most art experts surmise that Goya painted the nude version first. But I'm convinced it was the other way around.

I base that conclusion on the Naked Maja's bosom. She has — how shall it put this? — a tangential bust. By which I mean that the two sides tend to veer off in opposite directions.

I have seen a lot of Playboy centerfolds in my time and I've never seen anything quite like that.

It therefore is my theory that Goya never saw the Naked Maja undressed. By which I mean that she posed fully clothed and Goya did the nude version from imagination. Which was somewhat faulty.

Admittedly, this is not as brilliant a deduction as my art detective work on the Mona Lisa and Whistler's Mother. But if it adds anything to the cultural enrichment of those viewing the Goya exhibit, I shall feel well paid.

CHECKING THE CHART for their flight in the All Women's International Air Race's Bicentennial Historical Flight between Quebec City Airport in Canada and Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport in the U.S., are Gertrude Felsen, right, pilot, and Nancy Cooper Moore, center, co-pilot. Ms. Moore is an instructor for Carroll Air Service at Kingston-Ulster Airport. Looking on is Joan Cramer of Wallace's who is supplying the outfits the women will be wearing in the derby.

Local Women in Angel Derby

KINGSTON— Two area residents will be among the 118 women pilots from 24 states and Canada who will fly this year's 26th Angel Derby, the world's most unique speed race. They are Gertrude Felsen, pilot, and Nancy Cooper Moore, co-pilot.

Eight historical cities are included on the unprecedented Bicentennial flight which originates in Quebec City, Canada, May 27 and terminates in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., May 29.

The intrepid angels will land for refueling in Bedford, Mass., between Lexington and Concord; Schenectady, near Saratoga Springs; Wilmington, Del., after passing Valley Forge; Richmond, Va., where Patrick Henry made his "give me liberty or give me death" speech; Wilmington, N.C., site of the first open armed resistance to the Stamp Act; Savannah, Ga., where the British renewed their attack on the South; St. Augustine, Fla., an important military post since the city was founded; to a finish line at Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport.

The Angel Derby which is the only international air race in the world today is sponsored this year by the City of Fort Lauderdale.

More than $9,000 will be awarded to the top six finalists. To be eligible to race in the derby, women pilots must have flying experience in excess of that required for a commercial certificate. The race will emphasize pilot ability and not the power produced by the airplane engine.

The All Women International Air Derby is organized by a small group of volunteer women pilots in Fort Lauderdale.

DONNA FARGO is one of many headliners scheduled to perform at the 1976 Saratoga Fair at Saratoga Race Course. Ms. Fargo will appear Sunday, June 27, at two free grandstand performances set for 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. The Fair runs from June 25 to July 4.

JOHNNY CASH will make an appearance at the 1976 Saratoga Fair on Monday, June 28. In addition to 16,000 free grandstand seats for each performance, 2,500 reserve grandstand seats are available.

Whole New Concept for Saratoga Fair

SARATOGA SPRINGS— If you're a fair-going buff but get annoyed about the dust and dirt, the odor of livestock, the over-crowded conditions, and the concessionaires who camp on the grounds and bump into you coming and going with toothbrush in hand and towel slung over the shoulder, then the 1976 Saratoga Fair promises to be tailored to your taste. There's a whole new concept. This year's 10-day event has been planned so that the problems are eliminated, but the features improved.

For the first time, the Saratoga Fair is being sponsored by the local residents themselves. A non-profit organization, Saratoga Fair, Inc., is comprised of Saratoga Springs citizens, both young and old, who have purchased shares in the fair for the nominal amount of $50. These share-owners have a vested interest and want the beautiful Saratoga Race Course to look just as handsome AFTER the 300,000 fairgoers visit it, as it did before.

This year thers will be no trailers or trucks allowed on the grounds. All animal exhibits except for the petting zoo have been eliminated. Sprinkler systems will be operated to keep dust to a minimum. Whereas the grounds in former years were occupied 24-hours a day throughout the 10-day period, this year at 12 each night, a clean-up crew will ready the course for the following day.

There will be no cramped midway. Reithoffer, Inc., of Pompano Beach, Fla., a family-operated company which owns and operates more than 100 shows and spectacular rides and is a highly respected organization in fair circles, will provide more than 40 major rides, three "spectacular super rides," 80 games and several side shows. A major name in midways, it was organized in 1898.

Only quality concessionaires have been allotted space at this year's fair. Everything one expects to find at a fair will be there, but in a limited number.

Lots of free, star-studded entertainment is slated. On opening day, June 25, it's The Fifth Dimension; June 26, Anson Williams; June 27, Donna Fargo; June 28, Johnny Cash; June 29, Rene Simard; June 30, Up With People; July 1, Ray Stevens; July 2, Tanya Tucker; July 3, Pat Boone and Family; July 4, Charlie Rich and the Bicentennial fireworks display, one of the biggest in the east.

A ticket to the Saratoga Fair promises to be one of the bargains of the year, entitling visitors to view the exhibits, attend the free grandstand shows and amuse themselves on the grounds from 10 a.m. until midnight ... all for the price of one admission. Prices for rides will be in line with last year's.

A local venture, reserved seats are being handled by the Youth Commission; clean-up by local residents, as well as parking attendants. Experienced ushers will be supplied by Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

The 1976 Saratoga Fair promises to be first-rate and should satisfy the most critical tastes.

Woman's Club Plans Anniversary Gala

SAUGERTIES — A gala tenth year anniversary celebration will be held May 13 by the Woman's Club of Saugerties at a dinner to be held at the Colonade Restaurant, Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston. Charter members and past presidents will be honored, and accomplishments of the organization during its ten year history will be reviewed.

Officers for the 1976-77 year will be installed by Mrs. Bernice Rusczyk, Ulster County chairperson of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs Those to be installed are president, Mrs. Frances Bailey; vice president, Mrs. Mary Finger; secretary, Mrs. Audrey Krommenhoek, and treasurer, Mrs. Martha Almquist.

During the dinner Fashiontime Models will present a fashion show featuring clothes from Vivian's, The Buttonhole, Rose's Half-Size Shop, Lady Bug, Silks and Tweeds, and Wallace's. Clothing in various price ranges for people of all ages will be modeled.

The Woman's Club was organized in 1966 especially for the mutual benefit of women and for community service. Since then, the organization has engaged in many projects such as sponsoring the annual art show at the Mum Festivals, providing scholarships for advanced education, starting the drive to restore the Old Grist Mill, arranging for the demolition of the burned-out Exquisite Form Industries building, sponsoring Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 152, providing for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas, collecting food and clothing for migrant workers, presenting free Children's Theater programs, decorating vacant stores at Christmas time, sponsoring trips to museums in New York City, providing Christmas decorations at the Children's Rehabilitation Center, collecting books for military personnel and prisoners, promoting poster contests for worthwhile causes, aiding handicapped children through obtaining Betty Crocker coupons, co-sponsoring tours of homes, starting a movement for a community swimming pool, and participating in Olde Timers' Days.

In general meetings and special department meetings the Woman's Club has provided varied programs concerning the arts, handicrafts, flower arranging, consumer education, parapsychology, detection of cancer, interior decorating, local history, music, self improvement, care of the home, travel and environmental protection. The club has also sponsored record hops for teenagers, dinner dances, Las Vegas nights, luncheons and fashion shows.

A prime ribs of beef dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. on May 13 at the Governor Clinton Hotel preceded by a social hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dinner reservations should be made with Mrs. Gerry Caughell.

Community Leaders Set for Walkathon

KINGSTON — May 22 is the big day for the Zonta Walkathon. Beginning at 9:30 a.m., rain or shine, registered walkers will don comfortable footwear and begin their march from Ulster Shopping Plaza to Kingston Plaza in an effort to raise funds for the start of a Kidney Foundation in conjunction with the new Renal Dialysis Unit to be placed at Kingston Hospital in the near future. The Foundation will assure that no one who needs the use of the life-saving kidney machine will be unable to use it due to lack of funds. Anyone who has ever needed the machine which takes the place of a normal kidney, or has been close to a family member or friend in such need, is well aware of the urgency and community need for such a project.

Many community leaders are taking an active role in the Walkathon, including Len Cane, Maurice Hinchey, and Miss Ulster County. Announced as Grand Marshall for the Walkathon is Joel Carruthers, noted TV personality and star of "Somerset," NBC's top-rated daytime serial.

Saugerties merchant, Bobbie Decker, and her husband Morrow, who have often performed their "clown" act, will be in full regalia for the walk, along with 20 members of the Saugerties Stockaders in colonial costume, under the direction of Pat Larue.

Providing musical accompaniment for the walkers will be many members of the Kingston Musicians' Union, arranged by Harry Castiglione, president; the Junior Group of the Kingston Indians; and the well-known duo of Pete Matthews and Tony Pizzarelli.

Waiting to welcome walkers to their destination at Kingston Plaza, will be the popular "Papa Bear," Ed Kerchner, and his accordion. A large tent will be set up to welcome 'home' the walkers, with refreshments provided by Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonald's and Dunkin' Donuts. A & W Root Beer will distribute tickets for refreshments as walkers pass their establishment.

Many walkers are still needed. Ms. Mickey Duncan, co-chairperson of the event and incoming Zonta president for the coming year, will answer any questions concerning the Walkathon at her home at Hidden Valley. Kay Sullivan of Heritage Savings Bank may also be contacted for information.

Beverlee Mulligan, transportation chairperson, announced that walkers will be given bus transportation from Kingston Plaza back to the Ulster Shopping Plaza at the close of the walk.

Outright donations to the Walkathon may be sent to: UPO Box 143, Kingston.

Ms. Sullivan added that the Renal Dialysis Unit at Kingston Hospital would provide treatment for patients in Ulster, Sullivan, Greene and Delaware Counties. The Center will house a five-unit Chronic Chemodialysis Center, and statistics show that an increase of one new patient can be expected annually for each 16,000 people.

IT'S RONDOUT RONNIE! No, it's Al Teetsel of Rondout National Bank. Either way, he'll be one of the big attractions at the Zonta Walkathon Saturday morning, May 22. Rondout Ronnie says, "C'mon... walk along!"

BIRTHDAY GIRL, Nancie Seaman will be 105 on Thursday. On that special night she will be attending the races at Monticello Raceway where a party will be held to celebrate the momentous occasion. A native of Grahamsville, Nancie is shown here in her room at Liberty Loomis Hospital at Liberty.

Taking in the Track at 105

MONTICELLO — The year was 1871. Bismark was the strong man in Europe, Ulysses S. Grant occupied the White House, Goldsmith Maid was the undisputed Queen of the trotting world as she broke Dexter's record by going a mile in 2:17 and on a farm in the Village of Grahamsville, in the Northeastern corner of Sullivan County, a girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Tillson whom they named Nancie.

Thursday, May 13 will mark the beginning of the 105th year since Nancie first came into this world. To celebrate that momentous occasion she will — for the first time in her life — attend the races at Monticello Raceway and make a bet or two.

"I always drove a horse and carriage before I was married and after, too," said Nancie, indicating she still had an eye for horse flesh. "Maybe they ought to let me drive one around the track on my birthday."

The years have etched mosaic of character and humanity into Nancie's face. She is a tiny, frail woman but she is still ambulatory and has a mind that is trigger sharp and aware of everything that goes on around her. Because of her great age and the fact that she has outlived almost all her blood relatives, she has become a permanent resident of Liberty Loomis Hospital, Liberty, N.Y., where she is under the loving care of nurses.

Despite her years, Nancie likes to celebrate her special day by doing something she's never done before. Last year she went for her first helicopter ride. This year it will be attending the races.

Asked by her nurses what she wanted most on her birthday this year, Nancie thought about it for a moment and then declared with a twinkle in her eye: "A man'."

The remark caused great hilarity among the nurses. Nancie also laughed and added: "I was only foolin'."

The customary question asked of everyone who has reached a great age is: "To what do you owe your great longevity?"

"Don't really know," Nancie answered. "I didn't plan it this way. Never smoked or drank to amount to much. Just happened, that's all."

Nancie married Charles Seaman, a Grahamsville farmer in 1903. They had no children and she has been widowed many years now. She last worked when she was a mere 100, pumping gas at a gas station. She then decided she had pumped enough gas in her lifetime and retired

On her 105th birthday she will be picked up by chauffeured limousine on Thursday evening and driven to Monticello Raceway. A birthday party will follow that will include dinner with friends of her choice, champagne and a huge birthday cake. In addition, a race will be named in her honor and the racetrack crowd will be asked to sing "Happy Birthday" to her.

"Don't know what all the fuss is about," Nancie said.

Dear Abby

'Equality' Depends On Marital Status?

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who thinks women have equal rights in this country is crazy.

If a man's trousers are too tight, he's just put on a little weight. (If a woman's skirt is too tight, she's trying to be sexy.)

If a man stands on a street corner, he's getting some fresh air. (If a woman stands on a corner, she's looking to be picked up.)

If a man has one drink too many, he's "feeling good." (If a woman has one drink too many, she's a lush.)

If a man has a night out with the boys, he's put in a hard day at work and needs to "relax." (If a woman has a night out with the girls, she's up to no good and should stay home with her family.)

If a man cheats om his wife, people say he's probably married to a cold fish and he's only human. (If a woman cheats, she's a tramp.)

If a kid turns out good, he's a chip off the old block. (If he turns out bad, his mother did the rotten job raising him.)

It's still a man's world!— WANTS EQUALITY

DEAR WANTS: Only if he's single. If he's married, almost everything is in his wife's name.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14, and the oldest of five kids, so I'm the one who has to help my mom with the dishes and housework. I also have to help with the younger kids and I hate it!

When I complain about all the work I have to do around here, my mom gives me this routine about what good "practice" it will be for me in later life.

Abby, please help me! I plan on being a model or an actress, and I don't need all this "practice."—TIRED

DEAR TIRED: That's what YOU think! What do you think happens to all those broken-down models and actresses?

DEAR ABBY: A member of our family was recently in a near fatal accident and naturally we are very much concerned, but our problem is this.

Friends and relatives who mean well have been calling us constantly to find out how he is getting along. Abby, we are half-crazy answering the telephone every few minutes. They all want to know the "details" of the accident, and I am exhausted reliving that nightmare so many times a day!

Also, friends have been phoning the hospital to inquire about the patiemt's condition, and we've been asked by the hospital personnel to instruct them not to call so much.

Abby, please tell your readers that it would help so much if they would send a cheery card to the hospital instead. Then the patient could read the cards at his leisure when he's sufficiently recovered and keep them as souvenirs if he so desires.— GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your letter is well worth the space in this column. Readers— please?

Speaker Named

HOWE'S CAVE— Mrs. Clifford Davis Jr., third district chairman, American Legion Auxiliary Department of New York, has announced that Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey will be guest speaker at the District Conference to be held May 15 at Borealis Restaurant, Howe's Cave, N.Y.

Assemblyman Hinchey will speak on Legislation and on a new bill he is sponsoring with Assemblyman Koppell on the Catskill Commission on Environment.

MODEL BRENDA HAGEDORN struts down the runway in a casual spring ensemble before the admiring eyes of the audience at St. John's Parish Center's recent fashion show at West Hurley. Fashions were presented by Flahs. Dorothy Narel served as commentator and music was provided by Pierre Francois. Refreshments were served and awards presented. (Freeman photo)

Card and Game Party at Red Hook

RED HOOK— Northern Dutchess Hospital Mothers' Club will hold a card and game party May 11 at 8 p.m. in the Parish House of Christ Episcopal Church, 50 South Broadway, Red Hook. Awards will be presented and refreshments served. Reservations may be made with Mrs Wally Kokkila or Dan Kilpatrick of Rhinebeck

Mothers' Club activities are held to raise funds to provide needed equipment for maternity and pediatric departments of Northern Dutchess Hospital. Upcoming fund raising projects include a May 21-22 flower and vegetable plants sale of plants grown at Hettling Farmlands; a community flea market at Dutchess County Fairgrounds on June 5 and 6, with Mrs. Joseph Ambrose of Rhinebeck in charge; and the sixth annual Arts and Crafts Show and Sale on September 25 and 26 at Dutchess County Fairgrounds in Rhinebeck. Mothers' Club members also participate in the Rhinebeck Central School pre-kindergarten screening program in May by testing vision and hearing

KINGSTON— Miss Susan See, director of the Big Sisters Program of Kingston, has announced that an orientation program will be held Friday, May 14 at 7 p.m. at 277 Fair Street.

Big Sisters organization is a group of women who are concerned about children today, especially the lonely, confused and trouble young girls who need the continued friendship and guidance of someone who cares. Each Big Sister spends time with her little sister, doing things together, learning about each other, sharing fun and friendship and even solving each others problems.

Anyone interested in becoming a Big Sister, or who knows of little sisters to be referred, as well as those interested in learning more about the program are invited to attend the informational meeting

About the Folks

'Crusade for Parents' at Coleman Tonight

KINGSTON— A program called "Crusade for Parents" will be presented this evening at 7:30 o'clock at John A. Coleman School. The crusade is being held to introduce a new program, entitled "Evenings for Parents," developed by Chuck Gallagher, S.J., of Marriage Encounter, and Lyman Coleman of Serendipity, to give good parents a chance to face into their successes and their opportunities, and to share those with others

"Crusade for Parents" is designed to help parents cope with the pressures society places on them and help them with the difficulties every parent must face in bringing up children.

Parents and religious of all faiths as well as anyone working with or concerned about the family and parent-child relationships are encouraged to attend this special information night.

Topic Announced for AMH Meeting

ROSENDALE— Dr. Dorothy T Hayes, coordinator of the Student Mental Health Field Work Course at New York State University College at New Paltz, will be guest speaker May 12 at the annual meeting of Ulster County Association for Mental Health, Inc. Social hour is set for 6 p.m., with dinner slated for 7 o'clock, at Williams Lake Hotel. Dr. Hayes' topic will be "Bridging Academic/Community Services."

Paintings, Silk Screen Display

ELLENVILLE— Oil paintings and silk screens by Lorna Massie of Lyonsville will be on exhibit at the Sunshine Gallery in Ellenville through May.

Overdue Miracle

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — More than 3,000 Neapolitans prayed Sunday for the congealed blood of St. Januarius to liquefy, but the faithful believed the overdue miracle apparently had produced its dire consequences days ago.

Tradition has it that when the blood of Naples' patron saint, contained in two glass vials, fails to liquefy on the first Saturday of May, it is a bad omen for the city.

It has been said that the miracle happens within minutes or hours, but this year the blood failed to liquify after eight days. The vials were ordered locked up in the treasury of the city's cathedral until next year.

Many Neapolitans linked the record delay in the liquefaction of the blood to Thursday's killer earthquake in northeast Italy, which was faintly felt in Naples.

It was not the first time the blood failed to liquify with alleged fatal results.

Church records say the plague hit Naples in 1527 and 1528 when the miracle did not occur. Another failure in 1835 was followed by a cholera epidemic.

Death Ride

MONTGOMERY, N.Y. (UPI) — A Montgomery man was killed Saturday when he failed to negotiate a turn while riding a stolen motorcycle, state police said.

Troopers said John Young, 22, was killed instantly when the cyle struck a pile of asphalt and he was thrown from the machine into a utility pole.

Police said the motorcyle was stolen earlier in the day from a nearby shopping center, but they did not implicate Young in the theft.

A friend of Young's, Patsy Jack Derrico, 22 of Newburgh, was arrested and charged with third-degree grand larceny. He was ordered held in lieu of $500 bail in the Orange County jail, officials said.

Young's family told police that Derrico had arrived at Young's home on the motorcyle and offered to let Young testdrive it.

Young lived on Orlando Drive, where the accident occurred.

NBC Strike Could End Saturday

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC technicians and news writers on strike for more than five weeks could be back at work by Saturday if union members ratify a tentative contract agreement.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said the tentative pact was reached Saturday at its offices. Details were not disclosed.

A spokesman for NBC said, "NBC has negotiated an agreement with the union committee which the committee will submit to its members for ratification. The vote is to be completed by Wednesday, May 12, and if it is passed, all union members will return to work by Saturday, May 15."

The strike began April 1, with the conciliation service entering the talks a week later.

Bjorn Borg celebrates with Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Hunt

Borg, Vilas Forgot About Friendship

DALLAS (UPI) — Bjorn Borg and Guillermo Vilas have looked at each other across a tennis net almost every day for the past three years

Most of the time they merely are getting in some practice

But Sunday it was for real and with all that money at stake it was quite easy for them to forget they are the best of friends

At least that is what Borg says and he should know since he forgot about the friendship long enough to dispose of Vilas in four sets and win the biggest prize of his still brief professional career — the World Championship of Tennis

"It is a tough competition " said the teen aged Swede in his broken English "And it is something just to get here But I am really happy to have won

"Now I am surely going to try hard to win either Wimbledon or Forest Hills this year But if I don t I will try again next year "

Borg will probably be around for a lot more than next year since he does not turn 20 until next month Borg and the 23year old Vilas represent the wave of the future in tennis

And since the WCT final was a Borg Vilas affair, the match, perhaps, was a forerunner of many major championship matches

Borg's 1 6, 6-1, 7-5, 6 1 victory did not contain a lot of spectacular tennis, but from the second set on Borg was the steadier of the two and on the slow surface employed for WCT steadiness is critical

"He missed some shots in the first set," said the downcast Vilas, "and I was hoping he would keep missing them But he didn t He didn't miss much at all "

Borg claimed $50,000 with the title and Vilas' runner-up check was worth $20,000

Borg and Vilas, a native of Argentina became close friends soon after the Swede hit the pro tennis circuit and because of their similar styles of play — both like to hit topspin shots from the baseline — they soon began to practice together Now they both have moved to Monte Carlo for tax reasons and they even live in the same apartment building

"Sure we joke beforehand,' said Vilas "But when we are on the court there is a match to play Why is it that people think that people can't be friends and still play tennis against each other?"

Borg made several errors in the opening set and said he simply was not patient enough

' I tried to come to the net in the first set and he hit too many passing shots,' said Borg "I had to start waiting for a really short ball before I came in

"Guillermo started out playing really well I said to myself that if he keeps playing like that I will be gone in three sets ' But he did not play as well the rest of the match "

Lapointe Talks, Shoots Habs to Win

SPORTS TODAY

Canadiens mob Guy Lapointe as Wayne Stephenson hangs his head

MONTREAL (UPI) — In hockey's most hallowed shrine, where a certain mystique of past glory hangs heavy, it's not uncommon for Montreal players of succeeding generations to be pushed forward by divine inspiration

But there was nothing supernatural about the guiding force at the Forum Sunday night No voices from the past, no mystical visions All it took was a few shouted words in Gallic by defenseman Guy Lapointe

The result was a comeback 4-3 victory for Montreal over the Philadelphia Flyers in the opening game of their Stanley Cup title series, one that the Canadiens felt they were lucky to get after falling behind 2-0

There were only two minutes left when Lapointe talked his team to victory—and then delivered the decisive blow himself

"When I was sitting on the bench before going out on the ice," he explained, "I said to the players, 'Look, we don't want to have any overtime Let's go out there and score a goal right now '"

Just after he stepped on the ice, La pointe opened his mouth again As flashy forward Steve Shutt picks up the story

"I was fighting with (Flyer Tom) Bladon for the puck It was going back and forth between us Then I heard a voice I didn't even know who it was I was just hoping it was one of my players I looked up and there was Guy Lapointe and he had the puck on his stick I said to myself, 'Gee, what a great play I made '"

It turned into an even greater play when Lapointe sent the puck into the far corner of the net past goalie Wayne Stephenson It put the Canadiens ahead for the first time with only 1 22 left and proved to be the winner

"Stephenson didn't give me much room before I took the shot," said Lapointe, "but I knew I got good wood on it "

The late fireworks put a damper on the continuing individual heroics of Flyer Reggie Leach, who set two NHL playoff records when he scored after only 21 seconds old It was Leach's 16th goal in 13 playoff games this season, surpassing the mark of 15 set by Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer in 17 games three years ago

Also, Leach now has scored at least once in his last 10 games, extending his own record, and with a total of 77 goals, including 61 in the regular season, he is only two shy of the record set by Phil Esposito with Boston in 1970-71 When Ross Lonsberry scored at 13 22, the Flyers had a 2 0 lead that seemed even bigger because of Montreal s lackluster, disorganized play

"We started off slow against the Islanders (in the semifinals) and got into trouble and now we started off slow against the Flyers and got into trouble," Shutt said ' I don t know why we wait for the other team to score the first goal We were lucky to come back from two goals down That's a no-no in playoff hockey It s just a lack of concentration on our part

In a span of 2 26 early in the second period, Montreal got both goals back on shots by Jim Roberts and Larry Robinson The Flyers once again took the lead at 3 2 on a power play goal by Larry Goodenough at 5 17 of the third period but Jacques Lemaire got that one back less than five minutes later

'On the road we wouldn't have done so well if we fell behind like that " said Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman "In Philadelphia it would be hard to do a job like that But being behind 2 0 just made my team work harder You don t like to fall behind and we won t do it again if we can help it

Flyer Coach Fred Shero said that he might replace Stephenson in Tuesday night's second game with Bernie Parent the playoff MVP the last two years when Philadelphia won the Stanley Cup Parent has not been as effective as usual in limited action this season following neck surgery

I haven't made up my mind as yet Shero said In my opinion they are both equal

Attles Knows Why Suns Are Challenging

By U P I

If anyone can understand why the Phoenix Suns are threatening to upset defending NBA champion Golden State in the Western Conference playoff finals, it's Warriors coach Al Attles

"We should have had it won, both in regulation and the first overtime, but they never gave up," Attles said after the Suns defeated the Warriors 133 129 in double overtime Sunday to tie the best of seven series at 2 2

Attles knows that tenacity and hustle more often than not beats sheer talent He proved it last year when his "no name" Warriors swept by the Washington Bullets to take the title and he proved it again this year when his team blitzed through the regular season, often making the competition look like stone pillars

Golden State has earned the recognition it has received as a finely tuned basketball machine The Warriors are quick, aggressive and well-drilled But now they are also recognized as deep in talent Rick Barry was always a superstar Guard Phil Smith is being considered another Jerry West, Jamaal Wilkes is, as ever, smooth as silk, reserve forward Derrek Dickey can be explosive and center Clifford Ray gives nothing away under the boards

Phoenix, however, is a team composed of a couple of promising rookies (Alvan Adams and Ricky Sobers) and several solid and scrappy veterans (Dick Van Arsdale, Gar Heard, Paul Westphal and Keith Erickson) None would be considered for All NBA but with determination and luck, the Suns can run with anyone in any game

Erickson, playing for his fourth team in 11th season has always had a fine outside shot but has never averaged 15 points In the second overtime Sunday, he poured in eight points and virtually whipped the Warriors by himself

Erickson set the stage for his heroics by hitting a 20 foot jumper with two seconds left in regulation to tie the score 112112 That shot came after Dickey missed one of two free throws with eight seconds left blowing a chance to give the Warriors a three point margin

In the first overtime the Warriors led by four with 41 seconds left but Sobers hit a jumper with 34 seconds to go and two free throws at the 02 mark to again tie the score

Golden State put in the first two field goals of the second overtime but Phoenix hit the next 14 points, eight by Erickson

' When we got up by six points, I began feeling confident we could win,' said Erickson, who had a team high of 28 points ' They were getting kind of raggedy and we were playing under control at that time

Barry was hampered by fouls but still finished with 26 Smith had 30 points Barry played only eight minutes in the first half and scored just four points and finally fouled out with 1 37 left in the second regulation and Phoenix ahead by six

' That definitely hurt us Attles said Although Phoenix had the momentum we still would have had a chance with Barry s shooting

Heard scored 22 points and Van Arsdale 20 for the Suns Wilkes had 24 for Golden State

The series shifts back to Oakland for the fifth game Wednesday night

Boston took a 2 0 lead over Cleveland in the Eastern Conference finals with a 94 89 triumph Sunday The next two games are scheduled for the Cavaliers' home court Tuesday and Friday night

Jo Jo White led Boston with 24 points with John Havlicek added 20 Dave Cowens had eight of his 15 points in the final period

Cleveland led 71 68 after three periods but the Celtics broke the game open with their fast break attack in the last quarter The Cavs were hurt when center Nate Thurmond fouled out with 7 36 to play

Hayes Made Sure He Didn't Choke

DALLAS (UPI) — Mark Hayes and Don Bies each talked about the same subject Sunday, delicately, and from a different approach

Hayes was the first to use the word — "choke "

"I think I had more pressure on me Saturday," said Hayes, whose steady two-under par 69 Sunday gave him a two stroke victory over Bies in the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic It was Hayes' first win during a 2' year pro career

"You choke when you aren't hitting the ball well and I wasn't hitting it well yesterday I was hitting it well today," said Hayes, who finished dead last in the 1975 Nelson

The fact Hayes was a non-winner brought up the subject of ppessure Bies indicated he had believed Hayes would not play boldly

"I thought if I could shoot a 68 or 69, that I would win," said Bies, who started the day three strokes behind Hayes and shot his 68 "I really didn't think Mark would break par "

' During the night, Hayes didn't either

"I want to come from behind the next time to win," he said "I couldn't sleep, I couldn't eat Maybe the next one will be easier "

But his difficulties, he said, went beyond the physical He had said he was not swinging well Saturday and that carried over to the practice tee Sunday morning

"I was kind of desperate," he said "I was searching around for something that would work Then Larry Nelson told me to slow my swing down, slow everything down "

"I really needed for him to tell me that I started swinging slow and I started hitting them Out on the course, I was trying to walk as slow as Don January and I did '

Though Bies cut Hayes' lead to two strokes at the end, the only real competition on the final holes was for second place between Bies and Masters' champion Rav Floyd

Both had made the turn at seven under and picked up an early second nine birdie But then Floyd fell apart

He bogeyed Nos 13 and 14 while Bies birdied No 15 and that contest was over

Floyd finished two back at seven under

Hale Irwin took fourth place at six under with a final round 68, and Texas favorite Ben Crenshaw held fifth place with a final round 69 at five under

Next at four under were Larry Nelson and Dave Stockton

Jack Nicklaus, who said his three under position Saturday was within reach of Hayes, who at that time was nine under, could never gain control of his round

He eagled No 15, but bogeyed 17 and finished at three under

Lee Trevino and Tom Kite tied at two under, while Arnold Palmer and defending champion Tommy Watson finished at four over

Hayes started in ragged fashion, hitting what he called three "shaky" shots on the par-4 opening hole He made his par there.

"I hit a good drive on No 2 and I hit it solid from then on," he said "I really felt confident after No 4 when I hit that (15-foot) putt for par "

"I felt I had the tournament in the bag after No 17 when I two putted from 35-feet On that last hole, I was just trying to get that first putt down into two putt range After I hit it, I knew I could two putt from two feet uphill "

Sally Wasn't Ready When Dream Came True

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Sally Little has spent a lot of time dreaming about her first pro golf victory, but when it happened she wasn't ready for it

Then again, how many people have their dreams come true?

Little did, when she blasted a 75-foot bunker shot into the 18th hole Sunday for the birdie that gave her a one-stroke victory over Jan Stephenson in the inaugural Women's International' tournament

"I'm in a state of shock," she said, and no one could blame her

Over the final six holes, Little managed to lose the lead she had held alone for two and a half days, caught up and went ahead again—and then seemed headed for disaster

Needing par on the final two holes to win, she bogeyed 17, then drove into the rough on 18 and dumped her approach shot into the sand

"I was nervous," admitted Little, a South African protege of Gary Player "I was scared to death Your first opportunity to win a tournament—it's scary I think everyone is scared in that situation "

All she hoped to do was scramble from the bunker, salvage par, and force a playoff

Instead, she blasted out 12 feet short of the hole and watched the ball take one bounce and roll in

"I couldn't believe it," Little said "That's a dream that few golfers go through "

One who did was Doug Ford, who holed from a bunker in a similar situation to beat Sam Snead for the Masters title in 1957 It's the Masters that the Women's International wants to copy for the girls and Sunday's theatrical finish gave the new tournament instant tradition

The winning birdie gave Little a final round 70, two under par and combined with her previous 71 69 71 for a 281 total Stephenson finished at 70 282, and no one else was close

In many ways, the top two are remarkably similar Both are former LPGA rookies ofthe-year, both are foreigners (Little, from South Africa, now lives in Dallas, Stephenson, from Australia, lives in Palm Springs), both are 24 years old, both are blue eyed blondes, and both are among the most attractive players on the tour

But that's where it ends Stephenson is the No 2 money winner this year with $38,870 and two victories and Little is a career struggler, 0 for 104 before breaking through Sunday The only other time she led a tournament this year, at Naples, Fla , with an opening 67, Little finished 77 80 and Stephenson won

Stephenson figured two short putts cost her Sunday She missed from 18 inches at No 4 and from four and a half feet at 17 "That one made me so mad," she said "I knew that was the winning putt '

Women's Open champion Sandra Palmer shared third at 287 with Betty Burfeindt Amy Alcott finished at 288, Murle Breer at 289 and JoAnne Carner was at 290

Janet Still Trying to Get on Indy Track

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — If the third time proves a charm, Janet Guthrie may get on the track today at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in her efforts to pass the rookie test for the world's richest automobile race

Both Saturday and Sunday Guthrie, the first woman ever nominated to drive in the May 30 Indianapolis "500," was left on the sidelines despite encouragement of thousands of race fans as her car developed problems during shakedown runs

Until recently, women were not even allowed into the pits around the track in the belief that they were bad luck, and some oldtimers may have taken revengeful delight in her difficulties, which may point to problems during the next two weekends of qualifications for the $1 million classic

Saturday the Rolla Veollstedt entry required extensive repairs to the clutch that consumed most of the day, then when teammate Dick Simon took it out for a shakedown run, it developed an oil line leak that sent it back to the garage until after the 2½ mile oval was closed for the day

Sunday, Simon again was testing the car when a piston burned, forcing the crew to tear down the engine before it could be readied in time for Simon to take a few laps at moderate speed before the first weekend of practice ended

However, there was little moderation being shown in speeds turned in by the "hotdogs" Sunday, led by former winners Johnny Rutherford and A J Foyt, after cheif steward Tom Binford lifted the 180 mile per hour speed limit

Rutherford, the 1974 champion, was clocked at 187 696 m p h while three-time winner Foyt, who will be seeking his third straight pole position in next weekend's qualfications, was only slightly slower at 187 266

Gordon Johncock, who won the rain-plagued and shortened 1973 race, clocked 184 653 Mario Andretti, Wally Dallenbach and Tom Sneva, who has recovered from a spectacular crash during last year's race, were also clocked around 184

Weather conditions both Saturday and Sunday were nearly ideal, with sunny skies and temperatures in the upper 60s and low 70s while the track was open, and more of the same was expected today, producing a very crowded field

Bobby Olivero of Lakewood, Calif, made track history Saturday as he became the first rookie ever to complete all of his tests on the opening day Spike Gehlhasen of Jasper, Ind, became the second rookie to pass his driver's test Sunday Billy Scott of San Bernardino, Calif, another rookie who passed his tests last year but failed to qualify for the race, passed his refresher tests

LONG POND, Pa. (UPI) — Brian Redman said he doesn't think racing in the Indianapolis 500 is any "higher" form of racing than what can be found at Pocono International Raceway

"I didn t see (Johnny) Rutherford or any of those Indy guys do anything special when they ran these cars," Redman said Sunday after winning the Sports Car Club United States Auto Club Formula 5000 championship over Danny Ongais "It's not higher, it s just a different world "

Asked if the absense of Mario Andretti and Al Unser, who were practicing at Indianapolis, had any effect on the outcome Redman said "Well, it's not really breaking my heart I'm not shedding any tears over it "

Driving the Boraxo sponsored Chapparal Lola T332C, Redman, undefeated in three races at Pocono, won easily after early leader Ongais of Costa Mesa, Calif, spun on the backstretch of the 2 8 mile winding road course

Hurley Haywood of Jacksonville, Fla, driving a new turbo-powered Porsche, scored a half car victory over Al Holbert of Warrington, Pa, in the Trans-Am championship portion of the doubleheader

Redman, of England, has recorded 44 first and second place finishes out of 50 starts in the Chapparal He also won both 25 mile preliminary heat races

Finishing third was Vern Schuppan of Santa Ana Calif in Dan Gurney's Jorgensen Eagle Fourth one lap down, was Randy Lewis of Los Altos Calif followed by Sam Posey, who started 17th in the 18 car field

Redman won $17,500 for the day s event including his two heat race victories He averaged 123 437 miles per hour Haywood collected $2,000 for his victory in which he averaged 105 335 m p h

Busby Survives Protest To Win Ontario Race

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Upset winner Jim Busby of Laguna Beach, Calif, withstood a protest of his driving technique by second place finisher Peter Gregg Sunday to win the International Motor Sports Association Camel GT 100 miler at Ontario Motor Speedway

Busby, in scoring the biggest American road racing victory of his career, averaged 96 657 miles per hour in a Porsch Carrera to beat Gregg by 2 319 seconds Gregg drove a BMW

With eight laps to go Busby caught Gregg in a slow corner, went to the inside and slid into the side of Gregg s race car, spinning Gregg out When both cars resumed racing, Gregg had a 17-second lead and he played it out, driving conservatively at the end

Meanwhile, Gregg radioed to his pit crew chief, Jack Atkinson, instructing him to protest Busby's driving tactics After the race, Gregg conferred with chief steward Charles Rainville and withdrew the protest

Bob Matkovich of Cupertino, Calif, suffered a possible concussion and neck injuries in a two car accident and was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital

In the 100-miler for sedans racing on street radial tires, Gene Felton of Atlanta won at an average speed of 79 997 m p h by 11 seconds over Carson Baird, the series leader from Laurel Md Felton drove a Gremlin, Baird a Colt

The Formula Atlantic race was won by Canadian champ Gilles Villeneuve in a March He averaged 106 675 m p h in the 50 mile race

Cale Cops Music City 420

NASHVILLE, Tenn (UPI) — Cale Yarborough said his car "just couldn't run any better" than it did Saturday when he won the Music City 420 at the Nashville Speedway

"I thought it was taking the turns better than any car out there and when you bore down on the straightaways, you could almost feel it jump beneath you," he said

Yarborough, from Timmonsville, S C drove his Holly Springs Chevrolet into the lead as the race began, and except during a couple of pit stops, led all the way

In second place was Richard Petty of Randleman, N C and in third was Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N C

Yarborough, who had the outside pole position, collected $6,265 for his effort It was his third win of the season

Darrell Waltrip of Nashville, last year's winner, was in the same lap with Yarborough, Petty and Parsons when the rear end of his Chevrolet went out,forcing him out of the race Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N C was fourth, followed by Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala

OAKLAND (UPI) — Even the winning pitcher thought his team's winning run might have been a gift from the umpires as the Oakland A's finally handed ex-teammate Catfish Hunter a setback.

Oakland edged New York 4-3 in 12 innings Sunday when Campy Campaneris belted a sacrifice fly to knock home Sal Bando with the winning run.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin, Hunter and the rest of the Yankees felt that Bando should never have been on third and that the fly ball to right field should have been the third out.

Bando walked to open the inning and went to third on Larry Lintz' sacrifice bunt, with a close play at the bag. Umpire Rich Garcia ignored the entreaties of the New Yorkers that Bando was out.

A's reliever Paul Lindblad, who allowed only one hit in seven brilliant relief innings, surprisingly said afterwards that "I thought Sal was out."

Said Hunter: "I tagged him four feet before he reached the base."

Said Martin: "He was tagged, but it's all over with."

But Bando insisted "I touched the bag before I felt the tag. I made up my mind to go all the way to third when I noticed nobody was covering the bag.

The A's' win marked their first decision over Hunter in five tries since he went to the Yankees from Oakland before last season.

Oakland scored in the fourth on Bill North's single, a stolen base, a sacrifice and sacrifice fly. It was 2-0 in the fifth on Billy Williams' homer on what Hunter later called "a good pitch."

But New York, which managed only three hits all day, got three in the sixth when Mike Torrez lost his control and walked the bases loaded before a passed ball and Thurmon Munson's single.

Oakland, whiich managed only six hits, tied it without a hit in the ninth on a walk to Joe Rudi, a stolen base, an errant throw into the outfield and Don Baylor's sacrifice fly.

Richards Must Yearn for Good Old Days

By UPI

Paul Richards probably wishes he was still in retirement.

Richards, who left his ranch in Waxahachie Texas to assume the reins of the Chicago White Sox this season, learned Sunday left-handed ace Wilbur Wood probably will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season.

Wood was injured in the sixth inning of Sunday's 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers when he was hit on the left kneecap by a line drive off the bat of Ron LeFlore. X-rays later revealed that he had suffered a fractured kneecap.

It was only a few months ago that Richards, 67, was in retirement, relaxing on his ranch and thinking about his baseball past. But when showman Bill Veeck bought the ailing White Sox franchise in the off-season, he immediately called his old friend Richards and asked him to assume control of the club.

What Richards has gotten so far this season is a a lot of headaches, a club that has lost nine of its last 11 games, a team with a shaky pitching staff and little punch at the plate.

But if things weren't bad enough, they became even worse with the loss of Wood, who has anchored the White Sox mound staff since 1968, the year he established the American League mark for appearances.

The loss of Wood, a four time 20-game winner, leaves Richards with a gaping hole in his rotation, a staff already weakened by the trade of veteran Jim Kaat to Philadelphia prior to the season's start.

If there can be any consolation for Wood, he did receive credit for the victory, his fourth in seven decisions. Clay Carroll came in finish up as the two pitchers combined on a five-hitter.

In other games Oakland edged New York 4-3 in 12 innings, Texas nipped Boston 65, California topped Cleveland 3-2, Kansas City ripped Baltimore 7-4, and Minnesota beat Milwaukee 6-4.

Rangers 6 Red Sox 5

Denny Doyle's wild throw on Len Randle's potential double play ground ball in the eighth inning enabled the Rangers to score two runs and hand Boston its ninth straight loss. With the bases loaded, Randle's grounder was fielded by shortstop Steve Dillard, who flipped to Doyle for for the force at second. But Doyle threw the ball away attempting to complete the double play and two runs scored.

Angels 3 Indians 2

Rusty Torres' two-out triple drove in two runs in the eighth innings as the Angels scored their third straight come-from-behind victory over the Indians. Trailing 2-0 on just three hits, Lee Stanton led off the eighth with a double, pinch-hitter Ron Jackson walked, pinch-hitter Paul Dade singled to score Stanton and Torres tripled.

Royals 7 Orioles 4

Bob Stinson doubled home two runs and Frank White added a two-run single during a five-run third inning rout of Jim Palmer that carried the Royals past Baltimore. Palmer, who pitched a two-hit shutout in his last start, was tagged for seven hits and four earned runs in 2 2-3 innings as his record fell to 4-4.

Twins 6, Brewers 4

Minnesota scored two runs in the eighth inning when catcher Darrell Porter committed a passed ball and a throwing error to edge the Brewers. The score was tied 4-4 in the eighth when Butch Wynegar tripled and Dan Ford drew an intentional walk. Porter's passed ball, allowed Wynegar to score and Ford to go to second. Ford then stole third and scored when Porter threw the ball wildly into left field.

Strom Turns Tables, Plays Role of Enforcer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brent Strom thought he was a sacrificial lamb Sunday but he turned the tables and played the role of the enforcer instead.

Strom, a former Met, pitched a two-hitter and Dave Winfield blasted a two-run homer as the San Diego Padres turned back the New York Mets, 4-0, beating Tom Seaver for the first time in four years.

Strom struck out two in pitching his second career twohitter and held the Mets hitless until Joe Torre hit a line drive single to left center with one out in the seventh inning. Torre immediately was erased on a double play.

Strom had entered the game figuring he had two chances for a win—slim and none.

After all, Seaver was on the mound as the opposing pitcher and last year's Cy Young award winner had reeled off eight straight wins at the Padres' expense, building his career record against San Diego to 18-1.

"The way Seaver usually pitches against this team, I considered myself the sacrificial lamb," Strom said.

Strom insisted no-hitter wasn't on his mind either.

"I wasn't thinking about it. I'm not a no-hitter type pitcher like Seaver, Nolan Ryan or Jon Matlack because I'm not a strikeout pitcher. Those guys strike out 10 batters in a game and that's 10 fewer balls they have to worrry about becoming hits. I started thinking about it in the sixth inning, but the way the Mets have been hitting and playing lately I was more intent on winning.

"I pitched poorly in my last two starts and would have been satisfied with a win."

Cincy Just Loves It In Cubs' Wrigley Field

By UPI

The Cincinnati Reds and Wrigley Field form the sweetest combination since Baskin met Robbins.

"If we played 81 games in Wrigley Field," says Reds' manager Sparky Anderson, "we'd probably break the all-time scoring record. I don't think anybody could hold us under seven runs."

Anderson could be right. The Reds completed a three-game weekend sweep in Wrigley Field Sunday by thrashing the Chicago Cubs, 14-2, behind a 21-hit attack that featured a grand slam homer by Ken Griffey, a pair of solo blasts by Tony Perez, a two-run shot by Dan Driessen and solo homers by George Foster and Pete Rose.

It was the second 14-run game for the Reds in as many days at Wrigley Field and in the three-game series Cincinnati collected 44 hits.

Perez, who had entered the series in an 0-for-18 batting slump, found the small park to be an oasis as he banged out seven hits in 13 at bats and drove in six runs in the three games.

"I like this park a lot," said Perez in a classic understatement. "I just hit good here. As soon as I hit them (the homers) I knew they were gone."

Rookie Pat Zachry benefitted from the Reds' blitz to win his first game. Zachry allowed just five hits, including a two-run homer to Bill Madlock, in eight innings before giving way to Will McEnaney.

"Allowing only two runs in eight innings in a park like Wrigley Field is like pitching a triple shutout," exclaimed Anderson. "I took him out in the ninth because he was running out of gas. Everything you hear about the Chicago pitchers with the high ERA (5.69), you're overblaming. Anyone with a 4.00 ERA or under is doing very good in this ballpark."

The Reds' victory moved them to within one-half game of first place Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers, who had a 12-game winning streak broken by Philadelphia Saturday night, were beaten again by the Phillies, 10-3.

In other NL action, Pittsburgh handed Atlanta its 13th straight loss, 5-2; San Diego blanked New York, 4-0; Houston whipped St. Louis, 10-5, and San Francisco downed Montreal 4-2, then lost 8-0.

Phillies 10, Dodgers 3

Jim Lonborg pitched perfect ball for 6 1-3 innings, then combined with Ron Reed on a six-hitter as the Phillies beat the Dodgers for the second straight day. Greg Luzinski hit his second tape measure homer in as many games for the Phillies while Larry Bowa drove in three runs. Ed Goodson hit a two-run pinch homer for Los Angeles.

Pirates 5, Braves 2

Jerry Reuss tossed a six-hitter for his fourth win in pitching the Pirates to their fifth victory in a row. Rennie Stennett doubled home two runs to highlight a four-run fourth inning which tagged Dick Ruthven with the loss. Clarence Gaston hit a two-run, pinch-hit homer for Atlanta.

Astros 10, Cardinals 5

Cliff Johnson drove in three runs with a homer, double and two singles to power the Astros to victory over the Cardinals. Larry Dierker pitched eight innings to gain his fourth win. Lou Brock had four hits for the Cardinals.

Giants 4-0, Expos 2-8

John Montefusco won his fourth game and Gary Matthews hit his sixth homer as the Giants snapped a six-game losing streak in the opener. But the Expos came back to capture the nightcap behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Rogers. Gary Carter homered for Montreal in the second game as the Giants suffered their 12th loss in their last 14 games.

Countdown to Olympics

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Five conference championships plus the Meet of Champions at Houston are on this weekend's busy track and field schedule with one more conference showdown and the California Relays the following week in the countdown to the Olympic Trials in June.

The West Coast Relays here was the big meet of the past weekend as various athletes won qualifying spots for the Trials, which run from June 19-27 at Eugene, Ore.

Surprisingly, not many Olympic hopefuls have won qualifying places thus far, but a lot more will this weekend with conference championships in the Big 8, Big Ten, Southeastern and Southwestern Conferences.

When all the sorting out has been completed, upwards of 65 men will make up the U.S. team for the Olympics in Montreal starting on July 17.

Cost, of course, is a factor, but the U.S. Olympic Committee wouldn't mind if as many as 40 athletes win qualifying spots for each event of the Trials.

"The more the merrier," said one official, "since the idea is to wind up with the strongest team possible."

There were enough good performances in the West Coast Relays to indicate the U.S. has nothing to worry about in fielding its 1976 team. Even though the rest of the track and field world seems to be catching up, especially East Germany and the Soviet Union, there is a lot of optimism this year among U.S track and field people to indicate there will be strength on the team.

In the field events, especially, as indicated here this past weekend, there are a number of fine Olympic candidates, fellows like Mac Wilkins in the discus, Al Feuerbach and George Woods in the shot put, Tom Woods in the high jump, Dan Ripley in the pole vault, Randy Williams and Arnie Robinson in the long jump and James Butts and Abdul Rahman in the triple.

Wilkins, who broke the world discus record four times in eight days a couple of weeks ago, won here with a so-so 212-3, but said he was satisfied he's on schedule for the Olympics.

"I'll be all right," said the former Oregon strongman. "I'm going to Europe for a couple of tuneups in Germany and Italy before the trials."

Dream Match On Tap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Mexico's so-called dream match between undefeated bantamweights Carlos Zarate and Alfonso Zamora apparently is going to come off.

Zamora, the World Boxing Association bantamweight king, was at ringside Saturday night to watch Zarate do the expected—take away the World Boxing Council 118-pound title from Rodolfo Martinez in nine rounds.

Promoter Danny Villanueva said he planned to stage a showdown in August "right after the Olympic Games."

A crowd of 17,468 showed up at the Forum and paid a gross gate of more than $250,000 to see Zarate, a 2-1 favorite, overwhelm his countryman.

Both the baby-faced, ever-smiling Zamora, a silver medalist in the 1972 Olympics, and Zarate, a mustachioed 22-year-old, are fearsome knockout punchers who have a combined 65 KOs in 66 fights. Zamora has 25 knockouts in 25 fights while Zarate is 41-0 with 40 knockouts.

They're both from Mexico City and are extremely popular among their countrymen. Zarate began his pro career in March, 1973, a month before Zamora. Zamora won his title in the same Forum ring by knocking out Soo Hwan Hong of South Korea in four rounds March 14, 1975.

Zarate knocked Martinez through the ropes with a sizzling left hook in the fifth and battered him at will in the eighth before flooring him with a right at 1:51 of the ninth of the scheduled 15-rounder. Martinez was out cold.

"I haven't thought about it yet," Zarate said when asked about his proposed match with Zamora. "Let me enjoy this win. Zamora is still a long way off."

Martinez, 29, lost in his fourth defense of the crown he took from Rafael Herrera, another Mexican. His manager, Lupe Sanchez, made it clear there were no thoughts of retirement.

"We'll take a month off and then see what happens," he said. "Rodolfo showed a lot of courage against Zarate. He fought on courage alone after the fifth round.

"Hopefully, we can win a couple of fights and get another title fight. We didn't have any rematch clause but, perhaps, we might get one later."

Martinez earned $130,000 while Zarate got $30,000.

Fitz' Pigeon Is First Home

OLEAN, Pa.— A pigeon handled by Rudy Fitz captured the North Catskill Pigeon Racing Club's third race of the season Saturday.

The bird covered an air mileage distance of 200 in four hours for a winning average of 1,692 yards per minute.

Second was a pigeon trained by Joe Filliciotto.

Baeza OK

Jockey Braulio Baeza, scheduled to ride Honest Pleasure in the Preakness on Saturday, was released Sunday from a Long Island hospital after being thrown by his mount in the ninth race at Belmont Park Saturday. Baeza, who suffered a sprained neck and a shoulder bruise but did not incur any fractures, was dischared after being held overnight for observation.

SAA Lassie Expands to 14 For June 1 Season Opener

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Athletic Association (SAA) Lassie Softball League has organized for its ninth season by expanding from 12 to 14 teams and obtaining a new field for its June 1 openers.

The league, which consists of women 16 years of age and up, will be split into a four-team A Division and a 10-team B Division. Both circuits will engage in 10-game pennant races with doubleheaders scheduled for Sundays and single games Monday through Friday.

Some 220 participants figure to see action.

The new field, one of three added to Veterans Memorial Field by the Town Recreation Commission, will be the Lassie League's permanent home. The league, which began in 1968, has played on four different diamonds over the years.

Another addition this season will be the first female commissioner. She is Mrs. Mary Ann Maines, who succeeds Jack Rinaldi.

The women will play seven-inning games and utilize a 15-run "stopper" rule effective once the game is official and the inning is complete.

The Lassie League is believed to be the oldest women's softball league in the Hudson Valley.

Teams and their managers or captains are:

A Division: Cuties, Joan Zuckerman; Gallagher's Gals, Cathy Schaffer; Little Levis, Phil Discordia; Turk Construction, Frank Anderson.

SHS Beaten By AHS Girls

FREEDOM PLAINS — Saugerties High's girls softball team generated 18 hits for 16 runs but came out on the short end of a 28-16 DCSL game with Arlington.

The Admirals also had 18 hits but five of them were home runs, two of which were grand slams by Diane Shultz and Pam Williamson.

Shultz also had a two run homer as did Adrian Lashway.

Saugerties is now 5-3 while Arlington is 7-1.

YMCA 'A' Division

Perry's Claims Title

KINGSTON — Perry's completed a YMCA basketball sweep when it defeated The Handlebar, 71-66, in the third and deciding game of the Winter League A Division championship playoffs.

By winning the best-of-three series two games to one, Perry's put the Winter trophy next to the one it captured by gaining the Fall League crown.

To win the finale, Perry's needed a big fourth quarter effort from Pete Koola and Jim Alba. The former had 26 points for the game, many in the final session when the winners were forced to rally from one point down. Alba, meanwhile, scored 10 of his 14 points in that fourth frame.

Koola also had 17 rebounds to go with his 26 points. Jim Cosentino had 11 points and Dave Kane 10 for the winners.

The Handlebar was led by Corey Chambers' 17 points and 19 rebounds. Joe Uhl flipped in 14 while Tom Fiore and Mike Derrenbacher dumped in 11 apiece.

'B' Crown to Wenzel's

KINGSTON — Art Shelightner scored 35 points to lead Wenzel's to a 95-74 victory over Wrixon in the third and deciding game of the best-of-three YMCA B Division basketball championship playoffs.

Wenzel's thus took the title two games to one.

The winners led 39-34 at halftime, then broke the game open after intermission by outscoring Wrixon 25-15.

Skip Lyons backed up Shelightner's point production with 17. Harry Brink had 16 to bring his three-game total to 94. Brink added 20 rebounds in the clincher.

Wrixon got 27 points from Teddy Van Dyke. Mike Kiernan had 19 and Earl Edmonds 18.

In the B Division consolation game, John Jasinski scored 42 points to lead Well Wolfpack to a 77-61 win over Dolphin Inn. Mike Sass had 19 for Dolphin.

Emerson-Durr Team Triumphs

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — Roy Emerson teamed with Francoise Durr to defeat Tony Trabert and Billie Jean King, 6-4, 6-4, Sunday in the finals of the $60,000 Mixed Doubles Classic at the La Costa Racquet Club.

Emerson and Durr split $20,000 while King and Trabert, the defending champions, divided $12,000.

Breaking Trabert's service three times during the 54-minute match watched by 3,250, the winners rallied from 1-4 in the second set with Emerson dominating the play.

Emerson, who at 39 is eight years younger than Trabert and the youngest of the eight all-timers in the male field, said he wasn't going to apologize for his comparative youth.

"I was invited to play and was happy to participate," said Emerson, a three-time Wimbledon doubles winner. "I don't compete any longer, but now I think I'll take up mixed doubles."

Emerson and Durr broke Trabert in the first game of the opening set, but Durr lost her serve to tie the score at 2-2. The teams then held service through the eighth game before a crucial double fault by Trabert and a winning cross-court Emerson backhand gave Emerson-Durr a 5-4 lead.

Trabert and King took advantage of Durr's soft service for a break and a 2-0 lead in the second set. They went ahead 4-1 before King lost her service in the seventh game and Trabert was broken for the third time in the ninth game.

Hartford Team Fires Coach

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Hartford Bicentennials have fired head coach Manfred Schellscheidt and replaced him with Bobby Thompson, an English striker signed by the franchise earlier this year.

The switch was announced Sunday by Rudi Schiffer, general manager of the North American Soccer league team.

The dismissal followed the team's third straight loss of the season after the Bi's won their first two games. In Schellscheidts's first full year as coach in 1975, the Bi's won only six of 22 games, including 11 straight losses.

Thompson, 31, who will be player-coach, has played for the England national team eight times and was captain of the Luton Town team when he signed a two-year contract with the Bi's.

Thompson will direct the team for the first time Saturday night when the Bi's host the Pele-led New York Cosmos at Dillon Stadium.

Schellscheidt was an assistant coach of the Philadelphia Atoms when they won the NASL title in 1973

Due to the nationwide strike, the tire you want may not be available at every outlet. We will provide a "raincheck" to assure you of the tire of your choice at the advertised price as soon as it becomes available.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MAY 11

Your birthday today: Your first half-year is full of widening horizons and higher earning capacity. In the latter half of the year, your responsibility increases, and you must decide on definite programs. Relationships are at first casual, and then become serious. Today's natives are individualistic, are involved in extremely specialized fields.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Guard the health of someone you care about. Take off from work for personal concerns where feasible; it won't be any more convenient later.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): If you push too far ahead with what you want to do, you provoke resistance and add extra burdens. Help yourself out by abstaining from criticism.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Play it safe, whatever else you do. Simple statements suffice now, but explanations are in order later. A minor windfall isn't any excuse for extravagance.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You are too optimistic in assuming speculative factors will work out well. Protect your best interests through moderation. Expect little from others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): A sense of limitation seeps in gradually as you see how the day's patterns turn out. Competition comes from those who don't achieve satisfying results.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't lend or borrow. Check up on what you lent earlier, recover scattered possessions and replace things that are worn out or lost. Be open for personal comment.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Commercial plans miss their mark. Surprises give you useful information. Exercise restraint in dealing with temperamental associates.

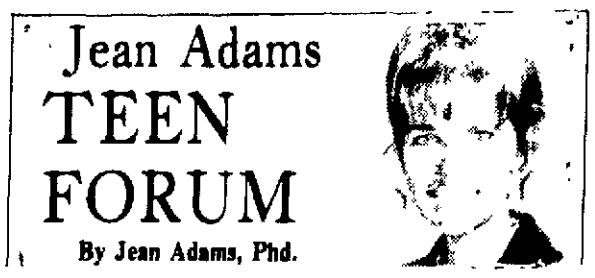
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People beyond your immediate reach are less likely prospects; concentrate on well-known associates. Passing circumstances are exasperating.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Schemes of friends and rivals are equally fantastic. Pursue your own plans. Expenses run higher than usual.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good opportunity for increased earnings depends entirely on what you can do singlehandedly. A pause for technical advise blocks progress

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb 18): Carry your full responsibility without hesitation, but take special precautions with machines or leave it to others. Keep a sense of humor.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Don't rush into a financial move without getting the details clear. The welfare of youngsters gives you much to think about.



Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

DATING: (Comment) I strongly disagree with some of the advice you give your female readers. You tell girls not to make a habit of calling up boys, and you are constantly giving tips to the girls on how to destroy a boy's ego.

I personally don't understand your dating advice. Why should a girl wait around all week for the phone to ring so she can have the pleasure of a boy's company on a weekend night?

What is she supposed to do when she doesn't get asked out. Sit at home and wash her hair? Or maybe go out with her girl friends and try to get picked up?

Don't you realize what a burden it can be on a boy to make the first step toward getting a girl friend? All of his friends are boys. He may have never had a real conversation with a girl. Of course he's scared.

It would all even out in the end. The frightened boy might find out that he really isn't the awful, ugly person he thinks he is if a girl should suddenly call him up. And the girl too timid to call up a boy and ask him for a date will still be asked by the braver, more experienced boys. The whole system of girls having to goad guys into being the aggressors all the time is, in my opinion, archaic and stupid. —Post-Teen Male In Massachusetts

(A.) Often I suggest that girls call boys. Also I sometimes urge a girl to take the first step in some other way. It all depends upon the circumstances. I think your complaint is more about how our society functions than about the advice I give teens on how to get along in that society. Just the same, I am happy to print your letter. Some of it makes a lot of sense. You do not, however, go into detail about "how to destroy a boy's ego." If you feel that I should advise a girl to risk getting pregnant just to build up a boy's ego, I am sorry that sometimes I have to disappoint you.

WHAT?: (Q.) I like this guy Bill. I don't know if he likes me. What should I do? Should I go right out and ask him if he likes me? Or should I wait and hope he will ask me out? —Waiting in Connecticut

(A.) Make the first move. Ask Bill to call you or come over. But wait till later to tell him you like him. And let him tell YOU he likes you, if it turns out that he does.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402. Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Two-year-old Raven Schlossberg covers her eyes and says "Daddy, that woman has no clothes." Want Tougher Juvenile Justice

ALBANY (UPI) — The State Division for Youth should be able to hold juvenile delinquents for up to three years, instead of the current 18 months, according to recommendations by an Assembly committee.

In addition, in a report released Sunday, the Committee on Child Care suggested mandatory one-year stays in secure facilities for 14-and 15-year-old juvenile delinquents charged with committing serious violent crimes.

Both proposals were part of a package of bills aimed at improving the juvenile justice system.

Assemblyman Richard Gottfried, D-Manhattan, committee chairman, said the mandatory-committment provision of his recommednation would cover "designated felony acts" including first-and second-degree murder, first-degree rape, first-degree sodomy, first-and second-degree arson and firstdegree robbery.

In an administrative order effective May 1, the division took similar action, requiring youths it called "classified cases" be held for a year in a secure facility for crimes outlined in Gottfried's measures.

The recommendations came out of a 16-month study of the juvenile justice system by his committee, Gottfried said.

In comments on the state of the juvenile justice system, the report said, "Psychiatric and psychlogical services are woefully inadequate. A system based on rehabilitation is denied the resources to carry out that mandate."

Other recommendations included establishment of a statewide juvenile justice information service to be run by the Division of Criminal Justice Services, the same agency that operates the state's adult crime information system.

Gottfried's bills also would require a court order before a youth could be transferred from a secure facility to a nonsecure one such as a training school.

In addition, a youth confined to a secure facility could be transferred to a State Mental Hygiene Department facility.

For the "designated felony act" cases, the same judge would be required to handle a youth's case from beginning to end, and county attorneys who had petitioned the youth to Family Court would be allowed to participate in dispositional hearings.

Full-scale probation investigations would be required before a youth's case was disposed of and 30-day detention periods would be allowed for that instead of the present 10 days.

The committee report, which said that a separate juvenile justice system is still necessary, included a measure to set up a separate part of Family Court to handle juvenile delinquency cases.

The proposals also would encourage courts to make more use of restitution of damages and community services in punishing juvenile delinquents.

The report criticized voluntary youth agencies for accepting only the least troublesome delinquents, leaving the "more violent or mentally disturbed youth ... to the Divison for Youth, which generally lacks the service resources of many of the voluntary agencies."

The juvenile justice system often allows repeat offenders to go untreated until they have become serious threats, the report said. It charged that youths either receive "revolving door" handling and become contemptuous or are treated too severely and become bitter and more dangerous.

Methodist Leaders Seek Stringent Gun Control

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The General Conference of the United Methodist Church has approved without debate a statement urging stringent controls on all types of guns in one of the final actions before the 12-day meeting ended.

The 10 million-member organization called Saturday for licensing of all gun owners and registration of all firearms.

The policy statement on gun control also urges a national ban on importing, manufacture, sale, and possession of handguns and handgun ammunition with exceptions only for a few restricted areas such as law enforcement and antique collections.

"We do not believe there is any Constitutional personal right to bear arms," the statement said.

In one of its final reports on the conference, the church news service said most participants in the sessions, held every four years to formulate church policies, "seem to agree that the United Methodist Church has moved to the right."

The Rev. Lloyd Wake, a minister at San Franciso's Glide Memorial Church, said, "For me it's like coming into another kind of world, a very uptight world, a world that's self-enclosed."

The Rev. Woodie White, Detroit, a top official of the church's commission on religion and race, said, "We didn't really lose anything." He added, "I'm more concerned about what's happened to people in the past three or four years that would make then turn so inward."

Thelma Stevens, retired leader of the Women's National Agency of the church, cited removal of a quota system for women in church agency executive staffs and a new requirement for all new executive staff members to be Methodists as example of steps to the right.

Bishop William R. Cannon, Atlanta, Ga., said, however, delegates were "less directed by pressure from certain small groups and its sense of moral commitment has been very keen." He added, "I feel the church at large will be quite pleased with the outcome of this conference."

In other actions just before the conference closed delegates:

— Rejected a call for estabishment of a publicly administered universal health care program.

— Approved lowering the retirement age for bishops from the current 68-72 to 66-70 and agreed to shorten their assignments in specific areas.

— Approved a budget of nearly $60.93 million a year for the next four years — $14 million more than approved for each of the past four years and $20 million more per year than was actually collected.

— In one more action on the conference's most controversial subject, rejected a number of petitions calling for a specific ban on ordination of homosexuals.

Think Mystery Man Victim of Accident

PORT EWEN — An autopsy, ordered by Ulster County William S. Keyser, has revealed "no reason to suspect foul play" in the death of an unidentified man whose body was found washed up on the banks of the Hudson River Saturday.

The autopsy was conducted shortly before noon on Sunday with detectives from the sheriff's office as witnesses. There were no bruises or broken bones, said a spokesman for the sheriff's office, and the tentative ruling is one of accidental death by drowning "at this time."

Police authorities estimate the man might have been dead for as long as two months. He is described as white, between 50 and 60 years of age, 5 feet 9 in height and between 170 and 180 pounds. He was wearing green corduroy pants, brown work boots, a green plaid jacket, a yellow rain jacket with hood, black rain pants and rust colored rubber work boots. Police theorize he may have either been a fisherman or may have fallen off one of the boats that ply the river.

A nationwide teletype alert has been sent out. Anyone with information is requested to contact the Ulster County sheriff's office

Pooler for Local Consumer Agency

KINGSTON — Rosemary Pooler, executive director of the New York State Consumer Board, has called for Ulster County to have its own consumer protection agency "so that local problems can be solved here."

Speaking to 150 members of the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club at their recent 25th annual luncheon, Mrs. Pooler said she would be "flattered, delighted and thrilled to come to speak at the opening of a consumer agency in Ulster County."

"I don't think you want to go to Albany to have your complaints settled," she said' "because local complaints belong in the local community."

Mrs Pooler, a former Syracuse City Council member, noted that her board has been able to make some ground despite funding and power limitations.

"The board was created in 1970," s said, "but it doesn't have the power to do anything. It's just charged with investigating consumer interests across the state."

If Mrs. Pooler had her way, the Consumer Protection Board, which she calles "weak and diffused," would become the Consumer Protection Agency.

It would have the power to ask for testimony and "the right to sue the sons-of-guns if we think they're doing something wrong."

Referring to herself as an "aggressive, troublemaking woman," Mrs. Pooler said she is now engaged in a fight against utility rate increases, increases in Blue Cross and Blue Shield rates, and auto repair part rates. She is also working on prescription drug rates, fraudulent television repair practices and the excess fat content of meats.

Many of the consumer problems she is working on are aided by the introduction of legislation by Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., she said. She lauded his interest in the region's consumer needs and said she hoped that at least two of his bills related to consumer protection would be acted on favorably by the Legislature.

Ulster County Legislator Kathleen Quick, D-City, who was present at the luncheon, said that a resolution to investigate the need for a county consumer agency has been introduced by Minority Leader Louis M. Klein, D-Dist 6, but refused to predict when the resolution will be brought out of committee.

Mrs. Pooler, a Brooklyn native, currently maintains a law practice in addition to her duties as executive director of the consumer board.

Children's Home Centennial

KINGSTON — Nearly 200 persons have been invited to attend the Centennial Celebration at the Children's Home of Kingston on Sunday, May 16.

The program, slated for 2 p.m. at 26 Grove Street, will commemorate the agency's 100th birthday. A plaque recognizing the home's high standards will be presented by Mrs. James T. Butler, representing the Child Welfare League of America.

Community leaders, friends, supporters, neighbors, board members and staff will join in acknowledging the past 100 years of services to problem children and families. Former board president Mrs. William Hilton will highlight the agency's gradual change from an orphanage to a treatment center. Mrs. James DeRose, current president of the Board of Directors, will describe the home's goals and community-based preventive services. Lawrence B. Siewers, executive director, will be master of ceremonies for the program.

Immediately after the speeches there will be a reception with champagne and punch and a cake designed as a replica of the home's "wellhouse' logo. Guests will be invited to tour the home's facilities, including a campus school and residential units.

Started by a small group of Kingston women in 1876 as the Industrial Home, the agency continues to live up to its motto "We Seek to Serve." Now more than 200 families and 60 emotionally troubled boys yearly receive help at the Children's Home of Kingston.
